Annual Event Held on Tuesday Night Two Plays Presented—Gymnastics

With close to five hundred interested spectators on hand, the Annual Commencement Exercises of the Stirling High School took place in the Stirling Theatre, on Tuesday night. The audience was in an appreciative mood and every number on the lengthy programme was well received. The feature of the program was the presentation of two playlets by several of the students, under the able direction of Mr. G. L. Clute. In both scenes those chosen as members of the cast proved adept in the portrayal of the various characters, and drew rounds of applause from the audience for their fine work.

Mr. R. G. Lawlor, Principal of the School, proved an ideal chairman for the occasion. In his opening remarks after extending a welcome to those in attendance, Mr. Lawlor reminded the parents that a large percentage of the students sent to Stirling High School were making an honest endeavour to live up to their appreciation of them. Mr. E. A. Luery, Chairman of the Board of Education, also spoke briefly and assisted Mr. Lawlor in the presentation of the proficiency prizes, diplomas, medals, cholarships, etc.

The programme opened with two choruses by members of the school, with Miss A. Calow at the piano, followed by the presentation of prizes, which were as follows:

CELEBRATED FIFTIETH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. George Rosebush were "At Home" to their many friends on Monday, March 30th, the occasion being the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. This very interesting couple had lived on the farm where Mr. Rosebush was born, Ridge Road, until ten years ago, when they retired to Stirling, where they built a home and have since resided.

The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion, the colour scheme being carried out in yellow. The table looked lovely with gold-coloured candlesticks and yellow daffodils centering the table. Mrs. Rosebush, who was Miss Ida Commings, looked lovely in bright blue crepe, with a corsage of yellow daffodils. Mrs. Frank Rose, (nee Geneva Wright) attended the door. Mrs. Arthur Gordanier escorted the guests to the dining room, where Mrs. F. T. Wicket, of Rosetown, Sask., and Mrs. Clifford Beacock, of Stirling, poured tea, assisted by Mrs. Harold Foster. Those who assisted with the serving were Mrs. Don Donohoe, Mrs. Carleton Wright, Mrs. C. Tucker, Mrs. R. Wright, Mrs. H. Foster and Mrs. Arthur Couch.

On the arrival of Rev. and Mrs. E. W. Rowland, the bride and groom of fifty years were called to the dining room. Those honoured by being served with the bride and groom were Rev. and Mrs. Rowland, and the groomsman, Mr. C. Wheeler and Mrs. Wheeler and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Bailey.

The remainder of the evening was spent in community singing and a mock wedding was staged, with Mrs. Rowland playing the wedding music. An address was read by Mrs. George Luery, niece of the happy couple, who were presented with a lovely flower basket filled with 50 daffodils. Mrs. J. Ross made the presentation.

Mr. and Mrs. Rosebush received many letters and cards; also flowers from a niece, Mrs. Bulford (nee Miss Sarah Tucker, Alberta), and a telegram from Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Cummings, Edmonton, Alta., brother of Mrs. Rosebush. The bridesmaid of fifty years ago, Mrs. Garrison, (nee Miss McKim) of Belleville, was unable to attend.

The following is the address:

Stirling, March 30th, 1936.

Mr. and Mrs. George Rosebush,

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Rosebush,—

We, your friends, relatives and neighbours, have gathered at your home this evening to extend to you our heartiest congratulations on this your Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary day. It gives us all great pleasure that God in His goodness has spared you all these years to spend your lives among us, and in His bountiful mercy you have the blessing of good health, and the privilege of spending your declining years in such a beautiful home, enjoying the affection and esteem of your friends and relatives. We have brought this gift and ask you to accept as a more substantial expression of our esteem for you than mere words can convey. When in future you use it, may it serve to remind you of the loving association of your neighbours, friends and relatives in the past, present and days to come.

Signed on behalf of your many Relatives and Friends.

LENGTHY SESSION HELD BY BOARD OF EDUCATION

LIABILITY INSURANCE TO BE TAKEN OUT — TEACHERS' SALARIES DISCUSSED — COUNCIL INVITED TO MEET WITH BOARD NEXT TUESDAY — SPLENDID RESULTS NOW BEING REALIZED

A lengthy session of the Stirling Board of Education was held in the High School on Monday night, with Chairman E. A. Luery presiding, and Messrs J. S. Morton, Ewart Bailey, C. F. Linn, W. Wright, W. H. Patterson, J. B. Belshaw, H. C. Martin, E. G. Bailey, Dr. H. H. Alger and Dr. C. F. Walt in attendance.

Mr. J. B. Belshaw, chairman of the Property Committee, presented an estimate on the work in connection with the enlargement of the Public School grounds. This included fencing, ditching, tiling, and other work, amounting to approximately $300. It was felt that this expenditure was too large to undertake under the circumstances, and it was decided on motion of Mr. J. S. Morton and Dr. Alger to have the north end of the school grounds cleaned up.

The property committee was also authorized to rent the lot of Rev. E. W. Rowland as a garden plot for the use of the Public School pupils, the ground to be put in shape for cultivation by the owner.

Fault has been found by the insurance inspector on the proximity of the smoke pipes on the boilers in the schools to the joist, reported Mr. Belshaw, and some form of insulation will have to be used. This matter, along with the erection of a hood over the girls' entrance to the High School was left in the hands of the Property Committee.

Mr. C. F. Linn, reporting for the Finance Committee, stated that the committee had decided to change the insurance carried on the schools from tariff to non-tariff companies and thus effect a saving of approximately $130 in premium. On motion of Dr. C. F. Walt, seconded by Mr. W. Wright the action of the committee was approved.

Dr. Alger, of the Internal Management Committee, reported on the final disposition of the case of an incorrigible pupil in the public school. This case has been a long standing one, and the pupil will be sent to the Boys' Training School at Bowmanville. A motion of thanks and appreciation to Dr. Alger and his committee for their patience and tact in handling the case was passed by the Board on motion of Dr. Walt and Mr. Belshaw.

The question of liability insurance was introduced by Mr. J. S. Morton, and following a brief discussion, it was decided to contract for this type of insurance on both schools.

Dr. C. F. Walt of the Teachers' Committee, addressed the Board relative to teachers' salaries. In view of the recent communication from the Village Council, requesting that the teachers be asked to resign and re-engaged at a reduction of twenty-five per cent. in salary, stated Dr. Walt, it was imperative that each member of the Board should be made acquainted with facts in relation to salaries paid to teachers in Stirling and surrounding schools. Taking the towns of Campbellford, Madoc and Tweed, for the sake of comparison, Dr. Walt quoted the salaries paid for the past few years, and pointed out that Stirling had never paid above the average, considering the qualifications and experience of the members of the staff, and in many instances the salaries paid had been much lower than those paid in surrounding towns. Insofar as the request of Council was concluded, Dr. Walt felt that the Board couldn't comply with it, and concluded by stating that he wouldn't be a party to any such move.

Mr. H. C. Martin, in concurring in the remarks of Dr. Walt, referred to the splendid results secured in the local High school in the Middle and Upper School examinations last year, which reflected favourably upon the efficiency of the present staff. Dr. H. H. Alger and Mr. J. B. Belshaw also expressed themselves as not being in favour of any such drastic action as proposed by the Council. Mr. Belshaw stated that he thought that the Board should decide as soon as possible what was to be done in the matter.

Mr. J. S. Morton stated that results were his first consideration. He thought the results attained were above the average and stated he

LATE MRS. H. HADLEY

On Saturday, March 28th, just two weeks after the death of her husband, the late Herbert Hadley, Mrs. Hadley passed away at her home, James St., after a short illness.

At the time of her husband's death, Mrs. Hadley was stricken with pneumonia, and for several days prior to her passing, little hope had been held for her recovery.

Mrs. Hadley, who was in her fifty-fifth year, had become associated with many residents of the district, who will deeply regret her passing.

Born in Rochester, N. Y., a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Anderson, deceased had lived in Stirling since her marriage to the late Herbert Hadley in 1906. A faithful member of the Canadian Branch of Jehovah's Witnesses, deceased will be greatly missed, being very active in the welfare of that organization.

Left to mourn her passing are one daughter, Mrs. Eric Mumby, and one son, Mr. Alton Hadley, both residing in Stirling. Two sisters, Mrs. S. Hadley, of Frankford and Mrs. P. R. Harnish, Rochester, N.Y., and one brother, Mr. E. L. Anderson, Detroit, Mich., also mourn her loss.

The funeral service was held on Monday afternoon, March 30th, in the Community Building and was largely attended by friends who gathered to pay their last respects. The service was conducted by Mr. Walter Salter, of Toronto, President of the Canadian Branch of Jehovah's Witnesses. The pallbearers were Messrs H. C. Martin, H. Francis, Wm. Fox, Walter Wright, T. W. Solmes and Clinton McGee. Interment was made in the Stirling Cemetery.

GUILD PROGRAM IS BROADCAST

Interesting Programme Enjoyed by Members at St. Andrew's

A meeting of unusual interest was held at St. Andrew's Church on Monday evening, under the auspices of the members of St. Andrew's Young People's Union, when a radio broadcast was carried out in every detail.

The meeting opened under the direction of Duncan Montgomery, Pres., and after the singing of a hymn, Rev. J. A. Koffend led in prayer.

The remainder of the program was under the supervision of a committee composed of Duncan Montgomery, Roy Juby, Ernest Cain, Wm. Dermidy and Arthur Duncan.

For use as a broadcasting room, a small room in the basement of the church had been arranged so that the individual members on the program could appear before a microphone and have their offerings broadcast. The broadcast was again "picked up" by the use of a receiving set in another section of the church. The idea was a novel one, and the mechanical part of the broadcast was under the capable supervision of Colin Fox and Jack Ormiston who have gained a considerable knowledge in the radio field by experimentation and faithful study along that line.

Mr. Arthur Duncan acted as announcer and introduced the artists to those tuned in. The programme was very interesting and consisted of vocal numbers by Messrs Elmer Williams, Jack and Carl Potter, Cain and Clarke, who gave numbers in trio and quartette form. Mouthorgans played a prominent part in the offering of the several contributors and Ross Scott contributed a number on this instrument, as well as bird imitations. Fred Houchin's mandolin number was thoroughly enjoyed as were the violin numbers by Reg. Mathison. A very intricate collection of tap dance routine by E. Cain, gave the audience a thrill, as few of those present ever dreamed that this artist was versed in the terpsichorean art. The news commentator (Walter Winchell to the listening multitude, but Dave Lamb to those who knew who was talking) made an excellent attempt to give to his listeners the events of interest in this district. Wm. Dermidy, the local authority on sports happenings, gave a "Foster Hewitt" of a recent Boston Bruins-Toronto Maple Leaf hockey tangle and kept the audience well entertained. Numbers by Bob Patterson, harp and harmonica, and Bill Jones, harmonica and ukelele, who played one at a time and later combined their efforts, added further to the program. Personal interviews which were conducted by the announcer, who interrogated several of the prominent local residents, ended the broadcast.

Those in charge of the programme are to be congratulated upon the degree of success attained, and those in charge of the broadcast details were heartily applauded by the audience.

At the conclusion a very dainty lunch was served by the ladies of the organization.

Auditors' Report Received

The Auditors' Report, presented to the Stirling Council at a special meeting held last week contains some features worthy of comment.

In the first place, the report shows the Village's debenture indebtedness at the present time to be $71,990.93. While there are no debentures being retired during the present year, within the next few years there will be three completely paid up, which will be a big help to the taxpayers.

It was also noted that there is a considerable amount of arrears of taxes. Receipts from poll taxes and dog taxes show a big decline and the auditors strongly recommend that drastic action should be taken to collect these taxes. We agree with them, as we feel there are many dogs owners who are not paying their just dues. From the amount of dog tax collected one would think that Stirling was almost a dogless village. It is anything but that. There are also many persons who have not been paying their poll tax.

The auditors also recommended that the business tax be collected in the current year in order to avoid any loss between the time of assessment and tax collection. Business tax should never be allowed to become arrears, as they are not collectable if the business is suspended.

A number of other suggestions were made by the auditors relative to the system of bookkeeping used in various departments of Village affairs, as well as the remuneration paid the village officials. A change in the method of assessment in the cases of properties with a number of tenants and the correct listing of each property as to street and number was also recommended in the report, which is a well prepared document reflecting great credit upon the auditors.

The Council is making a detailed study of the report and will no doubt adopt many of the suggestions set forth. In the matter of arrears of taxes, it should take the advice of the auditors and make every possible move, even to the extent, if necessary, of adopting drastic measures, so that the arrears can be collected and the burden of the taxpayers in general made lighter.

Warn the Children

With the sidewalks and streets of Stirling free from snow and ice again, roller skating is becoming a popular pastime with many of the younger boys and girls who may be seen almost any time of the day speeding along the sidewalks, having plenty of fun. While we do not object in the least to the children thus enjoying themselves, they should be warned of the danger of playing on the streets which are highways, owing to the possibility of being hit by an automobile or truck. Only this week we read in the daily press of a child being killed when struck by a car while at play on the street and we wouldn't want such a tragedy to occur here. Front Street has quite a sharp incline from above the post office to the corner of North Street and when skaters are coasting down there they are frequently unable to stop for the corner and continue across the dangerous intersection without any protection. Every time a skater does this he is inviting disaster and we sometimes wonder that there hasn't been a serious accident at this spot. Parents would be well advised to warn their children from doing this, and if they can find no other playgrounds than the streets, there are plenty of side streets where traffic is not nearly so heavy. On the other hands, motorists would do well to drive with extreme care along the streets of the village, particularly at this time of year, when the children are more or less forced to play upon the streets due to the usual playgrounds being still soggy and wet. While perhaps no blame can be attached to a motorist, should an accident occur, there aren't any but who would long regret being a party to an accident in which some child was perhaps maimed for life or fatally injured. Stirling Village has been fortunate in not having any serious accidents on its streets, and nothing should be left undone in keeping the slate clean. In order to accomplish this every child should be impressed with the safety first idea, by his parents. The school teachers might add something to the warning by giving the pupils safety talks at school. While the children learn quickly to watch out, there is always the risk of a momentary impulse causing one to dash out into the street into the path of an oncoming motor. No one wants to hit a child, but accidents do happen and motorists should be very careful.

CURRENT COMMENT

Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture for the province, advises the farmers to keep their cattle off the market until June, when better prices shall be prevailing. It remains to be seen just how good a prophet the Minister is.

—x—x—x—

Many municipalities throughout the province have announced their tax rates for the current year. The Stirling Council will not strike the local rate for some time yet, but it has been prophesied that when they do it will be a little higher than last year. The taxpayers are hoping for the best.

—x—x—x—

This is the time of year when motorists and pedestrians should do all in their power to prevent damage to the lawns in the Village. Owing to the soft conditions of the soil, it is very easy to make ruts and holes in the turf. It is a difficult task to repair these and requires a lot of time and energy. Stirling has a large number of beautiful lawns and their owners take particular pride in keeping them neat and attractive throughout the summer season. The public is asked to co-operate in the matter and we are sure their thoughfulness will be greatly appreciated.

—x—x—x—

From perusing the exchanges which come to our desk it is apparent that the Traffic Officers have been making a close check-up on all motor vehicles. While in the past there has frequently been some criticism offered as to the laxity in checking cars and trucks, this time it is the other way about. The case of the Anglican Rector at Tillbury, who refused to pay a fine when found guilty of operating a car without a tail light; also the case of a St. Thomas business man, similarly charged, have received much publicity. In both cases the accused claimed the light was burning when they started on their journey and they were unaware of its failure to function. Under the circumstances we think a warning would perhaps have been sufficient, but when the officers saw fit to lay charges and nominal fines were imposed, the motorists should have paid them out of respect for the law of the province without so much ado about nothing.

What Others Say

FAR TOO BOLD

(Trenton Courier-Advocate)

The boldness of some of the transients of this country at the present time reminds us that they probably believe that none but the brave deserve the fare.

JUST BE CAREFUL!

(Elmira Signet)

A warning against stroking a cat near gasoline fumes was sounded recently by W. J. Scott, Ontario Fire Marshall. The Marshall said it was possible for a spark so generated to ignite either gasoline or illuminating gas fumes under certain conditions. He recalled a cat in Hamilton had saved its life when a spark from its fur exploded the gas in a lethal chamber, injured the attendant and enabled tabby to escape.

OPEN SEASON USELESS IN BANCROFT DISTRICT

While the rat season officially opened on Friday last, it doesn't mean a thing to trappers in this district as the marshes are full of ice and prospects are that they will be for some time yet, in fact trappers are of the opinion that they may not be open for a few days at the end of the season. The closing date is April 3rd. — Bancroft Times.

Annual Meeting of Kingston Presbyterial

On Tuesday, March 24th, the annual meeting of Kingston Presbyterial W. M.S. (Presbyterian) was held in St. Andrew's Church, Trenton. The president, Mrs. W. A. Hunter, of Madoc, occupied the chair and gave the "Call to Worship."

Afternoon devotions were in charge of members of Trenton Auxiliary, who also extended a very cordial welcome to delegates and visitors. Mrs. Hill, of Roslin, made a most gracious reply. Minutes of the annual meeting held in Belleville in January and of the December executive meeting were read by the recording secretary, Miss Mowat.

Mrs. Ranson, of Belleville, corresponding secretary, gave a comprehensive summary of the work of auxiliaries and associate societies in general. On the whole the outlook is encouraging but a decrease in membership of 33 is to be regretted. Auxiliaries are requested to look into the matter and to make an earnest effort in 1936 to remedy this situation.

Miss Druce, mission band secretary, gave her report and presented the banner to Roslin Mission Band, this organization having scored the highest number of points in 1935. An encouraging feature of this department is the fact that the children are making a sincere effort to carry on their own meetings without the aid of the grown-ups. Two new bands have been organized at Wilton and Deseronto.

Miss Fowler, Presbyterial treasurer, gave the financial report. The amount received and forwarded was $2,414.92, this sum being somewhat short of the allocation.

Departmental reports were presented by the various secretaries. Supplies to the value of $536 were forwarded to the Cecilia Jeffrey Indian School and letters of thanks and appreciation were read. Bales for 1536 will be sent to Birtle, Manitoba.

Life membership receipts amounted to $260 and Home Helpers contributions $217.

After the offering and dedicatory prayer a very pleasing solo was rendered by Mrs. Cameron of Deseronto.

Seventy-five delegates responded to the roll-call and a helpful discussion period followed, conducted by the the president. Auxiliary secretaries are urged to exercise more care in filling out annual reports to the Presbyterial corresponding secretary, these to be sent before December 31. The afternoon session closed with prayer by Mrs. Stephen of Kingston. Delegates, members of Presbytery, and Presbyterial officers were guests of Trenton auxiliary for tea.

The evening session opened with a hymn and devotional exercises, conducted by members of the Kingston auxiliary. Greetings from Presbytery were extended by Rev. A. E. Cameron of Pittsburg, recalling to mind the services of past officers, some extending over a long period of time.

Mrs. Bateman, of Belleville, was appointed Presbyterial delegate to the provincial annual meeting at Ottawa. It was also decided to hold a Mission Band Rally during the coming summer.

Rev. W. H. Kelly, minister of St. Andrews Church, Trenton, gave a fine address on "South Sea Missions" dealing in particular with the work in the New Hebrides.

One outstanding name in connection with Missions in the South Seas is that of Dr. Patton, who laboured and served for many years among people who were wild and treacherous. Progress was slow but through the power of the gospel these natives became earnest Christians.

During the offering Miss Flora MacDonald, of Trenton, sang "Stranger of Galilee" and suitable selections were rendered by the organist.

Rev. D. C. Hill, Moderator of Presbytery, took charge of the Installation services and briefly addressed the newly elected officers. Mrs. Bateman of Belleville presented the report of the resolutions committee, and the meeting closed with the National Anthem and benediction by Rev. Mr. Walker, of Belleville.

Officers for 1936 are: honorary presidents, Mrs. Reid, of Belleville, Mrs. Duff, Kingston, Mrs. Morrice, Belleville; president, Mrs. W. A. Hunter, Madoc; first vice-President, Mrs. A. G. Cameron, Deseronto; second vice-President, Mrs. A. Fargey, Stirling; 3rd vice-president, Miss M. Cameron, Camden East; 4th vice-President, Mrs. G. Darling, Gananoque; 5th vice-president, Mrs. Gothard, Trenton; corresponding secretary, Mrs. P. Ranson, Belleville; recording secretary, Miss E. L. Mowat, Kingston; assistant recording secretary, Mrs. A. E. Cameron, Pittsburg; treasurer, Miss A. Fower, Kingston; Department secretaries: exchange, Mrs. M. Tompkins, Stirling; Glad Tidings, Mrs. D. Hill, Roslin; Home Helpers, Mrs. S. M. Scott, Picton; Library and Literature, Mrs. J. Fargey, Belleville; Life Membership, Mrs. E. Rutherford, Belleville; Mission Band, Miss Dorothea Druce, Kingston; assistant Mission Band, Mrs. Jenkins, Madoc; student, Mrs. F. P. Smith, Kingston; press, Mrs. T. McCaffery, Madoc; supply, Mrs. Bateman, Belleville; Y. W. and Girls, Mrs. Penwarden, Kingston; W. and W., Mrs. Annand, Kingston.

SOMEONE PLANTED TREES

Someone planted trees, long years ago —
Singly, grouped together, row on row;
Maples, conifers, the grateful elm —
Lowly prairie raised to woodland realm
I who planted neither seed nor root,
Tended not a sapling or a shoot,
Reap the joy that someone sowed for me
When, with care, set each tiny tree.
Tall and beautiful are the trees today;
Vibrantly they lift their heads and sway.
Rooted deep in earth, they seem to me
Living in some bright aerial sea.
Every changing phase contents my eye —
Branches bare against a wintry sky;
Clothed in verdure of a tender green;
Sumptuous in gold and russet sheen.
I who love the glory of a tree
Bless the one who made this gift to me.
He who, planting, brought the trees to birth,
Added to the wonder of the earth.

DR. CARLETON HEADS TRENT BOWLING LEAGUE

Dr. Carleton, of Norwood, was elected president of the Trent Valley Bowling League, with the following being vice-presidents in the order named: L. E. Kelley, Hastings; G. Thompson, Campbellford; A. M. Smale Warkworth; J. H. Moore, Havelock and R. J. Taylor, Brighton.

Havelock made a real suggestion, that the winners of the two halves play for one prize, and that the runners-up of the two halves play for the other prize, but no club be eligible to play for more than one prize in one year, the next ranking club or clubs in the halves be in the playoff for the second prize.

The idea of this was to discourage the packing of rinks in any one half and to encourage the giving, in every club, of chances to play to all members alike, and so encourage the real end of the league, namely, sportsmanship and real sociability. It is expected that the six clubs will agree to this and it will become a rule. For the past few years Norwood and Campbellford have been holding both the shield and the cup.

MAPLE SYRUP SELLS AT $2.00

Warmer weather and the fact that roads are again bare and passabe in the Belleville section contributed to the largest attendance so far this season at the regular Saturday market this season.

Eggs dropped to what may be the season's lowest level. While exporters and buyers were quoting prices of from 13 to 15 cents per dozen, the average housewife had her choise of the offerings at from 16 to 18 cents for "extras" and from 12 to 14 cents per dozen for pullets'. In the dairy division butter also experienced a drop, selling at from 28 to 30 cents the pound, with the usual two-pound rolls being quoted at 55 cents. Fowl was comparatively scarce but cheaper this week with chickens holding leading place in offerings. Single birds ranged from 60 cents to 90 cents according to size, while the usual price per pair was $1.35 to $1.50. A few ducks sold at from 95 cents to $1.00. Maple syrup will be scarce this year, it was stated by one of many vendors who were offering the typical Canadian product in fairly heavy quantities so far. Usual price asked was $2.00 per gallon, but it may go higher, it was intimated by one vendor. "There's no frost in the ground" it was stated in explanation of the claim that the syrup will be scarce. "There has to be frost before the sap rises, and due to the warm weather and the fact that snow prevented the frost from penetrating the ground has resulted in less sap running."

Maple sugar was also comparatively scarce, with small cakes selling at the usual price of ten cents. Larger cakes were offered at 25 cents.

Little change in vegetable prices was noted. Carrots, beets and parsnips were sold at 30 cents the bushel, cabbages were 5 and 10 cents and onions at 40 cents the peck. Potatoes were freely offered and held at from $1.00 for the 65-pound bag to $1.25 for the 75-pound bag. Spy apples at 60c cents a peck and Russets at 50 cents for good quality.

Fresh caught fish from local waters, so fresh they were still wiggling in the boxes, were again offered for the first time. Pike commanded a price of 10 cents the pound, uncleaned. Fresh, skinned mudcats were dearer at 15 cents the pound, straight. Up to the present white fish have not been offered on the open market due to the almost prohibitive price of 35 cents, uncleaned. "Before next week is over they'll be paying 40 cents the pound owing to the Jewish holidays," it was stated by a vendor.

Live little pigs on the outside market were again offered in large numbers, selling at from $4.50 to $5.00 each. A few collie pups found few purchasers at $3.00.

No change in grain prices and little change in market prices of livestock was reported by local dealers.

NEWS OF INTEREST FOR BUSY FARMERS

Beware of Weed Seeds in Manure

Weed seeds find their way to the manure pile through the digestive systems of animals and in bedding. When fresh manure is hauled out and spread on the land viable weed seeds may be spread with it. If weeds are present allow the manure to remain in the pile for at least one month before spreading and thereby avoid the danger of increasing weed infestation.

Soybeans

The production of soybeans on a commercial scale in Ontario commenced about six years ago. Up to that time there were only a few isolated growers, principally in the counties of Essex and Kent. Although the acreage on individual farms has in most cases been small, it is estimated that the total area sown amounted to 10,000 acres in 1935. Seventy-five per cent of the crop was grown in rows and harvested for seed, while the balance was produced for hay.

Wider Markets

Ontario farmers are deeply interested in wider markets. A surplus of beef cattle, hogs, cheese, butter, fruit, honey, tobacco, poultry and other products must be sold in other Provinces and in the markets outside of Canada. Of the beef cattle exported to the United States in 1935, Ontario farmers supplied nearly 30 per cent. Nearly 74 per cent. of the cheese produced in Canada was made in Ontario factories. Our dairy farmers have a vital interest in the price secured for 44,994,000 pounds of cheese exported during the ten-month period ending October 31st, 1935. In the export of many millions of pounds of bacon and lard to Great Britain, United States and other countries during the past year, Ontario producers have played an important part, since on their farms have been produced nearly 37 per cent. of the total hogs raised in Canada. To the large volume of exports of other agricultural products which have brought many millions of dollars, Ontario has made a most substantial contribution.

More and more, our people realize that they are directly concerned with world markets. The demands and needs of these markets, trade treaties negotiated by the Canadian Government, and the important related problems of production, all of these call for study, organization and carefully planned individual and group action.

Dairy Cattle Rings

A common affection of cattle at this time of the year is ringworm. This can be easily controlled if taken in time. Wash the part with soap and water to remove crusts, scraping if necessary, then dry the spot and paint with tincture of iodine, repeating the treatment daily until cured. Sulphur ointment if used conscientiously will also give good results.

Pruning Should be Done During the Dormant Season

Pruning, as practised by the commercial fruit-grower, should have two essential objects; first, to train the shape or growth of the tree in a specific way, and second, to influence the production and quality of the fruit.

When speaking of training a fruit tree, the purpose is not to mould a beautiful or shapley object, but rather a tree that is commercially profitable and capable of carrying its crop without breakage of limbs. Furthermore, the proper pruning of a tree will facilitate other orchard operations such as spraying and picking.

Pruning may be done at any time during the dormant season, but late winter or early spring is preferable. However, the amount and type of pruning is far more important than the time at which it is done.

Raspberry Plantations

Where manure is not applied to raspberry plantations until the spring, a cover crop is also advisable to prevent too late growth of cane. As the advent of mosaic disease is making it advisable to renew plantations more frequently, the grower who is unable to get large quantities of manure will find that shorter rotation lends itself more to the cover crop and mulch system, for each new plantation may be preceeded for a season by a crop of clover or alsike which, when turned over, will leave the soil in excellent condition by the new plantation. This method of renewal, say every six years, with proper green manuring cover crop or mulch, and adequate quantities of commercial fertilizers, will render it possible for raspberry growing to take its place beside orcharding, in being more or less independent of the failing and increasingly expensive supply of manure.

An Evergreen Windbreak for Farm Buildings

The number of years to grow a windbreak may be reduced in several ways.

1—The trees may be spaced 5 to 6 feet apart if several rows are planted, while spruce or pine in a single row should be spaced 8 to 16 feet. The trees in the second row may be placed opposite the spaces in the first row. The closer spacing and the staggering of the trees reduce considerably the period required for the trees to grow together.

2 — Cultivation increases the yearly growth of small trees.

3—Plant the trees in the windbreak at once rather than placing them in a nursery for a few years and then planting them in the windbreak as the growth is retarded for several years following transplanting.

4—A fast growing species such as Scotch pine, red pine, soft maple, black locust or Carolina poplar, may be planted in centre rows between the more slow growing spruce and cedar.

5—It is possible in many sections to secure white and red cedar 3 to 5 in height, that are growing in open pasture fields.

6—Cedars may be spaced 2 to 4 feet and a fine thick windbreak would be grown while the close spacing with pine and spruce is not advisable. The cedar is a slow growing tree compared to spruce and pine and it should not be planted unless larger trees are available as the growth is often disappointing with trees 12 feet to 15 feet in height.

White spruce, Norway spruce, white cedar and red cedar are quite suitable for single row windbreaks. Pine are not recommended to be used in single rows as their foliage is quite open and they do not retain live branches to the ground as well as cedar and spruce.

A farmer in Ontario may secure free 500 trees for windbreak and 3500 for pantation and wood-lot planting. Application forms and descriptive literature may be obtained from The Forestry Branch, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, or the county agricultural representatives.

The presentation of the playlet "Indian Summer" was the next part of the programme and was well received. The scene had its setting in the French Village of Touraine, where Brigueville has disowned his nephew, Noel, for marrying a poor upholsterer's daughter. The efforts of Madame Lebreton, the housekeeper, and Adrienne, who was supposed to be her niece, but in reality was the wife of Noel, to effect a reconciliation proved both interesting and entertaining.

The role of Brigueville, the French gentleman, was the leading part and was well played by Reginald Mathison, as was the part of Adrienne, by Miss Jean Munro. Miss Keitha Stapley had the part of Madame Lebreton, while Thomas Bedford ably depicted Noel, the nephew of Monsieur Brigueville.

An exhibition of gymnastics, including work in the parallel bars, and tumbling, by fourteen boys, under the direction of Mr. H. M. Scollie, proved to be a feature of the programme. The work on the parallel bars was a revelation to many and demonstrated that while the High School is primarily an institution for the development of the mental capacities of the students, the physical side of life is not entirely overlooked. As each movement was completed, the individual members were given a well-merited applause by the large audience. The members of the team were: Tom Bedford, James Ward, Wesley Brooks, Ralph Richardson, Jack Woods, Ralph Campbell, Ross Bailey, Don Stapley, Roy Juby, Clayton Thompson, Cecil Mumby, MacLummiss, Bob Shier, Geo. Dainard.

The final number on the program was the presentation of the playlet "Brothers In Arms". An unique feature of this scene is that its setting is some twenty or thirty miles north of Kaladar. Altrus Browne, a big business man from the city, and his wife Dorothea Browne, have gone to camp in the woods for a vacation. As the scene opens, Mr. Brown, who is in a hurry to return to the city to complete a big business deal, and his wife, are anxiously awaiting the coming of Charlie Henderson to motor them to Kaladar to catch the night train. Syd White, a woodsman, and a pal of Charlie's, arrives on the scene, but can throw little light on the time of Henderson's return. During the conversation it develops that Mr. Brown is a retired officer from the army and Syd White, who is a returned soldier, gives his ideas of army life. The role of Arthur Browne the big business man, was well played by Desmond Jackman, as was the part of Dorothea Browne, his wife, by Miss Marion Richardson. Frank Butler took the part of the back country woodsman, and well merited his selection for this role, while Lloyd Rowland ably depicted Charlie Henderson, also a woodsman.

Those taking part in both plays filled their rolls well and much favourable comment was heard on the dramatic ability displayed by the individual members of the cast.

The whole programme was one of merit and reflected much credit on all those in charge of the event.

FINAL INSTALMENT

SYNOPSIS: ... A luxurious five-month cruise around the world aboard the "Marenia" brings together a group of passengers for adventures, romantic, entertaining ... and tragic. ..... Like in "Grand Hotel" these passengers offer a study in human actions and reactions which unconsciously bare their souls ... These characters are aboard the ship: Macduff, dour Scotchman, single, of middle age; Miss Mudge, school teacher, spending the saving of 20 years; Angela, faithful wife of Lovat, gigolo; Dick Charleton, first officer; Clare, a person of experience; Joan, a dissipated flapper; Jenny, run-away wife, and Peter; Captain Baring, master of the ship ..... and his soul. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Joan was dead, but things did not end there. He must rouse Dick Charlton, who was obviously the person to handle this. A knock on his door brought Dick out, his book still in his hand.

"Come quick, Charlton," said Macduff, "Joan Foster is dead. She jumped into the pool. It was drained, for landing tomorrow."

For once in his life, words tumbled from Macduff's lips without deliberation. His eyes were bloodshot behind the impersonal glare of his spectacles. Dick went white and caught at his arm. Without a word he followed Macduff across the corridor and passed from brilliant light into the darkness of the pool. Briefly he hung over the edge, then covered his face with his hand. Macduff stretched out an arm and gripped him round the shoulders.

"It's all right, old man," he said, realizing that the girl had meant something in Charlton's life. "It would have been hell for her, had she lived."

"She came to my room tonight. I shut the door in her face." The words were squeezed through Dick's closed teeth. He pulled himself together. He was the chief officer. "I must report at once to Captain Baring," he said, automatically.

Once more Dick looked at Joan, whose pale body was moving softly with the rise and fall of the boat. Her rhinestones shone like cat's eyes through the green gloom. A dark trickle spread over the tiles.

Macduff went down to his cabin, which was as austere as when he had sailed. He had spurned the spears of Borneo, the leopard skins of Darjeeling, the mandarin robes of China, and was landing empty-handed. He turned on all the lights, to shake off the feeling that he had been staring for hours into a darkened cave. The sea rolled smoothly under the porthole, but the night was black and moonless. With an effort he forced the dead girl out of his thoughts. In a few hours now he would be back in Gramercy Park. Angela would be on her way to England as he was reaching home. Would her heart stand the strain of her meeting with Wyant? Would the cad consider her health in his anxiety to shake her off, now that he had met a seventeen-year-old whom he wanted to marry? Strange, strange, strange, thought Macduff for the hundredth time, that a woman like Angela should love a man like Wyant! And Jenny wild about Rumford, wild enough to have squeezed herself out through the porthole for love of him. Macduff got up and examined the brass ring. How in hell had she managed to do it? That was something he never would be able to understand. He'd see how far he could push himself through, and what the water was like from a porthole at night. Catching the rim, he pulled himself up by his arms. His head went out, and he saw the water below, smooth as black marble, but he could get no farther. His shoulders balked him at once. "Thin as she was," he thought, "I still don't see how she did it. She must have had nerve, and the strength of desperation."

With a sharp recoil he thought of Joan again, and wondered if her body were still beinig rocked on the tiles. He began to undress, hanging his tie on the rack, folding his trousers carefully, putting his coat on a hanger. Every move took time. At last he donned his striped pyjamas and pulled down the covers of his brass bed. Climbing between the sheets, he lay on his side, smoking and thinking Tomorrow they would land. Damned nuisance, customs and all that bother! Angela wouldn't be there, but on her way to England. How strangely Joan's beads had flashed in the green light. The only thing about her that had seemed alive. Macduff reached out for his bottle and poured himself a wee doch-an-dorrach. He downed it straight and put out the lights, but his pipe still glowed in the dark. Angela was an exceptional woman. She made him feel at times that life was superb, and that he could write much better if she were always near him. Without any talk, she inspired a man to effort. The glow of his pipe grew feebler. At last he banged it out on the washstand, sighed and settled himself for sleep. He could hear a grinding below, that crunching sound of the anchor chain he had heard so often lately, and always for new ports, new scenes, new faces. The engines were in reverse; the boat was swinging around. They must be at Quarantine! That meant home. They would lie there for the rest of the night. Macduff rolled over to the wall. The throbbing ceased at last, and stillness descended on the ship, broken by the laughter and cries of the last night revellers. Their voices, drowned before by the pounding sound of the boat in motion, were strangely strident now. The flying steps of excited girls could be heard along the corridors. Everything seemed extraordinarily clear now that the ship had anchored. Macduff felt as if he had emerged from the Cave of the Winds. At last he fell asleep.

Angela's name was on his lips when he awakened five hours later, looking as hard as a rock, sober and fresh. His first thought was, "I'll soon be saying goodbye." Then he remembered Joan, with a catch in his breath. Ghastly! He was sorry for Charlton. When his steward came with his coffee, he cursed him because it was cold. Dressing himself with care, he selected the dark green tie that Angela had helped him to buy in Manila. He walked along the corridor and out on the deck, to find that they were moving slowly up the bay in the haze of the early morning. The shore and the water seemed deadly dull after the sharp contrasts of the tropics. There was nothing in the neutral landscape to excite the eye until the skyscrapers came into view. The passengers did not look like themselves this morning, for they were all togged out in their city clothes. The celebrants of the night were slowly coming to life, feeling sick and depressed. Couples who would soon be parted hung together at the rail, watching the encroaching shore line with dismay. One youth was fumblingly trying to say good-bye to a girl whom he now adored. Soon he would be meeting his bride of a year, and their baby, born a month ago. His hand plucked nervously at his companion's coat. Their glances were telling their story — but nobody cared. Angela was there — cool, composed, in a black tailored costume and a small black hat, with a fur around her shoulders. Her face was drained of colour. As usual, she had dreamed through the night of Jenny's face and her thin, pale hands clutching at the water. It dawned on Macduff that none of them knew about Joan, not even Angela. He moved over toward her.

"Good-morning, Angela."

"Macduff, I'm glad to see you. I was afraid you were sleeping in. I wanted you to watch the skyline with me. It's thrilling."

"I'm sorry to see it," said Macduff gloomily.

"Not really?"

"Yes, really."

They stood close together and watched the buildings swimming into view — tall grey spires, glittering through the morning haze, like a gigantic fresco flung against the sky. Angela could imagine thousands of people going to work, typewriters clicking behind the myriad panes of glass, and captains of industry starting out on their daily tasks.

"An exciting city!" she exclaimed.

"Yes, if you get what you want in it," Macduff conceded.

"I shall feel quite dull when I get back to my tulips and roses, knowing that, all over the world, Japanese and Chinese and Filipinos and Hindu are doing these strange things we have seen them at, with everyone grasping for a little bit of happiness near at hand. And in America the great panacea is work, isn't it?"

"One simply has to work in New York or perish of boredom and disapproval," Macduff observed.

Angela's thoughts were centred on Macduff, who was looking profoundly. She hated to leave him. Such a good friend, such a good companion! Her black-gloved hand touched his sleeve.

"Macduff, I think we must say good-bye."

"Not good-bye, Angela." His lips were stiff with cold.

"Yes, my dear, at once! Now leave me before I burst into tears. I shall see you some time in England."

Macduff caught and held her hand. He raised it slowly to his chest and his eyes burned into hers.

"Angela," he said, "I — well, good-bye!" he snapped, and turned his back on her.

The gangplank was down. He walked across it in time to see Johnny embraced by his father, and to hear him say: "Dad, this is Patty, your future daughter-in-law." He saw Johnny's father catch her hands, and Patty's piquant face turned up to him, sweet and eager.

"Good-bye, Mr. Macduff," Johnny shouted. "We're going to send you an invitation to our wedding."

"Good-bye and good luck," Macduff responded, cursing as he made his way to the letter M in the customs shed. Halfway down the wharf he noticed Dick, talking ardently to a girl in a powder blue. She was handing him a card with an address, while she devoured him with her eyes. He remembered now that it had been like this at every port, always a girl waiting for Dick — except at Bombay, where he had devoted himself so disastrously to Miss Mudge.

Angela would be across the docks and on her other boat by now, finding her way to a new stateroom. He felt like driving back to see her again, to tell her some of the things that were welling up within him. Better not to see her again, better to see her some time later in England, wait for her life to straighten out. He wished that he could help her over the difficult bit that was coming. She looked so calm when he left her on the boat, the only woman he had ever known who was clever enough to accept a crushing blow without showing her distress.

He did not like being at home. He had nowhere to sit, and even his bookshelves looked unfriendly. He glanced over the titles and came to rest on one of his own books. That made him think of his typewriter, which was still in its dusty corner among his papers, safe from Susannah's cleaning. She did not dare to touch his papers. He opened it up and started to type, but his fingers were stiff from lack of practice. There was nothing to write. His mind was a blank. The bloody flatness of everything! His thoughts went round in circles — the boat, Angela, cherry blossoms, the mists of Darjeeling, the elephants at Kandy, Johnny and Patty, Jenny squeezing her way into the China Sea, Joan crushed at the bottom of the tank, Angela, Angela! He covered his face with his hands to ward off the spectres that haunted him now. Macduff was stung at last to suffering; alive as he had never been alive before. This then, was the way that Angela had felt about Lovat, and Jenny about Rumford, and Joan about Dick. It was easier to understand things now.

In desperation he went to the window and looked out at Gramercy Park, a sight that had often soothed him in years gone by. A long, deep whistle stopped his brooding. That would be Angela's ship sailing at noon. He moved to the door. Too late now. She would be gone. He sank wearily on his ruined chair, and in a blinding flash Macduff knew that there could be no life for him now without Angela.

ST. PAUL'S Y.P.S.

The regular weekly meeting of St. Paul's Young People's Union was held in the Church parlours on Monday evening with the program for the meeting directed by the President, Miss Mary Hulin. The meeting opened with the usual song service, which was followed with a prayer by Mrs. E. W. Rowland. The Scripture lesson was taken from the one hundred and nineteenth Psalm and read by Mrs. J. Balmforth. At this time the gathering was lead in some real live community singing by Rev. E. W. Rowland. Miss Fenwick, of the Public School staff, gave a very humorous reading entitled "A Debate", which proved to be a very clever impersonation of two small boys in discussion. The address of the evening was given by Mrs. Ernest Munro, who gave a fine talk, choosing for her subject "Youthful Friendships". It was a carefully planned address directed to the younger folk of this organization, and given in a manner which held their undivided attention. Speaking on many of the outstanding problems which face the modern youth, the speaker very cleverly held the interest of her listeners by giving illustrations and original stories. Older people have to study a great deal to understand the modern youth, and it has always been so. But we should strive with everything at our disposal to keep up to the rapid trend of time, and in so doing we will remain youthful ourselves and young folks will not shun us in fear of criticism, but rather seek our council. We can't expect to do the thinking for our youth. God gave them a mind with which to to stimulate original thought and we must not stifle it. The speaker portrayed keen interest in the life of our youth, that older people should encourage youthful friendships which gives a boy or girl self-confidence and promotes trust and ultimately good citizenship. Our youth is naturally honest and upright and justly dislike suspicion. Such organizations as the Young People's Union have as their object the creating of a healthy environment, in which these young lives may develop to their fullest stage. This address was brought to a close with the reading of a very interesting story depicting an outstanding picture of idealism. Mr. Bob Hedley delighted the audience with a pleasing solo entitled "I heard my mother call my name in prayer", accompanied at the piano by Mrs. E. W. Rowland. The final number on this interesting program was an unique "observation" contest directed by Miss Mary Hulin and the usual Mizpah Benediction closed the meeting.

Mr. E. Pyear is attending a meeting of the Cheese Patrons' Marketing Board at Ottawa.

THROUGH THE OFFICE WINDOW

BY The OFFICE OWL

Howdy folks!

———oOOOo———

Here comes another of those weeks when all the folks in our section have been moving along so peacefully and nice that there isn't even a start on our column.

———oOOOo———

Accordingly, there ain't much to comment upon except the weather, which we can unhesitatingly say — "Aint so hot".

———oOOOo———

No good for nothin'.

———oOOOo———

The boys can't coax a muskrat within eighty feet of a trap because the water's too high and every night freezes so deep Arnold Wannamaker is disgusted with himself for cutting his summer's supply of "cold" a month too early.

———oOOOo———

At the rate it's been freezing the last few night (about two inches a night) in a week or so the ice crop would have far surpassed what the butchers already have stored away.

———oOOOo———

We often remember those old-time public school readers and to our mind comes those lines:

———oOOOo———

"March winds will blow and we will have snow,
And what will the robin do then poor thing —
Just sit in the barn, and keep himself warm
And shove his head under her his wing, poor thing!"

———oOOOo———

Them words should be changed, and accordingly, if that verse is still in the school books we're going to send the following to the Minister of Education and have it inserted in place of the former:

———oOOOo———

March winds will blow and we will have snow,
And freeze Henry Wallace again, poor thing —
"O, death, where's thy sting," you Will hear Henry sing
And put his feet back in the oven, poor thing!

———oOOOo———

But here it is April, and again we are reminded of verses that also appeared in the reader.

———oOOOo———

They started out: "April showers bring May flowers..."

———oOOOo———

Remember?

———oOOOo———

But we had our April showers two weeks ago, and if you don't believe it, ask Dr. Carleton.

———oOOOo———

The Doctor ("Barney" to youse guys) is still suffering from the ailment commonly known as "water on the cellar".

———oOOOo———

He's an opportunist though.

———oOOOo———

The water has been there so long and to such magnitudinous extensions (ain't that a dilly?) that the Doctor has sent away for a shipment of Peruvian clams (if they're the kind that make oysters) and he's going to start a bunch of them to work.

———oOOOo———

He expects that by fall he'll be able to hire a bunch of Norwegian divers along about November and supply Joe Whitehead with all the oysters he can sell.

———oOOOo———

We should never have made any mention about those rhymes in the school readers though, for it has had an undesirable effect —

———oOOOo———

Something that we try each week to keep down, but here it is again —

———oOOOo———

And

———oOOOo———

We feel a verse coming on!

———oOOOo———

It often strikes us sort of funny
When we think of days gone by;
Those peculiar things that happened
And the pranks that kids would try.

———oOOOo———

So just for fun let's ramble
To the years that used to be —
Back to times when Jim Lagrow
A kid, on pappy's kneeCMFWYP was
Just a kid, on pappy's knee.

Though we never really knew them
At the time which we shall mention,
We're sure they will not labor
Under false misapprehension.

———oOOOo———

That would be back 'bout the eighties—
When these boys were merely lads—
'Round the time when pride and joy they were,
Of mothers, and of dads.

———oOOOo———

That'd be around the time, of course,
Young Anderson was courtin'
And the folks, who thought him much too young,
His efforts was a-thwartin'.

———oOOOo———

Whenever Bill would start to scrub,
In the wash-room, up above,
The folks would say with real dismay:
"By Crackey, Will's in love!"

———oOOOo———

For little at that time did Bill,
As his first long suit he wore,
Have any thought that some day he Would run a grocery store!

———oOOOo———

We imagine Edmund Carleton
(As in school he'd try to think)
Was more concerned of marbles
He had hid beneath the sink!

———oOOOo———

And thoughts of operations,
Headaches, worms, the mumps, and such,
Never dawned on little Edmund
As he laughed and giggled much!

———oOOOo———

But in those days, we imagine,
'Bout the happenings in France,
Young Ham Johnston looked quite nifty
In knee-length, brown velvet pants.

———oOOOo———

And to school he journeyed daily,
Taking posies to his mentor.
Little dreamed he, at that time,
That he'd be a great inventor.

———oOOOo———

In those days, we imagine,
That our good friend, Fred McKee
Always had an eye for business,
Always tradin' then, was he.

———oOOOo———

Well he knew that in the future
He would run a thriving store,
And sell everything from blankets
To a first class lawn mower!

———oOOOo———

And little Clifford Baker —
In those days out on the farm —
Sat in wonder and amazement
As his actions caused alarm.

———oOOOo———

Why, to him it wasn't sinful
Just to take a little can
And tie it to the neighbour's dog,
And laugh, as home it ran!

———oOOOo———

When the folks were always telling
'Bout potatoes needing hoeing,
Billy West could hold no interest
In how high the weeds were growing.

———oOOOo———

And when the cream was ready,
And young William had to churn,
If you'd said "You'll own a creamery",
'Twould have caused his face to burn!

———oOOOo———

Books and figures always bothered
Harold Martin, past endurance.
Never did it cross his childhood thoughts
That he'd sell life insurance!

———oOOOo———

For at that time little Harold
Worried not, of this or that —
For 'tis said his main ambition
Was to be an acrobat.

———oOOOo———

Tommy Cranston hated studies,
Traded marbles for a sling;
And he "worked" his own profession
'Till he's now the Barter King!

———oOOOo———

And to such extent he's learned it —
All the fine points of the art—
'Till he'll trade a blinkin' hen-coop
For your grey mare, and the cart.

———oOOOo———

Back in those days Tommy Donnan
And Bert Eggleton were scholars,
And they went to school and studied
How to turn their work to dollars.

HIGH - FIDELITY - SOUND

Neither one cared much for sausage,
And we think them peeved, you'd make
If you'd told them that in future
For a livin' they'd saw steak!

———oOOOo———

And we'll bet that back in those days
Whiteheads' little offspring, Joe,
Had no thought of hash and onions
As a means of making dough!

———oOOOo———

Nor of having ice cream parlors,
Candies, organges and "pop".
All he did just then was eat 'em—
And he knew not when to stop!

———oOOOo———

In them days when little Gerald
Raised his face towards the sky,
All the Clutes began to shudder
Just for fear his voice he'd try.

———oOOOo———

But the young lad kept on working —
Never practice did he cease —
'Till no more it kind of sounded
Like a wheel that needed grease.

———oOOOo———

Then George Bailey, once with scissors
Cut the hair all off the cat —
Snipped the pretty ostrich feathers
Slick and clean from mother's hat.

———oOOOo———

So, in later years we find it —
Barber Bailey cuts your hair,
Smooths it down with dandy tonic
And he combs a parting there.

———oOOOo———

Walter Wright, when but a youngster,
Oft would trade his fistic punches,
And he'd take on all the young lads,
And he'd lay them out in bunches.

———oOOOo———

So, wee Walt was made a baker.
Now he punches hard at flour,
And his efforts are not wasted
As he toils from hour to hour.

———oOOOo———

Frankie Woodbeck had a hobby
In the days that he once seen,
Of hitching up a lot of things
To the household sew machine.

———oOOOo———

So in later years he labours
As a dignified mechanic,
With an art that in those childhood days
Would send his folks in panic!

———oOOOo———

The folks bought Tailor John McGee
(Who was but a youngster then)
A brand new suit of Sunday duds,
And they nearly fainted when

———oOOOo———

They found the young lad, with the shears,
Had ripped 'em all to bits,
And that night Johnny went to bed
Quite reddened, where he sits.

———oOOOo———

Next morning Johnny went to work
And toiled with might and main.
Next night the folks all saw the suit
Was quite itself again!

———oOOOo———

To this very day he labours
With his tools he'll make a cloak
In which you can go to weddings,
Or be buried, when you "croak."

Them were the days when teachers
Applied the hickory stick,
And upon young Robert Patterson
They had to lay it thick!

———oOOOo———

For Robert thought of many things
That horrified the teacher,
His parents, and the neighbours,
And he mystified the preacher!

———oOOOo———

They never thought, about the time
He'd break 'most every rule,
That later in young Robert's life
He'd take to teachin' school!

———oOOOo———

And on it goes, but in years to come
Our memories, we'll find,
Will often turn with longing
To the days we've left behind.

———oOOOo———

And we'll declare a "little slam",
We think we know our "bids",
When we say we'll ne'er have better days
Than those, when we were kids.

———oOOOo———

We'll be seein' yuh!

IRVINE — BELCOUR

On Saturday, March 21st, at eleven o'clock, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Belcour was the scene of an interesting wedding when their eldest daughter, Marjorie May, was united in marriage to Mr. Gerald Osbourne Irvine, eldest son of Mrs. Utman and the late Mr. Charles Irvine, Holloway. The drawing room was tastefully decorated in pink and white, the ceremony taking place under an arch of evergreen, with white bells and pink and white bows.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, entered the drawing room to the strains of Lohengrin wedding music played by Miss Thelma Reddick, of Belleville, whose gown was of navy lace. The bride looked charming in her gown of sapphire blue crepe with eyelet trimming, and carried a bouquet of Butterfly roses, sweet peas and fern, with pink chiffon bow. Miss Aleita Horton was bridesmaid and wore a chic gown of powder blue crepe. Mr. Charles Irvine, brother of the groom, acted as groomsman, with the Rev. A. G. Sinclair officiating.

After receiving congratulations and best wishes, the bride and groom entered the dining room, decorated in pink and white, where a wedding dinner was served to about thirty immediate relatives and friends.

The bride's mother wore navy blue crepe, and the mother of the groom was in black triple sheer crepe.

Later in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Irvine left by motor for Oshawa and Toronto, the bride travelling in a navy swagger suit with satin blouse and braid trimming, with grey accessories. Her travelling dress was navy crepe with cut velvet trimming.

The groom's gift to the bride was a cheque, to the bridesmaid, a handsome amber pendant, the pianist, a Derny's vanity set, and the groomsman a fountain pen. On their return the happy young couple will reside at Halloway. The bride and groom received many costly and useful gifts.

COUNCIL MET MONDAY NIGHT

Agenda Keeps Members In Session Until Past Midnight Hour

The regular meeting of the Stirling Council was held in the Council Chamber on Monday night with the Reeve, W. C. West, in the chair and all members of Council present.

Police Constable S. Eggleton, speaking for a resident on the Old Marmora Road, stated that the sidewalk on this street was in a bad state of repair and dangerous for pedestrians using the same. Reeve West thought there was no use of repairing it temporarily, while Councillor Cranston suggested that the matter be left in the hands of the streets committee. It was finally agreed to lift the present walk and then Council will view the situation and decide what action is to be taken.

Mr. A. Keegan, who has a property on East Mill Street, informed the members of Council that he had filled in a ditch in front of his premises in making an approach, and had been told that the Council didn't like it. He further stated that he was of the opinion that Council should provide tile for his crossing. Reeve West advised Mr. Keegan that the municipality didn't provide any material for the construction of private crossings. This street is a part of the county road system and county officials would be advised of his action.

A protest over the payment of a bill in connection with the building of a concrete sidewalk in front of his property was lodged by Mr. James Montgomery. He said he had been informed several years ago that his share had been paid but he was still being billed for it. Reeve West promised that the matter would be investigated.

Mr. Thos. Ward, president of the Stirling Citizens' Band, addressed the Council relative to procuring a grant for the payment of use of the Theatre at some future date. On motion of J. S. Whitehead, seconded by C. B. Rollins a grant of $25.00 will be paid the Citizens' Band when they use the theatre.

A communication from the Ontario Department of Health advised the Council that the local Medical Health Officer could no longer be paid by the fee system but must be paid a yearly salary; another from the local Board of Education invited members of Council to meet with them on Tuesday night, April 7th, at 8 o'clock; and another from the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities requested the payment of the annual fee. On motion of C. B. Rollins, seconded by D. Burkitt, the communications were received and fyled.

A form from the local branch of the Bank of Montreal with respect to the use of a rubber stamp on documents for deposit only was authorized signed by the necessary officials, on motion of T. Cranston and D. A. Burkitt.

Messrs. J. B. Belshaw and J. S. Morton were present as a delegation from the local Horticultural Society seeking the use of the theatre on April 15th for holding an illustrated lecture. On motion of T. Cranston and D. Burkitt, the Horticultural Society was given a grant of $25, the same to be paid when theatre is used for the lecture.

The question of taxes was next discussed by members of Council. Mr. J. M. Magee, collector, was present and tabled a list of all those owing the municipality for taxes for the years 1933-34-35. According to this report the outstanding taxes for 1933 are $105.39; for 1934, $676.42; and for 1935, $2,121.61, making a total of $2903.42. It was agreed by Council that these taxes must be collected at once and unless payment is made drastic measures will be taken to collect them. The collector was instructed accordingly and unless taxes are paid within five days after the receipt of notice being given the bailiff will be asked to take action.

There are also a number who have been evading the payment of poll tax within the municipality and unless this is paid the delinquents will be summoned to appear before a Magistrate.

On motion of T. Cranston and D. Burkitt the Clerk was instructed to write the Department of Health for a ruling on the new law in regard to payment of the M.O.H.

Councillor Cranston brought up the matter of the material used for filling between the curb and the sidewalk on the main streets. He stated that a number of merchants had complained to him about it and suggested that a layer of crushed rock be placed on top of the present fill. The matter will be looked after by the street committee. It was also decided to engage Mr. A. McGee to clean the streets during the summer under the same agreement as last year.

A resolution moved by D. Burkitt and seconded by J. S. Whitehead, urging the Department of Highways of Ontario to appoint a local issuer of motor licenses, and that the time for issuing licenses be June 30th of each year, was unanimously passed. A copy of the resolution was ordered sent to Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, and Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, local member.

The roof of the theatre was reported to be in need of repair and on motion of T. Cranston and D. A. Burkitt the Village Solicitor will be instructed to see that the Houston Company fulfil their contract in connection with the said roof.

No action was taken on a request by a local merchant for permission to put a drain across Mill Street. The replacing of the fill at the sides of the dam washed away by the recent flood was left in the hands of the Property Committee and Reeve W. West, to use their judgment in the matter.

On motion of Cranston and Burkitt, the following accounts were ordered paid:

ATTEND CHURCH

About twenty-five members of the Stirling branch of the Canadian Legion B.E.S.L. attended a special service held at St. Paul's United Church on Sunday morning in commemoration of the anniversary of the Battle of Vimy Ridge, in which the Canadian forces played such a prominent part. The parade was formed at the Legion headquarters on Front St., and headed by Regimental Sergeant Major Fred Houchin and Stirling Citizens' Band proceeded to the Church, where they were officially welcomed by the pastor, Rev. E. W. Rowland. During the course of his remarks Mr. Rowland paid striking tribute to the bravery and ability displayed by the Canadian forces in this memorable battle. Special music was furnished by the choir under the direction of Mr. G. L. Clute, with Miss Betty Conley being the soloist for the occasion.

At the conclusion of the service the members of the Legion paraded to the local Cenotaph, where two minutes' silence was observed in memory of those who fell overseas. Last Post was sounded by Bugler James Ward, following which they returned to their quarters and were dismissed.

JOINT MEETING SCHOOL BOARD AND COUNCIL

TWO ORGANIZATIONS MEET TO DISCUSS FINANCIAL MATTERS — ANNOUNCEMENT MADE OF RETIREMENT OF PRINCIPAL R. G. LAWLOR OF THE HIGH SCHOOL STAFF — REGRET EXPRESSED

A special meeting of the Stirling Board of Education was held on Tuesday evening, when the members of that organization met with the Council of the Village of Stirling to discuss matters pertaining to the financing of the former body.

Board members present were: E. A. Luery, Chairman, and Walter Wright, vice-Chairman, along with Messrs. H. C. Martin, J. B. Belshaw, E. G. Bailey, C. F. Linn, E. Bailey, J. S. Morton, W. H. Patterson, Dr. H. H. Alger and Dr. C. F. Walt.

Those representing the Council were Reeve W. C. West, and Councillors T. Cranston, C. B. Rollins and J. S. Whitehead.

In his opening remarks the Chairman welcomed the members of the Council, stating that it had been a great many years since the two bodies had met together.

Dr. Walt explained that this was the first joint meeting since 1910, when the two bodies held a joint conference relative to the appointment of an Agricultural Representative in the County of Hastings.

In referring to the purpose of the present meeting, Dr. Walt stated that at the time correspondence was received from the Council regarding the expenditures of the Board, the latter Board had taken no action, feeling that the time for the making of certain arrangements had not yet arrived, but it was felt by every member, that the two organizations should be brought together, so that each may become more thoroughly acquainted with the question to be discussed. He felt that the Council must have had definite reasons which warranted the forwarding of the recommendations. So far as the teaching staff of the Schools was concerned, it was felt that the Board of Education had been fortunate in choosing a staff which has, at all times, received the highest grade of recommendation from the various inspectors. The present staff was producing results which were well above the average, when compared with the results of schools throughout the Province. Splendid co-operation between the teachers and the Board had meant much in maintaining a high standard of proficiency. Salary comparisons were made both of four years ago, and of the present year, which showed that the local Board had not been extravagant, and was well within the average amount paid by other schools.

After expressing his appreciation of the invitation extended to the Village Council to meet with the Board of Education, Mr. West explained that the body he represented had, at all times, laboured in the interests of the taxpayer. He gave a brief summary of the outstanding taxes, and explained that in a great many cases these would have to be written off. That had important bearing upon the debts which must be met. The Board of Education should not, he inferred, feel that it was receiving undue criticism. The Council, a body appointed by the taxpayers, was the constant receiver of criticism. All taxpayers are contributors to the County rate, which forms a great part of the local tax rate. Mr. West expressed words of commendation for the efficiency of the present staffs, several members of which had been for some years in the local schools. He spoke highly of the long and efficient service rendered by many members of the Board. It was only requested by the Council that some steps be taken to lower the school rates.

Councillor Cranston thanked the Board for their kind invitation to him to be present on this occasion. He went further into detail regarding the amounts of taxes outstanding at the present time. He felt that the savings of a life-time were, in most cases, not netting for the ordinary tax-paying farmer any amount comparable to to the salary of the present-day teacher in secondary schools. He gave comparisons of salaries paid in schools of this district. Mr. Cranston asked for information regarding the increase in the teaching staff from that of some years ago. The finances of the municipality were in such a condition as to warrant application to the Government so that adjustments may be made.

Councillor Whitehead felt that it was not a case of making changes in the members of the staff. He felt that certain re-adjustments could be made. He made mention of a recent change made in Campbellford, which was advocated by government officials. The present staff, he thought, was a very efficient one, but the circumstances did not warrant the expenditure of as large amount as that now paid in salaries. All money, he said, comes from the one source, the taxpayer.

Councillor Rollins spoke at some length along similar lines as the other members of the Council, stating that he felt even a small reduction in the school expenditures would be a help to the already-overburdened taxpayer.

Mr. Martin stated that in his experience as a member of the Board of Education, many teachers had made application for positions on the staff. Many of them at lower salaries. "But, few of them presented the qualifications called for. They could not keep up to a standard of proficiency for which this board has laboured for years."

J. B. Belshaw felt that as a member appointed by the County, he should keep in touch with both organizations. "It is," said Mr. Belshaw, "possible to procure the services of teachers at less salary, but the experience of past years should, and I think has, taught us a lesson. As a member of the property committee, he felt that every consideration had been made in an effort to keep expenses at a minimum. Mr. Belshaw felt that the capable teachers' committee could make satisfactory arrangements with the teachers.

The thought that probably the requests made by the Council were too drastic, was expressed by Mr. E. G. Bailey. He felt that satisfactory arrangements could be made without following the suggestions contained in the Council's letter to the Board.

Wm. Patterson, the recently-appointed member to the Board, believed that the ordinary investment was not making the returns demanded by the teaching profession. He was in favour of periodic joint meetings of Council and Board of Education.

"Is the expenditure of this Board responsible for the uncollected taxes?" queried Walter Wright. What effect the reduction of salaries would make on the taxpayers' prompt payment of taxes was something he wished to have explained. The present staff is working in complete harmony with the Board of Education and with the pupils. He felt that satisfactory arrangements should be made without making any change that would effect the efficiency of the staff.

"I am not," stated C. F. Linn, "in favour of disturbing the present staff, but if the Council cannot continue, how can the School Board?". He too welcomed the Council members to the meeting. Discussions such as this, he believed, would result in a more thorough understanding of municipal affairs.

Mr. Ewart Bailey advanced the suggestion that the idea of a twenty-five per cent. reduction should have been impressed upon every member of the County Council, so that all the schools would have felt the necessity of reductions instead of doing it one at a time. No one municipality then, would be accused of cutting and slashing at salaries which were even higher in other centres.

"No one present would be any more pleased to see his taxes lowered than I. This business of uncollected taxes is news to me. I was under the impression that the taxes were kept well in hand." If some would not pay, was the other class to pay double? In years past, Mr. Morton stated, the Council and Board have worked co-operatively. The Board had always considered quality, even the interest of economy. The quality of the work done should be the first consideration. Those parents who live in the country are sending their children to the school at a great expense. If inexperienced and unqualified teachers should be responsible for an extra year's study resulting from failures at examination time, these parents would not be satisfied. Rural parents, too, contribute toward the County taxes. Are they to be dissatisfied? "In conclusion," said Mr. Morton, "I see no reason why one-half the taxpayers should pay all the taxes without efforts being made to collect from the other half."

It was felt by many members of the Board that a reduction of even twenty-five per cent. would not have

Miss McCann, a pianist of exceptional ability, is a teacher of pipe organ and piano music in Eastman School of Music, at Rochester. Her many friends in Stirling will wish her every future success.

WALL COLLAPSES

Some time during Sunday night or early Monday morning, about thirty feet of the retaining wall on the south side of the Memorial Park and Mr. E. Lawrence's Service Station collapsed and fell into the creek. In its descent the wall took several lengths of guard rail and the landslide that accompanied it carried several shrubs planted in the Memorial Park. The collapse of the wall, which was built several years ago at a considerable expense, is attributed to it being undermined by the recent flood waters. It is not known when rebuilding operations will commence.

ADDRESS ON "ART OF LIVING"

Mr. Harry Lovibond Addresses Young People's Society at St. Paul's

The regular meeting of St. Paul's Young People's Union was held in the Church parlours on Monday evening under the direction of the Christian Endeavour department. The opening exercises and devotional period were conducted by Miss Mary Hulin, President, and Rev. E. W. Rowland led in prayer. Scripture lesson was taken from the ninth chapter of Luke and was read by Mr. Reg. Mathison, first vice-President, who assumed charge of the second part of the program. Mr. Arthur Duncan offered a very pleasing solo "Leave it to Him", accompanied at the piano by Mrs. E. W. Rowland. Mr. Harry Lovibond was the speaker of the evening and gave a fine address on "The Art of Living." The public press of today, stated the speaker, get every detail in covering stories of calamity, national and international disputes, tornadoes, floods, mutual distrust in government bodies, political graft and corruption. Although in many cases greatly exaggerated these conditions do exist throughout the world and will continue to do so until man places greater value on the spiritual side of life. Many through the agencies of science extend their knowledge with every day that passes, yet their study reveals to them the many things they do not know. The trend of scientific study throughout the coming days will be into the spiritual realms and will show us the true value of steadfast faith. Man is faithful in the planting of a tiny seed, and he buried it and has faith it will germinate and spring forth. As nature thrives in its well balanced state, so also should good will and fellowship among men prevail. Rev. J. E. Beckel, of Rawdon, was present and when called on for a few remarks, gave two splendid stories in keeping with the Easter season.

Should Be Granted

As suggested in these columns some weeks ago action is being taken by the local Council in an effort to have the Department of Highways appoint an issuer of motor licenses in Stirling. At Monday night's meeting a resolution asking for such an appointment was unanimously passed and a copy will be sent both to the Minister of Highways in the Hepburn Cabinet, and Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Minister of Health, and local representative. Why motorists of Stirling and surrounding community have to go to other centres to procure their markers is hard to understand, when practically every municipality within a radius of twenty miles has its own license issuer. The Village of Marmora was the last to be thus favoured, and the country surrounding it is not nearly so thickly populated as that surrounding Stirling. Being situated at the intersection of two highways, and the trading centre for a large number of motorists from the surrounding country, Stirling is an ideal place for the sale of motor licenses. We have been informed that previous applicants for the position of issuer of motor licenses have been told that the sale of licenses would not warrant paying for an office here. This argument, however, is far from convincing, because there are citizens here who would be willing to assume this work in their places of business, the same as is done in practically every small municipality, without any outlay for office rent. We understand the issuer is paid a small commission on the licenses sold, therefore the appointment of a local man would not necessitate any further expenditure by the Department, but it would prove an accommodation for a great number of motorists. We hope the Department sees fit to comply with the Council's request.

A Thought For Easter

From the beginning of time men have hailed the coming of Spring as the resurrection of the earth from the death of Winter. Long before the Christian era began, every religious cult celebrated in one way or another the returning season of growth and sunshine, with its promsie of life beyond the grave. If the dead trees and grasses could so demonstrate immortality, why should man alone die to rise to more?

In a few days the whole Christian world will join in testifying, on Easter Sunday, to its faith that death is not the end, that life goes on forever, is new and unknown but more glorious forms, that we earthbound plodders can no more imagine than can the maple tree, shedding its scarlet robe of Autumn under the killing breath of Winter's frosts, imagine the glory of the Springtime garments of green which it will wear in its new life.

The belief that this is true, that there is a life beyond death, a life of release from toil and sorrow for such as truly believe and strive to live up to their belief has been the most powerful force in the history of our modern civilization. In this faith men have found a common tie of mutual service for the common good. All of the concepts of duty, honour, self-denial, self-respect and loyalty, upon which great nations have been founded, derive from the faith which is the very heart and root of Christianity.

Let no one say that the faith of our fathers is outmoded, that it no longer has its old power to inspire our lives. We are living in troublous times, and those of little faith are crying aloud that the old truths have failed, that the old beliefs are dead. But even as they scoff, Spring begins her perennial symbols of the eternal life. And this coming Easter Sunday millions upon millions of believers will meet to testify anew to the truth that their faith is a living faith, that it still rules the hearts of men.

What About Softball?

Now that the hockey season is over and the players have hung up their hockey sticks until another winter rolls around, thoughts naturally turn to bowling, tennis, horseshoe pitching and other forms of amusement. These various clubs have been functioning for several years and it is assured that there will be plenty of activity among the members of these organizations this coming season. The bowling club enjoyed one of its best seasons last year and the members are anxiously awaiting the opening of the coming season. The Tennis club also enjoyed a considerable measure of success last year, and plans will shortly be made for this year's activities. The horseshoe club, which was only organized a couple of years ago, had a large membership last year and proved to be the class of the League in which they were entered. Electric lights were installed on the courts and the members will soon be practising tossing the shoes again.

While the above mentioned organizations are certain to operate this summer there is one form of sport that is rarely mentioned and that is softball. Two years ago a town league was organized and carried on for a part of the summer, but last year there was no softball played locally at all. Consequently Stirling fans were forced to attend the games of the rural leagues to see their favourite sport, and even these leagues didn't function to the same extent as in former years. As a result interest in the game lagged here and whether anything will be done this year or not is hard to say. It is still too early in the season to play softball, but if the softball fans are to enjoy this form of entertainment during the coming summer, action will have to be taken within a short time.

There are some who would like to see a baseball team organized in Stirling again and entry made in the hard ball league operating in the southern part of the county, while others favour the softball. Before the formation of a hard ball team is considered, a suitable playing field would have to be provided and a great deal of work done to put the diamond in shape. In addition, there would be the cost of equipment, as it is doubtful if there are many of the boys who have gloves, etc., of their own.

But before thinking of organizing either a softball or hard ball team a berth should be obtained in one of the leagues. The neighbouring village of Tweed is entering a team in the Belleville softball league, and it might be possible for a local team to secure entry in the same league. According to reports this league is having some difficulty in lining up enough teams. Providing entry could not be secured in this league there is a league operating in Trenton which might welcome a local entry.

We would like to see Stirling represented in a strong league. There are plenty of young fellows in the village and surrounding community anxious to play ball, and with a little practice would hold their own in any league. There is no way in which a village can gain more publicity than through a team of worthy representatives in any line of sport. We are anxious to feature sports in our columns during the current season, and if we are informed of a date selected for a meeting to organize a local team we will gladly advertise the same. So boys, get busy and let us have the date. We will do the rest.

CURRENT COMMENT

Tomorrow is Good Friday, and the last day of the Lenten season.

—x—x—x—

Evidently the amount of damage done by Spring floods cannot be estimated as soon as the torrents have abated. It has taken several weeks for the wall at the Memorial Park to finally crumble as a result of its foundations being weakened by the overflow of the local pond.

—x—x—x—

Apparently this Spring has been anything but a productive one. Reports indicate that trappers are not meeting with any marked degree of success, and tappers are complaining that the maples are not pouring forth the fluid which becomes syrup, in any great quantity. Evidently the fuel bin is the only great centre of activity yet.

—x—x—x—

Last year's radio licenses expired on the 31st of March and owners of radios will be obliged to purchase new ones. The rumour has persisted that the government intended abolishing this license, but the past week reminders have been received from the Department of Marine and Fisheries through the mail that the license fee is again due.

—x—x—x—

News despatches tell of loss of life and severe injuries as the result of fires from various causes. Spring is a good time to clean up necessary fire hazards such as dirty pipes and rubbish which has accumulated during the long winter. Stirling has had a number of chimney fires in recent weeks with one occurring this week. Fortunately they have practically all occurred during the day, and have been noticed in plenty of time to allow the firemen to extinguish them without any great loss to property. Had they occurred during the night there might have been an entirely different story to tell. We urge our readers to make certain that all fire hazards are eliminated at once.

—x—x—x—

Next Wednesday, April 15th, the local Horticultural Society are sponsoring an illustrated lecture in the Theatre, to which all are invited. The lecture will be given by Mr. John F. Clark, Field Lecturer of the Ontario Horticultural Association, and every flower lover in Stirling and surrounding district should make it a point to attend. The local Society has just finished a drive for membership and over three hundred boxes of premiums will be distributed to the members. The officers are particularly anxious that every member be present, as an opportunity will be given for questioning the speaker relative to any horticultural problems.

—x—x—x—

With the Spring winds and warmer weather the cleaning-up period for householders of Stirling will soon be here. In connection with the annual clean-up, there is always the problem of where piles of rubbish, ashes, etc., may be thrown. The village has provided a public dump for that purpose, but unfortunately every person does not go to the trouble of taking their rubbish, or seeing that it is taken, to the proper place. Instead, it is thrown almost anywhere but where it should be. Each year the Council receives numerous complaints of rubbish being thrown on the outlying streets of the village or on someone else's private property, and last year considerable money had to be spent in cleaning up some of the spots which had become obliterated with piles of rubbish. In providing a public dumping ground the council has done its duty, and it is almost inconceivable that some citizens are so devoid of a sense of civic pride as to throw their rubbish on the streets. If a warning is not sufficient to put a stop to this kind of thing some sterner measure of action will have to be taken.

What Others Say

THE SAME EVERYWHERE

(Midland Free Press)

We all admire the fearless leadership you are giving us in the Free Press," said a Midland man the other day, but when asked if he would not write the paper a letter expressing his views in favour of municipal reform he declined for fear of the effect it might have on his business. Why should all the courage be expected of the newspaper? We are in business, too!

LET THEM KNOCK

(Trenton Courier-Advocate)

If a man is knocking you or your business don't chase him out of the community. He is one of your best friends. The knocker may be so thick-headed as to think he is doing you an injury but in the last analysis he is one of your best business getters. The knocker talks, people listen disinterestingly, and then go to the persons who have been knocked and give them business. And business is what the buiness-man wants.

PERSONALITY

(Blue Bell)

The importance of personality, since we live in a world of people, should be obvious. It is that something which makes its possessor stand out from the crowd. Personality is allied with character, and character is made up of honesty, self respect, self-reliance, courage, courtesy and charity. Character is interior — personality, exterior. Strength, a factor of personality, is presence, poise and power. Four points should be considered in determining personality:

1. Good manners. Manners enter into just about everything we do. Good manners lubricate the machinery of personailty. Back of good manners is courtesy.

2. What we say and how we say it. How much time do you devote to worthwhile reading?

3. How we walk. Good bearing is a part of personality.

4. The kind of clothes we wear. Dress sensibly, suitably and neatly.

NAMES, PLEASE!

(Financial Post)

"Cavalcade" is the name of a new monthly magazine published in Toronto as a protest against inefficiency in government, an excess of partisan politics and mounting taxes and debts. It is "edited by the Cavalcade Club", and published by the "Excelsior Publishing Company" for "The League for Better Government." A full page advertisement for the "League for Better Government" declares that it has been "founded by a group of prominent business and professional men." The cause is a worthy one, but it is not likely to be successful promoted by people who remain anonymous. The "prominent business and professional men" should announce their names. The Cavalcade Club should publish the list of its officers and directors. The magazine says that "we alone" control this paper and its policies; but who are "we"? What this organization has set itself to do is too important to be done in the dark.

A STUDY IN BLUE

(Kitchener Record)

Of the seven colours of the rainbow blue is probably the most famous, Paddy's green notwithstanding. History tells us that the early Britons painted their faces blue. The staunch Presbyterians were called "true blues" and the Covenanters having adopted blue as their colour, red being the royal color. There was a Blue Squadron in the British Navy in the 18th century. Nelson was at one time "rear-Admiral of the Blue." The Royal Horse Guards were called the "Blues" from their leader, the Earl of Oxford, the "Oxford Blues". From the blue ribobn worn by the Knights of the Garter has come the phrase as the highest mark of distinction. An athlete who represents his university is called a "blue," particularly at Oxford and Cambridge. Temperance reformers had a Blue Ribbon army. Then too, we have the blue books of the government. The bluestocking is a derisive name for a literary woman. When a person is in the dumps he says he is feeling blue and usually looks it. A vessel flies the Blue Peter when about to leave port. Policemen and firemen wear blue and the Quebec Conservatives are called "blues". The picture would be incomplete without mentioning the pessimists who preach "blue ruin" usually on "Blue Monday" so as to get their discouraging thrusts at the psychological moment.

WM. A. CADMAN DIES SUDDENLY

William A. Cadman, miller at Holloway, died shortly after eight o'clock on Saturday morning from a heart seizure while working around the mill. The deceased had eaten a hearty breakfast and was in apparent good health when he left for the mill and some time afterwards he was found by James Akey, an employee, slumped over a bench where he apparently had sat down after the attack.

The late Mr. Cadman was born in Thurlow township 62 years ago, the son of the late James Cadman and Elizabeth Bowler, and had resided in the district of Halloway practically all his life. He conducted the grist mill there for a number of years and was well known and highly respected by a wide circle of friends, who regret his sudden demise. He was a member of Holloway United Church and active in church work. Fraternally he was a member of L.O.L. No. 251. Left to mourn are his widow, formerly Edith Lott and two sisters, Mrs. Fred Ashley, West Huntingdon, and Mrs. John White, of Harlow.

NEWS OF INTEREST FOR BUSY FARMERS

Innoculating Legume Crops

When legume crops are being planned for spring seeding, consideration should be given to the question of innoculation. This is particularly recommended for such crops as alfalfa, sweet clover and soya beans, especially when seeding for the first time. Innoculation consists in adding a culture of the proper bacteria to the seed at the time of sowing. It is easy to carry out and helps to insure success with the crop.

Care of the Farrowing Sow

A little extra care at farrowing will often save a greater percentage of the litter. Include some bran in the meal ration to prevent a feverish condition. A week or ten days before farrowing place the sow in a farrowing pen that is dry, clean and free from draughts. Bed the pen with short straw. Keep a watchful eye on the sow at farrowing time, but do not disturb or assist her unless absolutely necessary. Provide a warm bran slop for the sow a few hours after farrowing.

Early Marketing Means Better Prices

Now is the time to start the long season crops of vegetables required for the early market. At the Central Experimental Farm the following varieties are recommended:

Cabbage: Golden Acre, Copenhagen Market, Early Jersey Wakefield.

Cauliflower: Early Dwarf Erfurt and Snowball.

Celery: Paris Golden Yellow, Golden Plume and Phenomenal.

Onion: Sweet Spanish, Prizetaker (Denia), Southport White, Yellow and Red Globe for growing transplants.

Pepper: Harris Earliest, California Wonder.

Potato: Irish Cobbler which should be sprouted for four to six weeks prior to field planting.

Tomato: Abel, Alacrity, Canadian, Earliana, Bestal, Bonny Best or John Baer. The two latter are used for the main crop.

Grass and Clover Seeds

A fair demand continues for most items at moderate prices. The lower Ottawa Valley reports an active trade. Over 100,000 pounds of certified timothy seed have been sold to date and the demand is keen for this quality of seed at 5 cents per pound. It is believed that about 50 per cent or 600,000 pounds of the timothy in this area has been sold. Commercial No. 1 grade seed is moving freely at 4½ cents per pound.

In the St. Lawrence counties it is believed that about 60 per cent of the timothy crop or 600,000 pounds is still held by growers. Sweet clover in this area is moving slowly at prices ranging from 3 cents to 4 cents per pound for grade No. 1.

The demand for seed in northern Ontario is quiet although some timothy has moved at 4 cents per pound for grade No. 1. Offers for No. 1 red clover range from 8 cents to 9 cents and for alsike 12 cents to 15 cents. Very little red clover or alsike is available in this part of the province, except in mixtures. The low prices have discouraged the threshing of a lot of mixed seed and timothy in this part of the province.

In south-western Ontario red clover and good timothy are in demand for cleaning purposes and substantial quantities are still held by growers. There is a fair supply of sweet clover also throughout the country but very little alfalfa, alsike and Canadian blue grass, which have already been absorbed by the trade. The present demand is good for alsike and alfalfa, fair for red clover and poor for timothy and sweet clover.

The Seed Supply

Another springtime has come and another seeding season when farmers naturally become seed-minded.

The first thought of a farmer should perhaps be given to an estimate of the quantity of seed likely to be required for the area to be seeded. In this connection sufficient seed should be provided so that the rate of seeding of grasses and clovers especially, be generous. The next consideration should be given to the quality of the seed to be used. This consists of the selection of suitable varieties and seed of a high and known grade whether purchased or home-grown, thoroughly cleaned to remove weed seeds, inert material and light-bodied or undeveloped seed or kernels. Good seed should not only give a high percentage of germination, but should also possess the necessary reserve of plant food to sustain the seedlings against condition by being plump and well filled.

Experimentalists and plant breeders are emphasizing strongly the matter of adaption of varieties to section of the country as a whole. Selection of variety, therefore, calls for more special attention than may be generally supposed. Suitability of variety should be determined by date of maturity, yield and market value. Efficient cleaning contributes in a large measure towards the good quality of seed. This may be accomplished by using a properly equipped and operated hand fanning mill. If this is not available a central seed cleaning plant should be employed. Assisted by government subvention in many instances such cleaning plants have been established at different points.

The Warble Season

Cattle owners are advised to examine their cattle closely at this season for evidence of warble grub infestation. The grubs that have been migrating in the animal during the past ten months are showing up now and will continue to appear during April, May and June.

The cattle owners that did a good job of treating their animals and thereby destroyed all the grubs a year ago, need not expect to find very many grubs this season, perhaps one or two per animal. Untreated cattle of a year ago are likely to be severely infested and their backs are in bad condition.

A report has just come in from Barrie Island township saying that the reeve of the township had just examined 100 head of cattle on one concession line and failed to find any grubs. Four seasons of treating to kill the grubs on Barrie Island township cattle has removed the warble and beetle fly pest. What a change! In four years to reduce the incidence of warble infestation from an average of 23 grubs per animal down to freedom from grubs. When the Barrie Island township cattle were first examined in March, 1932, one cow had 121 grubs in her back. This picture has entirely changed and plenty of proof established to convince all that the killing of the grubs breaks the chain in the warble life history. Kill all the grubs and there can be no more Heel Flies or Warble Flies.

One million Ontario cattle were treated in 1935. The cattle improvement in reduction of the Heel Fly and Warble Fly has been as great during the two years in which the cattle of Oxford and Elgin have been treated, that the work is again under way with the County Councils behind the movement to the extent of paying the cost. All counties, six in number, that undertook the work of Warble and Heel Fly control in 1935 are repeating their efforts again this season. More townships have undertaken the Warble control work this season than last. Many individual herds — the property of the more progressive farmers — are receiving treatment this year that will kill the grubs and thus prevent them from developing to the fly stage.

THE FARMER FEEDS 'EM ALL

The politician talks and talks,
The actor plays his part;
The soldier glitters on parade,
The goldsmith plies his art.
The scientist pursues his germ
O'er the terrestrial hall,
The sailor navigates his ship,
But the farmer feeds them all.

The preacher pounds his pulpit desk,
Brokers read their lengthy tape;
The tailor cuts and sews his cloth
To fit the human shape.
The dame of fashion, dressed in silks,
Goes forth to dine or call,
Or drive, or dance, or promenade:
But the farmer feeds them all.

The workman wields his shiny tools,
The merchant shows his wares;
The aeronaut above the clouds
A dizzy journey dares.
But art and science soon would fade.
And commerce dead would fall,
If the farmer ceased to reap and sow,
But the farmer feeds them all.

BELLEVILLE MARKET

Pussy willows, maple syrup offered in large quantities, and a gradual decline in eggs and dairy products were noted on the Belleville market on Saturday morning, marked by a large attendance of both buyers and sellers.

Eggs were cheaper, selling at from 14 and 15 cents for smaller grades and pullets' to 16 and 18 cents for larger size. Butter also was cheaper selling at an average price of from 23 to 26 cents per pound. On some of the counters in the inside market a few rolls were being disposed of at 50 cents for the two pound weight.

Chickens were cheaper, selling at from 60 to 80 cents for the single bird, with the average price of $1.25 paid for a pair. A few ducks were held at from $1.25 to $1.50.

Maple syrup, thick and heavy, found a ready sale at prices ranging from $1.80 to $2.00 the gallon, with containers included.

Apples, offered in larger quantities were among the chief purchases on the outside market, selling at an average price of 50 cents the peck for Delicious and Snows, with cooking apples held at 35 cents the peck.

Seed potatoes were being quoted at $1.80 for the registered variety while seed grains were also reported to be moving in fairly satisfactory quantities, according to local dealers. Little change in prices in the seed section was reported, however, in spite of the steady demand.

A firm market with fractional rise in prices of livestock has been noted during the past week by dealers. No fresh fish were displayed.

BONARLAW

The regular meeting of the Springbrook Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Mel Fitzgerald on Wednesday, March 25, with a fairly good attendance. The meeting opened with the Maple Leaf and the Institute Ode, also the Lord's Prayer; Mrs. H. Jones presiding. The roll call "A Healthful Habit", was well responded to. An interesting talk on Diphtheria and other health matters was given by Dr. E. A. Carleton, of Stirling. The Doctor stressed the importance of the use of anti-toxin, and intimated that the authorities are willing to co-operate in every way possible that all in the township might be able to use same. Mrs. Geo. Bailey gave a paper on the motto, "Good Health is better than riches". Mrs. Everett Sine gave a splendid talk on "Liquids and Semi-Liquids"; also gave a demonstration of how a tray of food should look when carried into a sick room. Miss Iva Brown gave a comic reading entitled "Mr. Flu". Mrs. J. F. Baker put on a musical contest. The meeting closed in the usual manner, after which a dainty lunch was served and a social half hour enjoyed.

On Monday evening of last week a large number of the friends of Miss Gertrude Prince of Springbrook gathered in the Sunday School rooms of St. Mark's Church and showered her with many beautiful and useful gifts. An address was read, wishing her much joy and happiness. Miss Prince is to be married in the near future. She replied in a few well chosen words and thanked all for the lovely gifts and asked all to visit them in their new home. The ladies served a bountiful lunch and with Canon W. G. Swayne acting in his usual capable manner as chairman, a musical program was given. Those taking part were Mrs. (Rev.) W. G. Swayne, Miss Jean Robinson, Mrs. S. Mason and Messrs Sidney Mason and J. F. Baker.

Word has been received here of the death in Toronto of Mr. Max Baynham who was telegraph operator for the C.P.R. a number of years ago at this point.

Canon Swayne preached to a large congregation on Sunday last, Palm Sunday, in St. Mark's Church, taking as his text "Crucify Him". Said Canon Swayne "When we commit sin we crucify Christ afresh". Mrs. J. F. Baker sang as a solo "The Palms", accompanied by Mrs. Swayne on the organ.

Over the years PERFORMANCE and SAFETY grew hand in hand

McLAUGHLIN-BUICK

THERE'S life and action to McLAUGHLIN-BUICK performance that defy the descriptive powers of even a seasoned owner. In the same way, it's hard to define McLAUGHLIN-BUICK'S safety, except as that comforting feeling of ease and well-being which comes when you take the wheel. . . . For here is a car in which performance and safety are no mere matter of features or groups of features, but of time and experience and testing. . . . McLAUGHLIN-BUICK'S superior performance dates not from yesterday, or the day before that, but from the day twenty-eight years ago when McLAUGHLIN-BUICK standardized on the Valve-in-Head engine. The finer safety of the car didn't just "happen" with the introduction of closed bodies and four-wheel brakes (both of which McLAUGHLIN-BUICK popularized)—but grew over the years from deep-set roots of sound designing, responsible engineering and the conscience that craftsmanship fosters. . . . You can feel these things for yourself, by coming to our showrooms and taking the new McLAUGHLIN-BUICK for a trial. It offers more powerful, Anolite-pistoned Straight Eight engines . . . Tiptoe Hydraulic Brakes . . . improved Knee-Action . . . new Turret Top Bodies by Fisher, with Fisher No-Draft Ventilation . . . automatic starting . . . and Safety glass throughout. Restrictions on the use of dogs in deer hunting are to be relaxed. The new provisions will permit two hunters to use a dog and the number of dogs permitted for larger parties will be increased.

The committee learned also that the ordinary $1 gun license will not be sufficient to permit the use of a high power rifle during the big game season. If any hunter carries such a gun he must have a big game license.

MOUNT PLEASANT Y.P.S.

On Friday evening, April 3rd, over fifty from Mount Pleasant journeyed to Wellmans to enjoy a social friendly visit.

Miss Priscilla Cook, president of Wellmans Y. P. S., graciously welcomed the visitors and all joined in singing a hymn, with Miss Carlyn Johnson presiding at the piano. Mr. John Coggins, President of the Mount Pleasant Y.P.S., replied to the welcome, and Mrs. John Reid offered prayer. Miss Helen Spencer read the Bible lesson. A vocal duet "Come to Jesus" was given by Miss Vera McAdam and Mr. John Coggins with Miss Edna Thrasher, as accompanist. Mrs. Roy Thrasher outlined the topic on "God's Friends from other Lands", and she said "We white people should be so grateful that the word of Christ was brought to us that we would be willing to share Christianity with our less fortunate friends. The male quartette, Messrs J. Coggins, H. Higgs, N. McConnell and K. Holmes, sang an appropriate selection "My Friend Divine." Mrs. Frank Smith gave a sacred reading entitled "A lady sold by auction". Rev. J. E. Beckel briefly addressed the gathering admonishing folks to cultivate friendliness to others. A musical number with an encore, was given by Mrs. Merle Spencer, piano; Miss Faye Andrews, guitar; Messrs Herbert Higgs and Robert Melville, harmonica and Jew's Harp. Mrs. Cyrus Summers gave a humorous selection entitled "Young America". Mrs. Kenneth Holmes delighted those present with two musical numbers, guitar and harmonica. Mr. Billy McAdam recited, "Idle Ben." The Misses Edna Thrasher and Frances McKeown gave a piano duet "Waves of the Ocean." Miss Faye Andrews gave two vocal solos with guitar accompaniment: "The Burglar Boy" and "A Parody on my Bonnie". The service closed with an appropriate selection by the male quartette "Till we meet again we'll bid adieu". The Wellmans folk served the visitors a dainty and appetizing lunch and votes of thanks were reciprocated by both leagues and another happy evening was enjoyed by all present.

TWEED RESIDENT OBSERVES 96TH BIRTHDAY

A few brief weeks ago, Mr. Samuel Bowers, Tweed's "grand old man", observed his 95th anniversary of his natal day. On Saturday, April 4th, Mrs. Margaret J. Allen, Tweed's "grand old lady", celebrated her 96th birthday at the home of her daughter, the late Mrs. (Dr.) W. M. Mather, and grand-daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) A. C. Locke.

Mrs. Allen was born in Demorestville, Prince Edward County, the eldest of a family of thirteen children, born to Mr. and Mrs. Burleigh. She lived for many years in Napanee, and later in Marlbank. She was married in the late "sixties" to John Allen, who passed away about 26 years ago. Her husband was a successful lumberman, engaged in the lumber business in Hastings County, retiring several years prior to his death in 1910.

LITTLE DAMAGE DONE BY FIRE AT CAMPBELLFORD

Prompt response of the Campbellford Fire Brigade averted an outbreak at the Selrite Store, Front Street, shortly after ten o'clock on Friday morning. When the fire-fighters arrived they found the furnace pipes red hot and the chimney blazing. Hampered by dense smoke, the volunteers, directed by Acting Chief C. B. Williams, made their way to the basement and quickly extinguished the blaze. M. B. Sayers, proprietor of the store, stated that aside from slight smoke damage there was no loss to stock or property.

TWEED IN DISTRICT LEAGUE

Tweed will again be represented this year in the Belleville District softball league and six teams have already been lined up. It is expected that the local mush-ballers will play under the colours of the Gordon Steel Works. At a meeting of the league in Belleville on Monday night, Tweed was represented by Gerald Quinn and H. Leal. It is not known whether Bill Gowsell will be back to take his place in the mound this year, as we understand he has been offered a position at Kirkland Lake. The local softball club will likely hold a meeting in the near future to organize for the season. — Tweed News.

the desired effect. It would not make the burden of the taxpayer lighter, at least it would not effect the taxpayer to the extent that he would profit by having his taxes lowered a few cents at the expense of having the present school system, with its excellent results, changed and probably ruined.

In reply to a statement that all people should be paid what they are worth, Reeve West expressed his thanks, stating that those on the Council should know by that to just the extent their services as members of that body were valued. No report, he stated, had been made to the local Council by members appointed by that organization as members of the Stirling Board of Education. It should be done. He explained the several laws pertaining to the collection of unpaid taxes, and pointed out that by the time penalties and other fees were deducted the Council would have very little left. Relief costs, etc., were mounting and the tax collections were on the decline. Approximately $3,000 is now outstanding in cemetery accounts and in the neighbourhood of $7,000 in corporation taxes.

Mr. Cranston pointed out that the Stirling School drew a much higher rate from the County than any of the surrounding schools. Those who have to pay the taxes are not allowed to earn any sum which can be compared with the teaching profession or the probably more-educated groups.

Dr. Walt stated that while Stirling was successful in attracting more County pupils to Stirling School than did some others, the County rate was naturally higher. That could be easily explained, he felt, for the County refund to the Stirling Board of Education each year took care of the County rate paid by the taxpayer. In the past four years reductions amounting to nearly fifteen per cent. have been made in salaries, a larger amount than that of many of the neighbouring schools. Government grants, to academic schools, were to be readjusted, and it was believed, were to be increased. In all cases teachers who specialized in certain subjects had been given the preference when changes on the staff were necessary.

After speaking in glowing terms of the services of Principal R. G. Lawlor, of the High School, Dr. Walt announced that he had received correspondence containing the intimation that at the end of the present term Mr. Lawlor intended to resign. Due to ill health he would be unable to continue as a member of the teaching staff. Mr. Lawlor had, it was felt by everyone present, done much toward character development in the school, having been held in the greatest respect by those in his classes. The teaching staff had improved under his capable guidance. Each member present expressed the regret that Mr. Lawlor would not be able to continue as a member of the staff.

In speaking of the proficiency of the teaching staff Mr. Martin made a reference to the Middle School English results two years ago. In one school Mr. Martin informed those present, the results were only thirty-six per cent. successful. On the same examination Stirling pupils were 82 per cent. successful. The Fifth form in the local school had grown until now twenty-two students are enrolled in that course. Few outsiders realized that the first-year university courses could be taken in the local High School. After many years of constant building, the Board of Education were not in sympathy with any move to lower its standards.

Considerable discussion between the members of the two organizations took place, and several matters explained, and although several members of the Board of Education felt that probably a small salary re-adjustment could be made, all were of the opinion that no changes should be made in the personnel of the staff, which would interfere with the very efficient manner in which it was at present working.

It was moved by J. S. Morton that the Teachers Committee proceed to make arrangements for engaging of next year's staff, and seconded by J. B. Belshaw.

The Secretary was instructed to convey to Mr. Lawlor their gratitude for the very co-operative manner in which he had conducted the affairs of the school and the keen interest taken in the welfare of those pupils passing through the school during his term in Stirling.

The Country Doctor

A Novelization of the Twentieth Century-Fox Film, Starring the Dionne Quintuplets With Jean Hersholt, Dorothy Peterson, June Lang, Michael Whalen and Slim Summerville

Chapter I.

The wheezy hoist engine began to cough and roar, and the chains about either end of the huge spruce log tightened themselves.

Mike Scanlan, lumberman, braced himself as he took another hitch in the guide rope. But his thoughts were not on the hoisting engine nor on the huge spruce log, and he was unconscious of the cries of the other loggers:

"One coming and two to go!"

"And, brother, that's all THIS summer!"

"Headin' south, Big Boy, headin' south tomorrow!"

Mike's thoughts were all of the south country. Tomorrow the boat would pull out for the south country and the loggers would be aboard, with money in their pockets. The long summer of back-breaking logging was over. The last boat before the freeze was about to leave. There would be Montreal, lights, warmth, gaiety, places where a fellow could have a good time for his money and his labour.

Mike Scanlan's thoughts were far from the spruce log now swaying above his head as it slowly creaked its way upward to the balcony-like upper doors of the great saw-mill. His thoughts were far from Moosetown itself, the scraggily, unpainted village that squatted on the edge of the north woods and scrabbled a hard living from logging.

Mike didn't hear the sharp warning "Watch it, Mike!" nor the agonizing yell of "Mike!" that followed immediately after. He was just vaguely and suddenly conscious that something had happened and that the big log was tumbling down on him from above. The guide rope whipped out of his hand and suddenly Mike Scanlan was just a crushed and helpless body underneath the log, like a cricket under a twig.

The other loggers leaped toward him, tugged at the log, tugged at Mike, whose sweat-beaded head projected from under the log, eyes rolling, faintly groaning.

* * *

A sudden angry shout from above caused the sweating, struggling loggers to lift their eyes momentarily from the moaning Scanlan.

"Lift it, you fools! You want to tear his head off?"

It was MacKenzie, the lumber company's manager in Moosetown, and therefore the town's most powerful citizen. A hard, rough man, nobody ever accused MacKenzie of being afraid of anything. As the men looked upward, he leaped from the balcony, landing with a thump at their side.

Shoving forward those who were struggling with the log, MacKenzie bent his bulk and strength to lift it at the end. The veins stood out in his forehead and the cords of his neck tightened as he heaved at the log. It rose slowly.

"Get him out, quick," panted MacKenzie, his booted legs trembling as almost the whole weight of the log fell on his shoulders.

Dragging at arms and shoulders, two men pulled Mike clear. MacKenzie and the others dropped the log with a soft thud to the ground.

MacKenzie straightened up, spread his broad shoulders back. He glanced down without any expression at all at the silent Mike, who lay unconscious, one man holding his head.

"Carry him over to the bunkhouse and call the Doc!" directed MacKenzie briefly, and strode without further hesitation towards his office in the sawmill building.

It happened often in the logging country. The broken, bleeding bodies of men were part of the price of "getting out timber."

Luigi, another lumberman, was already off in search of the doctor. His frightened face told of a serious accident as he stopped men in the street, rushed into stores, with a breathless question, "Seen Dr. Luke? Dr. Luke been here today?"

Yes, the Doc was home, one passer-by volunteered, but the flying Luigi was gone before there was any answer to the startled citizen's "Why?"

The doctor's modest little house looked peaceful enough as Luigi, gasping for breath by now, panted through the wire gate and up the front walk. Beside the door was a simple gilded sign, "Dr. John Luke." On the porch lay Tobey, the doctor's dog. Luigi burst in the front door without knocking.

He blundered his way down a narrow hall to what he knew — and everyone in Moosetown knew — was the doctor's consultation room. And there, despite his fear and exhaustion he stopped short at sight of a strange tableau.

* * *

Seated in a straight-back chair, his hand clutched to his jaw, sat Jim Ogden, the constable of Moosetown. Before him stood Dr. Luke, a short, solid man with twinkling eyes behind the heavy-lensed spectacles, and gray hair standing shocked in a pompadour. He was contemplating a pair of forceps, in the jaws of which was a newly-extracted tooth.

"Biggest one this season, Jim!" Dr. Luke was saying as Luigi burst into the room.

"Doc, Mike Scanlan's got both legs crushed down at the mill! Can you come right down?"

"Sure," replied Dr. Luke, laying down forceps and tooth. "Rinse your mouth out with this, Jim," he said, handing a glass of antiseptic to Jim. "Where's Mike?"

Answer, instructions and question blended in an even flow without emphasis on either. Instruments were already going into the worn, square black bag, coat and hat were already finding their way to the doctor's person.

"They got him down in the bunk house," panted Luigi.

"Run over to Nurse Kennedy's house and get her! Wash it out!" The commands, issued in clipped tones to Luigi and Jim Ogden, respectively, came with equal force. And the doctor, black bag trailing behind him, popped out the door.

Ogden looked sourly at the glass of antiseptic and poured it furtively into a flower pot. Then he fished out a plug of "eatin' tobacco," bit off an enormous quid, and marched out of the house. Tobey, the dog, looked up placidly. He was used to these tumultous comings and goings.

The trip to the mill was a matter of minutes. Through the bunkhouse, smelling of pine boards, blankets and food, went the doctor, Luigi trailing after. "I got him in the mess-hall, Doc," volunteered one-legged Walter, the camp handy-man. "Laid him out on a table — give you more room.." The doctor brushed past him into the mess hall.

On a table, the lower half of his body covered by a blanket, lay Mike Scanlan, groaning, grime and sweat mingling on his contorted face.

"What've you been doing to yourself, son?" queried the doctor, his practiced fingers already at work on the crushed legs.. "Trying to get banged up so you'll have to stay here with me all winter?"

* * *

Mike writhed, and between set teeth came his words, "Doc ..... I was grabbin' the boat tomorrow ..... goin' south for the winter ....."

"Ain't going to be no south for you. Tomorrow's the last boat out!" began Walter.

"Get me some hot water — boiling!" interrupted Dr. Luke.

Walter turned to Sloppy, the cook, unwilling to leave the table. "Let's have the water, Sloppy," he said. Then to the suffering Mike. "What if you lose BOTH of 'em, Mike," he said. "I get along all right with one, but I can't figure out how a guy's gonna get along without no legs a-tall. I—"

"Get out, Walter!" cut in Dr. Luke's sharp voice. ".... and see if Nurse Kennedy's coming," he added a little less impatiently. Walter turned reluctantly from the table just in time to greet Nurse Kennedy as she swept in the door.

Mike was pleading earnestly, desperately with Dr. Luke.

"Doc", came the husky voice in the still room. "If you've got to cut 'em off, I don't wanta live!"

"Who said anything about cutting 'em off?" interrupted Dr. Luke, kindly but firmly.

"I can't go through life crawling on my belly," almost sobbed Mike, sick with pain and a growing horror. "I don't wanta live if I gotta do that. I wanta die!"

"No you don't Mike!" soothed Nurse Kennedy gently. "And you WON'T die!"

"It's the pain, Mike," reassured Dr. Luke, his hands busy. "You're going to be all right ..... Here, take a deep breath." And he brought an ether cone near the agonized face of Scanlan.

Weakly the suffering man tried to push it away, mumbling "I don't want to live. I don't want to live."

"Look here, Mike! You trust me, don't you?" Dr. Luke's voice was a strange mixture of severity and gentleness.

Mike nodded a weak assent.

"Then just breathe this, and go to sleep. Leave it to me. You'll be all right ....." Deftly he slipped the ether cone over Mike's face. "That's a good boy. Now just say 'I'll be all right...I'll be all right.....'" The doctor's quiet voice had a persuasive, almost hypnotic tone.

From under the cone came Mike's boyish, trusting voice in a low murmur, "I'll be all right. I'll be ....."

Dr. John Luke glanced at Nurse Kennedy as the rigid body beneath their hands relaxed. Softly, soothingly he murmured.

Mike was pleading earnestly, des perately with Dr. Luke. "I don't wanta live!" he sobbed. "I wanta die!" "No you don't Mike!" soothed Nurse Ken- nedy gently. "And you won't die."

An old lady visited an asylum and displayed great interest in the inmates. One old man particularly won her compassion.

"And how long have you been here, my man?" she inquired.

"Twelve years," was the answer.

"Do they treat you well?"

"Yes."

After addressing a few more questions to him the visitor passed on. She noticed a smile broadening on the face of her attendant, and, on asking the cause, heard with consternation that the old man was the medical superintendent. She hurried back to make apologies.

"I am sorry, doctor," she said. "I'll never go by appearances again."

MAX GERALDI, OF COBOURG, DIED ON SATURDAY

Max Geraldi, well-known hockey player, died in Cobourg hospital at 12.30 a.m. on Saturday, after an illness of a few weeks.

A member of the intermediate hockey team, of Cobourg, he was one of the best players in the league, and noted for his sportsmanship. For a number of years he was in the grocery business in Cobourg, later selling out and becoming a commercial traveller. His wife, formerly Miss Helen Ryan, of Tweed, and three children are left to mourn; also his mother, who resides in Pembroke, and four brothers.

Deceased was well known in this district, for many years being a member of the Tweed hockey team, along with three brothers, George, Alex and Fred, who still reside in Tweed.

AGED MARMORA RESIDENT SEES WELL

Possibly the holder of the best record for eyesight in Marmora is Jacob Wilkes, who if living on October 3rd of this year will be celebrating his eightieth birthday. He has never used glasses and is still able to read as well as ever. Recently this fact was drawn to the attention of a visiting eye specialist, who tried Mr. Wilkes' powers of observation with fine print, and found the report about the latter's vision to be true. "You are one out of a thousand," said the specialist. "You must have taken good care of yourself."

"Let me tell you something," said Mr. Wilkes in his slow, decisive speech. "I think much of the bad eyesight is brought on by the people themselves. They close their eyes too tightly when they are washing their face. I have always had the habit of keeping mine open and treating them with water as I would a part of my face."

TWO KILLED BY TRAIN AT BRIGHTON

Two persons are dead and another was in a critical condition in Belleville Hospital on Friday night, following an automobile-train crash at the Prince Edward Street Crossing at Brighton. Charles Woolston, 60, and his 18-year-old daughter, Doris, were killed instantly when the coupe, driven by Woolston, was struck by a Canadian Pacific locomotive hauling a freight train. Mrs. Woolston was taken to Belleville.

Two trains approached the crossing just before the crash. Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railway tracks parallel each other through Brighton, and it was believed Woolston saw the C.N.R. train approaching and intended to stop between the tracks to permit it to pass.

Apparently the father failed to see the C.P.R. freight train, although railway officials said the wigwag signal was working, and he drove directly into the path of the locomotive.

The body of the girl, a telephone operator, was mangled terribly, being carried 100 yards beyond the crossing. Woolston was carried seventy yards, and his wife was found near the wrecked car, about seventy feet from where the crash occurred.

The family had just left their home about a block from the crossing, enroute to Trenton, to attend a show and do some shopping. Woolston was caretaker of a bank here.

Coroner Dr. H. C. Rundle, of Brighton, adjourned the inquest for a week, pending further investigations by Inspector Frank Gardner of the Provincial Police at Belleville.

CANADIANS AND THEIR INDUSTRIES—AND THEIR BANK

• TOBACCO GROWING •

TOBACCO FARM OWNER: "Henry, you and the other men are doing fine work and I hope you know I appreciate it."

TOBACCO FARM WORKER: "Thank you; I figure you know that we appreciate our steady jobs and good pay, too."

OWNER: "Oh, well, Henry, I don't deserve all the credit. I never could have started or carried on this business properly, without the assistance of my bank, the Bank of Montreal. Like hundreds of other tobacco growers, I have borrowed every year from the Bank to pay for plants, fertilizer and labour; and soon after I began the Bank loaned me money I needed for barns and other equipment. Of course, I've kept up my end by paying off the loans when I sold my crop. There's nothing like good banking credit for making a sound business, regular profits—and giving employment."

WORKER: "So it's your bank, too! I think most of my friends in this district keep their savings at the same bank. Some of us have safety deposit boxes there, too."

• • •

In the development of the tobacco industry, as in other new and old Canadian industries, the Bank of Montreal has played an important part. From the time the plants and fertilizer are purchased in the spring and on through the growing season when money is needed for labour, equipment and buildings, the Bank's loaning facilities are at the disposal of its hundreds of tobacco-growing customers.

Howdy folks!

———oOOOo———

How's everything?

———oOOOo———

We were going to say "How's business", but we thought we had better not.

———oOOOo———

On Saturday we asked one local merchant that question, and the answer we got made us feel as if all our folks had passed away suddenly and we had forgot to go the funeral.

———oOOOo———

You know — that kind of a story that makes you feel as if your house had burned down and you were in it.

———oOOOo———

While we were feeling badly, awful badly, terrible in fact, another chap came along and we walked on down town with him.

———oOOOo———

In the course of the conversation, we got talking about business again.

———oOOOo———

And this gent proceeded to say that things were a bit better — he had turned over a bit more than the corresponding period of last year, and considerable above the average for the same period of the last five years!

———oOOOo———

Well, we felt like a kitten with our head stuck in a salmon can.

———oOOOo———

Who was right?

———oOOOo———

Either one or the other — both or all three of us — were just plain "nuts" and nobody willing to do anything about it.

———oOOOo———

We just came to the conclusion that either one isn't or the other ain't — we all was — if so why not — or something —

———oOOOo———

Dog tax time is here again.

———oOOOo———

Well — once more we just have to pause and remark, that if any other town has more loose dogs running around in it than Stirling, we wouldn't want to live in it.

———oOOOo———

They're thicker than the fleas on an East African monkey.

———oOOOo———

And just like the above-mentioned fleas — none of 'em wear tags.

———oOOOo———

At least practically none.

———oOOOo———

Like a certain brand of cigarettes that are advertised "Not a cough in a carload", you'll find our village pets without a tag on a train load.

———oOOOo———

The nice thing about Stirling dogs is this —

———oOOOo———

The owners are never troubled with them much around the house —

———oOOOo———

They've gone to the neighbours.

———oOOOo———

Everybody in town that has a dog seems to think that the neighbours, if they show any signs of intelligence at all, should appreciate how really lovable that pooch is and put up with it.

———oOOOo———

If people who "just love dogs" must have dogs, why don't they keep them within loving distance so they'll be able to pour their affections on them easier.

———oOOOo———

There's no place like home — even for the dog!

———oOOOo———

We'd like to see the Pied Piper of Harlem come and try to do the same with our surplus street dogs as he did with the rats in that old story —

———oOOOo———

The rats followed him when he played his flute!

———oOOOo———

But we'll bet a nickel to a pinch of anything that he couldn't persuade the flock of mutts that are daily on the village streets to follow him if he played his horn so hard he blew a hole in the back of his neck!

———oOOOo———

If he could guarantee that he had a new bunch of flower-beds and grass plots for them to dig up they'd run over him trying to get there!

———oOOOo———

Oh well, animals are funny things anyway —
Us girls must have our fun!

———oOOOo———

And the wall around the swimming pool just couldn't take it!

———oOOOo———

On Monday night this wall, in places ten or twelve feet high, just toppled over and fell in.

———oOOOo———

Some say the recent flood damaged the foundation —

———oOOOo———

Others have different stories.

———oOOOo———

And worse than that —

———oOOOo———

We feel a verse coming on!

———oOOOo———

Well, it seems Provincial governments
Can't seem to get along —
They claim the Opposition
Is always in the wrong.

———oOOOo———

And lately them Conservatives
Have been fighting quite a battle
'Cause the Agriculture Minister
Brought home some English cattle.

———oOOOo———

So a guy called "Holly" Ackers,
From Carleton County hailing,
Has lifted Tory anchors
And to Grit ports he's sailing.

———oOOOo———

So he's uttering many statements
That are of sarcasm full —
He's made 'cause Mr. Marshall
Brought home an English bull.

———oOOOo———

And hearing that the minister
Was being pricked with "thorns",
Ham Johnston, he jumps in and takes
The bull right by the horns!

———oOOOo———

Ham went to Toronto with a rope,
And led the critter home —
And late that night he tied the thing
Just so it couldn't roam.

———oOOOo———

And he fixed it up quite cozy,
Made a bed, and fixed it well
With hay that he had borrowed
From his Grit friend Neil Bedell.

———oOOOo———

But listen folks — while telling
Of what went on that night
For its accuracy we can't vouch—
We were told by Walter Wright.

———oOOOo———

For Walter claims he watched it,
And saw just every action.
He tells us that he thought right then
'Twould cause dissatisfaction!

———oOOOo———

But to get back to the story —
(Ham didn't have no barn)—
So he tied up Mr. Marshall's bull
Where he thought it safe from harm

———oOOOo———

Well, late that night, Bill Anderson
Was on his way to bed,
When he heard a noise outside his house,
And thereon, stuck his head

———oOOOo———

Out through an upstairs window,
And viewed the situation —
He saw that Johnson tied the bull
'Hind Lawrence's Service Station.

———oOOOo———

So Bill he pulls his trousers on,
And he — the crazy goose —
Went down, and what d'yuh think he done?
He let the darned thing loose!

———oOOOo———

Well, then and there the trouble came,
And now the swimming pool
Is no fit place for kids to play
When they get out of school.

———oOOOo———

The animal got sort of wild,
And kicked and pawed the wall,
'Til what was once our pride and joy
Just isn't there at all!

———oOOOo———

It tore cement foundations,
(As if to play a lark)
It knocked the breakwater to bits
That went around the park.

———oOOOo———

And now cement foundations,
That once was two feet thick,
Are toppled o'er, and fence and all
Are lying in the crick!

———oOOOo———

And e'en behind poor Eldin's
The wall was torn away.
The village Council has to build Another one, some day.

———oOOOo———

For Lawrence now has no place
To stack his pile of wood,
And bottomless the spot now is Where once his fuel stood!

———oOOOo———

And worse than that — the story
Goes on and on from there —
For of the bull poor Ham can find
Not even hide nor hair!

———oOOOo———

So we've been scoutin' 'round a bit
In search of information —
And what we learned has filled us
With a sense of indignation!

———oOOOo———

We've found that E. G. Bailey
Was prowlin' late that night,
And he too saw the wall fall in
And sink clean out of sight.

———oOOOo———

He claims his information
Just ain't for publication,
But he can throw a lot of light
On a messed-up situation.

———oOOOo———

He claims that as the animal
Was pawin', puffin', prancin',
By golly, what should meet his eye
But Alderman Tom Cranston.

———oOOOo———

And tumbling 'round the swimming pool,
(His rubber boots was full)
Tom lost his Sunday under-shirt
While wrasslin' with that bull.

———oOOOo———

And Mr. Bailey claims that Tom
Just couldn't get it tied —
And threatened it with sudden death —
He'd even tan its hide!

———oOOOo———

Well, he later got a rope around
The crazy critter's middle —
And strings he tied around it 'til
It looked more like a fiddle.

———oOOOo———

Tom led the bossy up the road,
Intendin' he would lead it
Up to the local stockyard, where
He promised it he'd feed it.

———oOOOo———

Well, everything was goin' nice,
'Till a car went by just then
And Johnson's bull, just turned and knocked Poor Tommy flat, again.

———oOOOo———

Tom let it go — his feelings
Just were hurt beyond endurance.
He figured if he didn't — well,
He'd lose his life insurance!

———oOOOo———

But Cranston's eyes were snappin'
(And wasn't his face red?)
For up street came Harold Martin
And behind, the bull he led!

———oOOOo———

The pesky thing, it walked along
Quite sprightly, cute and gay —
And when it passed poor Tom
It turned its head the other way!

———oOOOo———

So H. C. took the creature home;
His folks thought 'twas a mirage,
When they first saw that Harold
Had a bull tied in the garage!

———oOOOo———

But worst of all, the animal
Ain't quite so well, these days,
It can't stand up, it's legs are bad.
(It either leans or sways)

———oOOOo———

Well, Harold ain't no doctor,
So Stub Rollins he's applyin'
The liniment and bandages
While on its back it's lyin'.

Stub ain't just sure, but probably
He thinks that just the fright is
What's preyed upon the poor thing's nerves
And given it neuritis!

———oOOOo———

Or else the poison from its teeth
Has gone all through its system.
And if it strikes its vocal cords
Why into knots 'twill twist 'em!

———oOOOo———

So if you see Friend Rollins
With his satchel, on the street,
You'll know he's making efforts
To put Ham's bull, on its feet.

———oOOOo———

But there's awful trouble broodin',
And we ain't sure where 'twill cease —
For all these boys we've mentioned,
Of that bull, claim a piece!

———oOOOo———

It's funny how some fellows
Just can't leave things alone —
They monkey 'round with everything
As if it was their own!

———oOOOo———

And we can't see why Anderson
Had to play that awful trick—
The wall would still be 'round the pool
Instead of in the Crick!

———oOOOo———

But just the same there'll come a day
To for his sins atone;
By gosh! He'll wish that he had thought
And left Ham's bull alone!

———oOOOo———

But as we said — we ain't just sure
That all these facts is right —
We had our own ideas 'bout
What happened on that night!

———oOOOo———

P'rhaps Walt Wright has misled us.
He'll be punished, and in full,
If he misinformed the Office Owl
About Ham Johnston's bull!

———oOOOo———

You know, before Walt told us,
We had drawn our own conclusion,
But Walter's yarn has thrown us
Into real states of confusion.

———oOOOo———

We thought, perhaps, that Eldin
Had pushed that sidewall down,
So that if the creek (like Riley's tune)
Would just go "'roun' and roun'"

———oOOOo———

The wood might find its way again
To the place where once it stood,
And make its owner grin with pride
As p'raps none other could!

———oOOOo———

But we had the wrong idea,
Eldin didn't do it 'tall
'Twas Anderson and Johnston's bull
That ruined that there wall.

———oOOOo———

Sure — we're crazy too!

———oOOOo———

But —

———oOOOo———

We'll be seein' yuh!

MEMORIAL OF SILVER JUBILEE

Presentation Made to St. John's Anglican Church by former Resident

An unique memorial of the Silver Jubilee of the Accession of King George V. has been presented to the Anglican Church of St. John the Divine in Stirling, Ontario.

It consists of a Super-Altar of Italian white statuary marble inlaid with stones from holy shrines and historic spots in the vast empire over which His Majesty reigned. On this super-Altar the bread and wine will be consecrated at all future celebrations of the Holy Communion in St. John's.

Set in the face of the Super-Altar, in the form of a cross-quadrant, are tile-shaped stones from the Holy Land (gifts from the Rev. Canon Danby and Rev. J. Khadder, of St. George's Cathedral, Jerusalem — the latter a graduate of King's College, Nova Scotia, the oldest College in Britain's Overseas Empire).

The centre of the cross consists of two tiles. The smaller, of dark marble, is from the Field of the Shepherds near Bethlehem, where the Angel of the Lord announced the Nativity to humble and wondering shepherds.

The larger, of cream limestone, is from the Holy Tomb in the Garden of the Resurrection at the foot of Skull Hill — a rocky knoll outside the Damascus Gate at Jerusalem, the southern face of which, looking towards the "north wall" of the Holy City, bears a very real and striking resemblance to a human skull. Many distinguished archaeologists, historians, and bibliologists, including the late General Charles Gordon (killed at Khartoum) who unearthed it in 1867, believe this tomb to be Joseph of Arimathea's "own new tomb" from the door of which the stone was "taken away" by the Angel of the Lord after the Joyful Resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead on the world's first Easter Day. The same authorities, and many others, believe Skull Hill to be "the place of a skull, "the place which is called Calvary", "the green hill far away."

(King George V., then Prince George and his brother, Prince Albert Victor, visited the Holy Land in April 1882. While in Jerusalem they passed under "Calvary's green hill". In his Journal the former calls the hill "the very site of the crucifixion of the Son of Man.")

* * *

Under the stone from the Field of the Shepherds — unseen, yet really present — are memorials of the baptisms of two of the early English Kings. The first, a piece of Roman brick, was brought to Canada in 1935 from St. Martin's Church at Canterbury, wherein Ethelbert, King of Kent, was baptized by St. Augustine, first Archbishop of Canterbury, on Whitsunday, A.D., 597. The second, a tile of Caen stone from York Minster, was a gift from the Dean of York. This Minister covers the spot on which Edwin, King of Northumbria, son-in-law of Ethelbert, was baptized by St. Paulinus, first Archbishop of York, on Easter Day, A.D. 627.

* * *

The tiles in the inner sections of the arms of the cross were cut from cream limestone from the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. This church covers the traditional sites of Golgotha and the Holy Sepulchre, hallowed spots that have been the objectives of numberless pilgrimages in the history of the Christian Church since the Accession of Eboracum (now York, Eng.) of Constantine the Great — first Christian Emperor of Rome — in A.D. 306.

The tiles in the extremities of the arms were cut from black marble from the Mount of Olives "nigh unto Bethany" — scene of the Ascension.

* * *

Between the arms are tiles of pink Santa Croce marble from: (1) the Church of the Nativity at Bethlehem, built on the traditional site of the birth of Our Lord. (2) Jerusalem, the Holy City in which the trial and condemnation of Our Lord, the institution and the founding of the Christian Church took place; (3) the Garden of Gethsemane, scene of the most amazing struggle in the history of the human race, and (4), "the place of a skull."

At the ends of the arms, but detached therefrom, are four tiles. The first (a gift from the late Dean of Argyll and the Isles) was cut from green marble from Iona, the holiest ground in Scotland, where St. Columba began his mission to the Picts in A.D. 563 and where the Scottish Kings from Fergus II. to Kenneth I. were crowned on Jacob's stone.

The second (a gift from the Dean and Receiver-General of Westminster Abbey) was cut from Purbeck marble from the sanctuary of the venerable Abbey Church of St. Peter, London, wherein the sacring and coronation of King George (on Jacob's Stone) and Queen Mary took place on June 22, 1911.

The third and fourth were cut from Portland stone (a gift from the Dean of St. Paul's) used by Sir Christopher Wren in building the dome of St. Paul's, but removed during the recent restorations. In St. Paul's on May 6, 1935, King George made his solemn act of thanksgiving to Almighty God for his reign of 25 years.

* * *

The dark tiles in the corners of the Super-Altar are symbolical of the British, Celtic, English and Canadian Churches.

The first was cut from a stone brought to Canada in 1935 from Glastonbury Abbey — the holiest ground in the British Isles, where on the site of the present Chapel of St. Mary, tradition says the first above-ground church in the world was built by Joseph of Arimathea and disciples of Our Lord, in A.D. 35.

(Early in the 20th century the ruins of Glastonbury Abbey and the Abbey grounds were bought for the nation and vested in Trustees. On June 22, 1909, they were dedicated by King George and Queen Mary, then Prince and Princess of Wales, as a trust for Christendom.)

The second (a gift from the Bishop of Meath and the Rector of Tara) was cut from a stone from the Mound of the High King on the Hill of Tara, where St. Patrick achieved a glorious triumph over the Druids on Easter Day, A.D. 433, and where, for many centuries before and after the birth of Christ, the Irish Kings were crowned on Jacob's Stone (then called the "Lia Fail" — the Stone Wonderful).

The third (a gift from the Dean of Canterbury) was cut from the Kentish rag stone from Canterbury Cathedral — the cathedral church of the late Archbishop Davidson who anointed and crowned King George and Queen Mary. It was at Canterbury that St. Augustine began his mission to the Angels in the spring of A.D. 597.

The fourth was cut from a foundation stone (a gift from the late Rev. Henry How) from the former Roman Catholic Chapel of St. Anne in the historic fort at Port (now Annapolis) Royal, Nova Scotia, wherein the first service in Canada according to the Use of the Church of England was held on October 10, 1710.

(In the present Church at Annapolis Royal, dedicated to St. Luke, is a magnificently bound Book of Common Prayer given by King George in 1910 — the year of his Accession — when the 200th anniversary of this historic service was fittingly celebrated. The Prayer Book was brought across the Atlantic by the Bishop of London).

These stones were assembled, and the Super-Altar was designed and given to St. John's Church by Mr. John M. Black, a member of the Art Staff of The Montreal Standard, and a native of Stirling. On May 6, 1935, Mr. Black witnessed the Royal Progress of Their Majesties, King George and Queen Mary, to and from St. Paul's Cathedral.

RAZED BY FIRE

Early Saturday morning fire completely destroyed the blacksmith shop and adjoining buildings, belonging to Mr. Thos. Cranston. The cause of the fire, which it is thought started in the blacksmith shop operated by Mr. Wm. Moshier, is unknown. Mr. Fred Hulin, postmaster, who resides nearby, first noticed the blaze at about 4.45. Hurriedly donning his clothes, he turned in an alarm, but before the firemen arrived on the scene the buildings were doomed, and they directed their efforts towards saving the neighbouring buildings.

In the garages east of the blacksmith shop were a Forde coupe owned by Mr. Cranston. A service truck to the crane of which was attached another car, were standing close to the building and the service truck was badly damaged; the coupe was almost totally destroyed. Mr. Moshier also was a heavy loser, all his tools and stock falling prey to the flames. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

The buildings, which were of frame construction, made a spectacular blaze and the illumination, which could be seen for miles around, attracted a large crowd of spectators.

STREETS WASHED

On Tuesday afternoon the pavements in the business section of the Village received their Spring clean-up. Following the overflow of the pond and creek much dirt and debris marred the appearance of the paved streets and the dust nuisance was to be contended with even earlier this year than last. To say the least, the section which underwent the cleaning operations presents a much neater appearance.

FINAL MEETING WELFARE CLUB HELD ON TUESDAY

MEMBERS OF STIRLING HOCKEY TEAM GUESTS OF HONOUR — W. E. TUMMON GUEST SPEAKER — "HILL BILLY" BAND MAKES LOCAL DEBUT — GOOD ATTENDANCE OF MEMBERS

The final meeting of the Stirling Community Welfare Club for the 1935-36 term was held in the Community Hall on Tuesday evening with an attendance of about sixty. The members of the Stirling Hockey Team, winners of the Championship of the Central Hastings League, were the honoured guests for the occasion, and Mr. W. E. Tummon, of Tweed, was the guest speaker. The banquet was served by the ladies of the local branch of the Women's Institute, while the duties of the Sergeant-at-Arms were ably performed by Mr. F. R. Mallory.

An unique feature of the evening's entertainment was the musical programme provided by Bill Jones and his "Hill Billy" Band of minstrels. This group of local artists, which has but recently been organized, made a distinct hit with the audience, and their repertoire of popular songs and cross-talk was thoroughly enjoyed. The selections given included such popular numbers as "Comin' Round the Mountain", "Mountain Music", "Pop goes the Weazel", "Home on the Range" and "Irish Washwoman" The members of the Band are Messrs Bill Jones, Bob Patterson, M. Bell, Don Scott, C. West, K. Stapley and R. Mathison. This was the first public appearance of this Band, but judging from the many favourable comments heard on their initial performance, the future demands for their services will be many.

In his opening remarks President Thomas Solmes welcomed the members of the Stirling Hockey Club, who were guests of the Club for the evening. He stated that for a number of years hockey had not been enjoyed to the same extent as formerly, but this past winter had seen a revival of the popular sport and the boys had played the game for all their worth and captured the championship.

On arising to acknowledge the welcome, the members of the team were greeted with "For they are Jolly Good Fellows", led by Mr. Arthur Duncan, song leader.

In proposing the toast to the Hockey Team, Mr. Harry Lovibond stated that he had attended every game in which the locals took part and paid tribute to the calibre of hockey played. Stirling had been given a big boost by the team, and he was glad they were present on this occasion.

Mr. Wm. Whitty, manager of the team, replied to the toast and drew attention to the fact that all the players present at this event had learned their hockey in Stirling. In past years players had been imported but it had been found that this did not pay and the practice was abandoned. If home talent were encouraged he felt it would be only a few years until the class of hockey played would be as good as in the days of the import. Mr. Whitty also had something to say about the poor attendance at some of the games. The last few games played in the local arena compared favourably with those of other years, and it wasn't fair to the boys to not give them support. If the general public would turn out to see the home boys play they would become more enthused than over a team of imports. Since Stirling had been associated with organized hockey, there was only one year in which they did not reach the play-offs. In conclusion Mr. Whitty, on behalf of the team, thanked the Club for the kind invitation to be present on this occasion. The members of the team present were Messrs B. Robinson, W. Morton, Don Morton, G. Fraser, A. Fraser, Harry Ingram, Earl Wallace and Conley Ackers, assistant manager. Messrs "Toots" Tulloch, "Pat Scollie" and H. Mott were those absent.

President Thos. W. Solmes called upon Dr. C. F. Walt to introduce Mr. W. E. Tummon, of Tweed, who was the guest speaker of the evening.

In his opening remarks Mr. Tummon joined with the Club in extending congratulations to the hockey team and management. He also congratulated the Welfare Club on having carried on successfully for another year and stated it was a splendid thing to have a Club in a village the size of Stirling and have it conducted in a successful manner. "The longer I live," continued the speaker, "the more convinced I am of the great work that can be done by such a club as this one, or by service clubs." He thought there was hardly a community but what was marred by social differences, but a Club of business men and all classes in a community went a long way to break down the barriers. "Just as far as you break down barriers," said Mr. Tummon, "you have contributed to the peace of the world. It would be a fine thing to have a League of Nations banded together in a common cause."

Referring to the subject which he had chosen for his address, "The Canadian Coat of Arms", Mr. Tummon said he wasn't an authority on the subject, but curiosity had led him to make a study of the subject. The use of the official coat of arms came into existence to afford a means of identification and was important in either times of war or peace. Heraldry was a kind of picture writing, and the people of the day liked bright colours and knew how to use them. In spite of the many ways of identification in these days, the printing press, etc., great use had been made of emblems, badges, etc. Service Clubs, S. S. Classes, fraternal organizations, all had used them. They had been used since the beginning of time, in the days of the Roman Empire and by the Rabbis of long ago. With reference to the emblems of the various countries, Mr. Tummon said they were used more today than at any time in the history of the world. Not a single country in the world had abandoned the use of a flag and coat of arms. They were needed to inspire devotion and loyalty to a country. In days of old the coat of arms identified persons in battle. In times of peace it was embroidered on the coat, or carved on the door of the household. People unable to read or write hung their coat up in a hotel and registered that way. Every person could read it very plainly and it designated if a person's father was dead or alive, whether he was married and whether he was the elder or younger son, etc. The coat of arms was developed to a state where it communicated in a small space information concerning a

CLUB HAS DINNER

Attended by over sixty members and visitors a fish dinner was held by St. John's Men's Association on the occasion of their last meeting of the Fall and Winter term at the Paisley House last (Wednesday) night. The dining hall was taxed to capacity and many favourable comments were heard on the excellency of the viands provided and the splendid service.

At the conclusion of the meal, Mr. E. J. Dainard assumed the chair for the duration of the programme. Mr. John L. Clark, of the Ontario Horticultural Association, gave an illustrated lecture on Horticulture, which was thoroughly enjoyed. The chief speaker of the evening was Judge McLean, of Picton, who gave a stirring and enlightening address on the subject of "The Layman's duty to his Church." Mr. John Maher, of Picton, president of the Men's Deanery Association, also spoke briefly. The speakers of the evening were introduced by Rev. A. S. McConnell, rector of St. John's.

SEND BALE

The Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling, have recently sent a bale to an Indian residential school, Alert Bay, along the Pacific coast. The bale consisted of an outfit of new clothing for one year for one of the boys; also bedding.

POTATOES STOLEN

Some time between Wednesday and Friday morning of last week thieves entered the cellar of the residence of Mr. William Chambers, Front St. E., and removed his supply of potatoes, including several bags which he had purchased for seed purposes. Entrance was gained by breaking the glass in a cellar window on the west side of the house and removing the window. Provincial Police were notified and are conducting an investigation. It is thought that the theft was committed by someone familiar with the layout of the house and the habits of the occupants.

ATTEND CANTATA

The Cantata "Olivet to Calvary", given in St. Andrew's Church, Campbellford, was well attended by Stirling music-lovers on Friday evening of last week. The presentation was under the direction of Mr. Chas. E. Allen, former organist and choir leader at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here, and the success of the cantata as presented by the choir reflected most favourably to his capable leadership. ILLUSTRATED LECTURE GIVEN

J. F. Clark Gives Interesting Talk in Interest of Horticulture

An illustrated lecture on Horticulture, under the auspices of the Stirling Horticultural Society, was given in the Stirling Theatre last night by Mr. John F. Clark, of the Ontario Horticuitural Association. Mr. J. B. Belshaw, president of the local Society, occupied the chair and welcomed those who attended. Rev. H. W. Foley, Secretary-Treasurer, outlined the activities of the Stirling Society and particularly stressed the option list offered for the choice of the members this year. An opportunity was given any who wished to join the Society to do so, and several took advantage of the offer.

In the course of his address, which was beautifully illustrated by slides depicting scenery from various parts of the province, Mr. Clark drew the attention of the audience to how easily beautification could be effected by the addition of flowers, shrubs and trees.

Following his address a question period was conducted by Mr. Clark, when questions asked by members of the audience relative to their horticultural problems were answered. Persons having difficulties in future regarding flowers, shrubs, lawns and fruit trees are invited to submit their questions to Mr. J. B. Belshaw, presifent, who will in turn forward them to the Department for answering.

During the evening Mrs. W. Warren and Miss M. Elliott rendered a duet accompanied by Mrs. H. H. Alger at the piano.

MRS. T. H. MATTHEWS

Although ill for the past six weeks death came unexpectedly to Mrs. Thos. H. Matthews, a highly respected resident of Stirling, at her home, Charlotte St., on Tuesday afternoon. The deceased lady, whose maiden name was Agnes Pollock, was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Pollock, of Rawdon Township, and was in her 68th year. In 1893 she married Mr. Thos. H. Matthews, and resided in Rawdon Township until thirty years ago, when they moved to Stirling. In religion she was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and until illness prevented her from taking active part, was a regular and faithful attendant at all its services. She also took a deep interest in the work of the various church organizations and will be greatly missed by her fellow workers.

The late Mrs. Matthews was a charter member and a past Mistress of the local body of the Loyal Orange Benevolent Association. She also was a valued member of the Women's Institute and the Horticultural Society, being a past President of the latter organization.

Left to survive a loving and devoted mother are two sons, Messrs Vernon, of Rawdon Township, and Edgar at home; three daughters, Mrs. Clifford Barragar, Belleville, Mrs. Clifford Baker, Stirling, and Miss Freida Matthews, Red Deer, Alta. She is also survived by one brother, Mr. John Pollock, of Springbrook, and one sister, Mrs. Edgar Reid, Rawdon. A brother, William, and a sister, Mrs. Wm. Gibson, predeceased her.

The funeral service will be held from her late residence, North Street, to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, on Sunday, April 19th, 1936, at 2 o'clock, under the auspices of Stirling L.O.B.A. Interment in Stirling Cemetery.

ST. PAUL'S W. M. S.

The regular meeting of St. Paul's W.M.S. was held in the church parlours on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. E. Munro, President, was in the chair and conducted the devotional and business part of the meeting. Mrs. C. W. Thompson led in prayer and the reports of the different secrtaries were read. A letter was read from Mrs. Ralph Hayward, China, to the Society. Miss Mae Currie had charge of the remainder of the programme on Africa, and was assisted by Mrs. C. Wright, Mrs. Tomlinson and Mrs. W. L. Fox, each describing some phase of African life. Miss Currie

The Dust Nuisance

The merchants of Stirling are being called upon earlier than usual to combat the dust nuisance this year. This week the streets committee had the business section swept and washed down, which has been a decided improvement in this section of the Village. Whether or not anything will be done to allay the dust nuisance in other sections of the village this summer is not known. Residents on North Street and Front St. East suffer most in this respect due to the fact that these streets are part of Highway No. 14, but there are several other streets where traffic is quite heavy. Since last year Front and North Streets have been taken over by the Ontario Department of Highways and residents along these streets will have to await action by the Department. Last year a few of the streets were given a treatment of oil, which was greatly appreciated by the residents, as it is otherwise impossible to keep premises free from dust. We believe the oil treatment to be the best method of dealing with this nuisance and the streets committee would be well advised to consider adopting the same practice this year.

Examination Time Coming

With the Easter Vacation almost over the boys and girls all over the country are beginning to worry about the mid-summer examinations. The most of the year's work has been covered and the next few weeks will be spent by the students in reviewing and preparing themselves for the final test.

Examinations are not liked by the young people themselves, their parents, nor the examiners, but they have come to accept them as a necessary evil. Some hope of a change is in sight, however. An editorial in the Canadian Chartered Accountant for April says:

"The whole attitude of educationists towards examinations has undergone considerable change in recent years. This change was touched upon in an address by Dr. G. F. Rogers, chief inspector of the secondary schools in Ontario, given in February at the mid-winter dinner of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Ontario. On that occasion Dr. Rogers spoke of the university matriculation examinations and he stressed the necessity for a change from the usual method of written examinations to one in which this test would be only part of a wider examination in which the candidate's record from the beginning, or for an extensive period would be considered." In this connection, the editor refers to the report of a committee set up to survey the English system of examinations. This report, recently issued in book form, with the title "An Examination of Examinations," describes a test made on a written university honours examination in history, the examiners being all scholars and teachers of very high distinction. For convenience the marking was represented by grades numbered up to 24. The paper of one candidate was rated at 16 by one examiner and at 5 by another, and the average difference between the highest and lowest marking of the eighteen candidates by ten examiners was 11.4. From these results it seems clear that the system of written examinations is far from being an infallible test of either knowledge or intelligence. In some subjects, such as mathematics, questions can be devised, the answer to which will be right or wrong; but in subjects where judgement is involved, there is a strong element of luck. The student has to hope that his opinion will on the whole coincide with the examiner's.

CURRENT COMMENT

Maple syrup season is past for another year and those who have been engaged in making the product state that this year's run of sap has not been as good as average. In some cases the run of sap was only for a few days and was hardly worth the efforts required to tap the trees and getting the sugar house in readiness for boiling down.

According to the Sports commentator in the Belleville Ontario-Intelligencer the plans to formulate a Softball League in that city, embracing the neighbouring Village of Tweed, has fallen through. Here's a chance for the softball players in Stirling. With the Tweed team out in the cold, consideration might be given to entering a league with Stirling, and some of the other towns of the district, similar to what was done in hockey. Stirling was kept on the sports map this past winter by the boys in Red and White. Let us have a softball team to maintain this reputation.

As The Seasons Change

Just about this time of year there seems to be a certain something in the air which brings to everyone a state of exuberance — the thrill of new life — the fond hope that the dawn of a new era may bring better things. Why not? Following Easter, a season celebrated by all mankind and hallowed by the peoples of all the earth, comes to us that joyous Springtime, when even Nature cannot refrain from bursting forth in a new array of things which probably never before have seemed quite so beautiful. New life, typical of this time, creations strangely different from those of preceding Spring seasons, appear on every hand to remind us that the time of snows is past.

Not only does Nature perform miracles in the beautifying of landscapes which have already seemed to meet with our approval, but there arises within mere man the desire for a change, the feeling that the time has come when, to use an everyday expression, he wants to "go places and do things". Probably the foregoing phrase may be taken literally, probable specifically. To say the least, no one can be content to allow his natural course of daily routine to follow the same path as that of the preceding few months.

And thus it is — changes are made — the season calls for the beginning of new activities and the cessation of the present routine. Noticeable to a universal extent, it is not extraordinary that even a smaller community such as Stirling should find itself in the thrall of this same spirit of activity and the desire for changed and improved surroundings. As we marvel at the changes made in natural activities, one cannot refrain from hoping that the residents will keep in step with these reformations.

Local organizations, those which reach the peak of activity during the winter months, are gradually bringing to a close their regular programmes. And with many of them, the arrival of the present Spring marks the close of a very successful season. One could not but be favourably impressed when the reports of the Stirling Community Welfare Club, read at its concluding session of the 1935-36 term, on Tuesday evening, led one to believe that the efforts of that organization had been crowned with a marked degree of success. Increased membership, a favourable financial balance, and more important, an even greater spirit of good-will and fellowship among its members, greet those who have held the offices of importance in connection with the Club. It is with a knowledge that they have performed a duty well that they note the closing of the term. No other local organization of this kind has ever accomplished more, in an effort to promote good-will among its members than has this splendid organization.

But Time marches on, and the concluding sessions and activities of the organizations which flourish during the winter months, mark the undertaking of new endeavours.

The school children are about to commence their final drive, probably the last round-up of all that has been received in their classes during the past few months, in an effort to be equipped with that which is necessary when they meet face to face with that which in childhood days is a rather unpleasant factor — the mid-summer examinations.

The busy housewife is once more bending her efforts to a complete household rejuvination. Furniture, which to the male members of the household has seemed to be perfectly all right where it has been for some time, must be moved and cleaned. That's Spring!

The time has arrived when those interested in the beautification of lawns, gardens, etc, are planning and preparing for the coming season. Even wild flowers, those planted by the winds throughout the woods in the district, are beginning to feel that new life. Societies formed to aid all flower-lovers and gardeners, are again canvassing for members. The local Horticultural Society already has set its machinery in motion. Not only has the idea of immediate beautification appealed to this organization, but those in charge already are speaking of a Fall Flower Show. It is with genuine sincerity that one and all offer best wishes for the success of an organization of this kind.

Even as plans are made to beautify local residences and the grounds adjacent, many are planning the improvement of summer cottages at the Oak Lake resort, and now that the warm rays of a Spring sun have all but removed the last trace of ice and snow, those fortunately possessing summer homes at the lake are anxiously awaiting the time when there will be a local exodus to the popular resort. Once more — it's Spring!

Those organizations which can only enjoy their particular fancy in the line of sport during the warm months, are anxiously eyeing the "greens" at the Bowling Club; the courts of the Tennis Club. Nature is expected to supply a generous upspring of grass in the first case, and dry up the clay bed in the latter. After all, it is difficult to bring to mind just something that is not expected of Nature at this season.

The farmer, whistling as he goes about his daily routine, is grateful for the arrival of another season during which he hopes to plant and sow those crops which will later add to his worldly wealth, which in many cases is sorely depleted and in need of assistance. But he labours on with one prime thought encouraging him in his efforts to accomplish even greater things — it's Spring!

Even as the older members of the family make plans for the days to come — and to a certain extent worry about that which is before them — the small boy knows that the time has arrived. An old tomato can has been called into action, filled with earth in which several worms seek refuge. An old pole and a bit of line are slung over his young shoulders. Yes, Sir! Suckers are running, — he's "goin' fishin'."

It was ever thus. The dawn of a new era, the advent of a new season — Spring brings to us all fond hopes, cherished ambitions. May they be realized.

What Others Say

THE SAME OLD STORY

(Smiths Falls Record-News)

Old-timers claim that the present generation is wilder than in the days of their youth. This condemning of youth has prevailed up through past generations. What we cannot understand is that if each young generation is wilder how come they haven't invented a new kind of naughtiness in five thousand years.

LAW VS. JUSTICE

(Kingsville Reporter)

Opinions expressed by many daily and weekly papers on the stand taken by Rev. Mr. Dobson, of Tilsbury, in refusing to pay a fine which he considered unjust and unwarranted, differ. Some think he should have paid his fine, and said nothing more about it; while others, contending that the charge was unjust — even if according to law — believe that Mr. Dobson did perfectly right in refusing to settle.

Many of our laws are faulty, unjust and contrary to common sense, but so long as everybody submits to them without protest, they are tolerated. Fines are paid, justly or unjustly, and the law is satisfied. Mr. Dobson could have paid his fine, and the injustice of it would have gone on unnoticed. By resisting, he has drawn widespread attention to a faulty regulation that should have been corrected years ago, and has brought a modification in a law that never was perfect, but which would never have received any attention from the highway department if Mr. Dobson had quietly paid his fine, and then protested.

Orders have been given to traffic officers to use a little better judgement when prosecuting an auto owner for the absence of a tail light which he did not know was out. And this order is directly due to Rev. Mr. Dobson's stand.

NEWLYWEDS ARE SHOWERED

On Friday evening, April 3rd, about fifty friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Irvine for a surprise party given in their honour, their marriage having taken place about two weeks previous. Mr. Berson Mitts acted as chairman in a very capable manner, and after calling the gathering to order, Miss Luella Wannamaker read the following address and Fred Hedington and Charlie Ross presented Marjorie and Gerald with an Alladin lamp, linen table cloth, Venetian style mirror, silver candlestick holders, and pictures on behalf of the community.

Holloway, April 3rd, 1936

Dear Marjorie and Gerald,—

On this happy occasion of your marriage, we are come as neighbours and friends to spend a few social hours with you in celebration of the first milestone of your lives together. We come with the most sincere congratulations and good wishes for you are both worthy of the best that we could wish for you in the future years.

You have both grown up among us. We older ones have seen you grow from children, God-fearing and upright, showing forth the influence of your Christian homes. The younger ones have been play-mates, classmates and chums together, and have ever found you loyal and sporting, and worthy of the name of friend. As you grow older you have realized and accepted the responsibilities you felt owing to your home community. We appreciate the willingness with which Marjorie has given of her musical talent to make our social gatherings a success. We would pay tribute to Gerald's able leadership of our Young People's Society for years under adverse conditions. We are glad you are establishing your new home among your old friends; and now to back up our best wishes for your future happiness we ask you to accept these gifts, our hearty approval of the step you have taken; and may the years to come hold for you both a great measure of joy and prosperity. Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbours, Aleita Horton, Luella Wannamaker, Nellie Reid, Charlie Ross, Ralph Smith.

Miss Aleita Horton then read the address on behalf of the young people of the Sidney Baptist Church, and Ralph Smith presented them with a plate glass table mirror and flowers.

Dear Marjorie and Gerald,—

As a small body of young people, we wish to express our appreciation and respect which we truly hold for you. We wish to thank Marjorie for her musical talent which she so kindly has bestowed upon us, time after time, and for her loving straight-forward manner which she acted and achieved. We hope Marjorie will continue her good work throughout our community. We have Gerald to look up to with pride and respect. He has led our young people's Union over trying times with his good management and fine work, and he has bestowed more real encouragement and hard work than we really can give thanks for.

We all hope that both Marjorie and Gerald will accept our small token and forgive us for not paying for what they are really worth to us.

With Best Wishes —

The Young People

Both Marjorie and Gerald responded in a fitting manner to these addresses and expressed their deep appreciation of the sentiment expressed in the many lovely gifts, and extended a sincere invitation to all their friends to visit them in their home.

The gathering then rose and sang "For they are jolly good fellows". The ladies served lunch and the evening was spent in a social manner.

MILLION DOLLAR WRIGLEY SIGN STARTS OPERATION

The new Wrigley Spearmint Gum Sign on Times Square, New York City, a million dollar project, largest of its kind in the world, was formally dedicated and put into operation on Saturday evening, March 28th.

The sign occupies the entire block on Broadway from 44th to 45th Street on the east side of Times Square. The new sign is a superstructure on the top of a two storey steel and concrete building, built especially to bear the tremendous weight of the display. This world's largest spectacular sign towers ten storeys high; the Spearman on the sign has a grin a yard wide. The package of Wrigley's Spearmint is larger than a boxcar.

The sign shows gigantic, multi-coloured, tropical fish swimming about the sky; the largest fish measuring 42 feet from tip to tail. The flashing mechanism consists of twenty-one pieces of apparatus, all operating in unison, but no one piece is synchronized with another. The electrical current required for this huge display would serve a city of ten thousand. There are 1,084 feet of neon tubing and almost seventy miles of wire are used. The investment on the entire project is a cool million dollars.

Hundreds of thousands of people will pass the sign each day; the number who pass daily through the subway at Times Square is estimated to be almost equal to the population of Toronto.

ANDREW REID

One of the most respected citizens of the older generation passed away at Springbrook Tuesday, March 31st, in the person of Mr. Andrew Reid. Mr. Reid lived his whole life in Rawdon township, the son of Elijah and Isabel Reid, and was born on the family homestead on the 11th concession, seventy-nine years ago. Here he brought his first wife, Miss Jane Wilson, and here they raised their family five of whom survive them, Arthur, still on the homestead; Dr. Ernest A., of London; J. Wilson, of Michigan, and Mrs. Clarence Heath and Mrs. R. Morton, both of Rawdon township. After the death of his wife about ten years ago he married her sister, Mrs Grace Thompson, who survives him. Mr. Reid was a good farmer and prospered. He served the Lord from his youth and with his neighbor, Mr. Jno. Bateman, carried on Sunday School for many years in the Bateman school house. He was president of the Christian Endeavour society in Springbrook in the early days. He was a devoted member of the United Church in Springbrook and at the time of his death was one of its elders, a trustee and chairman of the committee of stewards.

Burial took place in the family plot in Mount Nebo Cemetery. The service in the church was conducted by his minister, Rev. H. W. Foley, B.A., B.D., who chose for his text Joshua 1: 2 "Moses my servant is dead," and called upon his children and members of the church to come forward to take up his work and fill his place as Joshua succeeded Moses.

Andrew Reid was a good man. He shared the devoted affection of his family and the trusted confidence of his neighbours and his church. He loved music and was seldom absent from his pew in the church on the Lord's Day.

man's family and his social position.

The coat of arms of the King of England, the Royal Arms, was known as the Arms of the Dominion. The coat of Arms of the Prince of Wales, the Royal Arms, was differenced to show that he was the eldest son of the reigning King, while the coat of arms of the Duke of Connaught, also the Royal Arms, was different, showing that he was the youngest son of a dead sovereign.

For a long time there was considerable uncertainty as to the proper coat of arms for Canada, said the speaker. When the Dominion was formed, Royal Arms of England was used. One year later, in 1868, a large seal was designed for Canada. On it were the coat of arms of the four provinces: Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. As other provinces came into the Dominion an attempt was made to put the coats of arms of all the provinces on the seal. In 1920 a committee of three was appointed to design a Canadian Coat of Arms, and in about a year's time the present coat of Arms was presented, approved, and in November 1921 was awarded to Canada by His Majesty King George V. and registered in Heralds College, England.

Using a large picture of the Canadian Coat of Arms, Mr. Tummon pointed out the various parts of the design and explained the significance of each. The Canadian Coat of Arms was surmounted by the Imperial Crown, implying that Canadians stand to their King in just as close relationship as any of his subjects. The crest was a lion in position of victory, holding in an upraised right paw a red Maple Leaf. During the war this was an emblem of sacrifice. The shield had the upper two thirds quartered. In the first was the arms of England, three golden lions on a red field. Opposite was Arms of Scotland, a red Cross on a golden field; below was the Arms of Ireland, a golden harp on a green field; and opposite the arms of France, the fleur de lis on a purple field. The people of all these countries founded Canada and their literature, laws, tradition and coats of Arms were inherited by Canada. Below were three leaves on one stem, and on a silver field, implying that the people of four countries laid the foundation for this country. At one time there was an East, West and Centre, but all were joined in one. The supporters were the same as the Royal Coat of Arms, a lion holding aloft a Union Jack, and an Unicorn holding aloft a French flag. These were the only two flags that ever floated over Canada. On the bottom were two vines extending from one edge of the design to the other. On the vine were the Rose of England, Shamrock of Ireland, Thistle of Scotland and the Lily of France, typifying that the descendants of these people came to Canada years ago. An inscription in Latin across the design translated was "A Country that Stretches from Sea to Sea," stated Mr. Tummon. This was taken from the words of the eighth verse of the seventy-second Psalm "And He shall have dominion also from sea to sea and from the river unto the ends of the earth".

Mr. H. R. Tompkins moved a vote of appreciation and thanks to the speaker for his very interesting and historic address.

Following a number of announcements and discussion of some minor details, the meeting was adjourned.

The Country Doctor

A Novelization of the Twentieth Century-Fox Film, Starring the Dionne Quintuplets With Jean Hersholt, Dorothy Peterson, June Lang, Michael Whalen and Slim Summerville

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Dr. John Luke, country doctor in the little north woods settlement of Moosetown, receives an emergency call to the lumber mill when Mike Scanlan, lumberman, is crushed under a fallen log. Both of Mike's legs are seriously injured.

Nurse Kennedy assists the doctor as Mike wails, "I don't wanta live if you cut my legs off!"

Moosetown is in a state of excitement because the season's work at the mill is ending. Next day the last boat south will depart, taking the crew of timbermen home for the winter. Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER TWO

Mike Scanlan didn't die. Nor did he lose the sturdy legs that had meant a living, life itself, to him. Dr. Luke's practiced and sensitive fingers served for X-ray, and Mike was soon encased in two mummy-like casts up to the hips. Far into the night worked Dr. Luke, to get Mike comfortably installed in his boarding house.

To soften the blow of missing the morrow's boat and the dreary prospect of long months in bed instead, there was the promise of a small radio. What if Mike's pay for the season was scarcely enough to pay for his board and keep for the winter, let alone to pay Dr. Luke for saving his life and his legs? The radio was there anyway. Dr. Luke would be the only one who could tell you how it got there. But it's not likely that he would.

So by the following day, Mike Scanlan was as happy as a man with both legs in casts can be. He could hear the steamer whistle echoing across the hills. For the river boat, "North Star" waits for no man when she sails from Moosetown on her last trip in autumn to the southland. She dares not wait. Soon, all too soon, the winter descends, and Moosetown is isolated, the waters frozen, the roads well-nigh impassable except for the sleighs and dog teams.

The "North Star's" whistle drew to the boat landing everybody who could walk at all. Three or four lumbermen on deck, all a little drunk, were working away at bar-room harmony that was less accurate than heartfelt. Catcalls, whistles and boos greeted the effort.

Constable Ogden was there, his jaw doubly swollen by the recent tooth extraction and a fresh quid of "plug". He had a couple of Indians in tow, with claims against one of the lumbermen leaving on the boat. Dr. Luke and Nurse Kennedy, intent on placing last-minute orders for precious medical supplies, were at the purser's window.

"Bring us back some aspirin," reminded Nurse Kennedy, running her finger down a long list.

"How much?" inquired the purser.

"About a bushel."

"And iodine ....."

"How much?"

"About a gallon."

A lumberman elbowed his way up to Dr. Luke.

"I was looking for you, Doc. Wanted to pay you."

Down into breeches pocket went a grimy hand, emerging with several greasy bills, and a handful of small silver.

"Five-sixty, five eighty-five, five-ninety-five, six!" he counted as the coins dropped.

"That all you got, son?" inquired Dr. Luke, with a wry smile.

The youth grinned. "Just made it, didn't I, Doc?" he commented.

With a furtive look about him, Dr. Luke pressed the money quickly into the grimy hand. "Keep it," he whispered. "You'll need it 'outside'. Pay me next year." And suddenly the doctor had vanished into the crowd, leaving behind him an embarrassed youngster with a fistful of coins.

* * *

Soon, however, Dr. Luke was back at the purser's window. The last opportunity to make sure of precious medical supplies was too important to overlook a single bet. The whistle was blowing again in final warning as the purser chirped, "Anything else, Doc?"

"I guess that's all," speculated Dr. Luke. "Oh, yes, a pair of baby scales." He grinned in a mock-grumbling manner. "More government stuff — as if I couldn't weigh a baby in my hands! Shucks! Let 'em go this time. I'll get 'em next year. So long, George. Have a nice winter."

"Got enough detective stories till spring?"

"I guess so. Everybody left me something, detective stories, movie magazines, those confession things. If they ever give out — well, I can always read Pickwick Papers again!"

A chorus of good-natured hoots from the roistering lumbermen on deck drew their attention.

"Hey, papa!"

"Come on, stork!"

"Run out o' names yet?"

So the banter ran as a worried little man, anxious, humorless and distressed, came loping down to the gang-plank.

"Look who's coming again," noted Nurse Kennedy, meaningly. "It's Asa Wyatt! Looks to me as though you are going to need those baby scales sooner than you expected!"

Asa Wyatt, whose brood of youngsters regularly augmented, had become a sort of symbol even in a region where babies were part of the annual routine, came hurriedly aboard calling "Doc! Hey, Doc!"

Nurse Kennedy turned to Dr. Luke resignedly. "Well, I guess it's another Wyatt!" she said quietly.

"Impossible!" spluttered the doctor. "Too soon!"

"Not for her!" said Nurse Kennedy firmly.

"Can you come now, Doc, right away?" implored Wyatt.

"Sure, sure, let's go!" reassured the doctor. And nurse, doctor and the distraught Wyatt descended the gangplank, to a chorus of catcalls and good-natured comment from the lumbermen on the deck.

Dr. Luke leaned toward Asa with quick reassurance. He whispered, "Don't let anybody think they can tease you about babies, Asa. It's good to have babies, plenty of 'em. Nothing sweeter in life than babies, and don't you forget it!"

* * *

But even as they stood at the gangplank, there was a new diversion. Elbowing through the crowd, his face set and grim, came MacKenzie. Without a word he pushed his way up the gangplank and into the cabin of the "North Star." Men fell silent, the rough jokes and songs stopped, as he passed. There were few who in their hearts did not fear MacKenzie.

Wyatt, a little man, anxious, humorless and distressed, came loping down to the gangplank. "Can you come now, Doc, right away?" he implored. "Sure, sure! Let's go!" reassured the doctor.

"Whoever he's after, brother, I'm sorry for him!" whispered one.

"Yeh! I remember there was a fellow last fall ..... Holy Mackerel, it's his daughter."

The grim-faced MacKenzie was just emerging from the cabin and descending the gangplank, looking neither to right nor left. Behind him, her face averted in shame, her slender wrist locked in MacKenzie's hairy fist, came his daughter, Mary. A suitcase swung in her free hand.

The girl, her eyes glistening with tears, revealed all the fresh loveliness that is a part of youth. She was obviously still in her teens. She hurried with uneven steps to keep pace with her father's furious strides.

Dead silence fell over the crowd on deck and on the dock, adding to the shame that coloured her downcast face. The story was as plain as if written out for all to read. She had clearly been trying to leave Moosetown and her father, on the last boat of the season to the "outside."

Dr. Luke, Nurse Kennedy, and Asa Wyatt stood still as father and daughter passed. The harshness with which MacKenzie treated his daughter was more than a legend in Moosetown. The eyes of Dr. Luke and the nurse were cold as father and daughter passed them.

"The big gorilla!" whispered the nurse.

"He's a rough, hard man," meditated Dr. Luke, almost to himself, and as though he were thinking of something else.

"He doesn't have to be so tough on his own kid!" returned the nurse indignantly.

The "North Star" gave a last hoarse whistle, echoing across the river and back from the dark spruce woods that lined the shore. Her ropes, holding her to the river wharf, were slipped from the piling, and slowly the boat edged out into the stream, on her way back to civilization. Already at her prow there was a faint crunching sound as thin sheets of ice, like cardboard, crumpled in her path.

Mary ..... revealed all the fresh loveliness that is part of youth ..... she was obviously still in her teens.

MOUNT PLEASANT

(Crowded out last week)

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sharp Tendered A Surprise

On Tuesday evening, April 7th, nearly seventy friends and neighbours of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sharp gathered at their home to say adieu before their departure to their new home at Hoards.

Mr. Irvin Reid was master of ceremonies and he certainly proved his ability along that line as he kept his audience in gales of laughter with his witty remarks. Miss Faye Andrews and Mr. Herbert Higgs contributed three musical numbers guitar and harmonica; Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave two humorous readings with local hits dealing with "Wives and Cars". Miss Eileen MacMullen read an appropriate address and Miss Frances McKeown made the presentation of a purse of money.

Mr. and Mrs. Sharp both graciously replied, thanking their friends for the remembrance and inviting one and all to visit them in their new home at Hoards. The audience joined in singing "For they are jolly good fellows." The ladies served a delightful lunch and before the company dispersed the National Anthem was sung and one and all wished Mr. and Mrs. Sharp the best of success in their new venture. The address follows:

Mount Pleasant,

Dear Donald and Della,

Having learned of your intended departure from our midst, we your friends, relatives and neighbours, have met to spend a social hour in your home tonight. We are glad you are not going far away and we wish you every success in your new venture. As a token of our esteem and good-will we ask you to accept this gift, not for its intrinsic value, but as a reminder that you will be in our thoughts and prayers, and hope we will be in yours.

Signed on behalf of Friends, Relatives and Neighbours — Irvin Reid, Allan Reid and Edgar McKeown.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Eileen and Ormel and Miss Faye Andrews attended Springbrook Young People's Society on Monday evening, it being the occasion of Miss Bessie McMullen's programme, she being the convenor of Christian Endeavour. ST. PAUL'S Y. P. S.

The Easter meeting of St. Paul's Young People's Union took place in the church parlours on Easter Monday under the direction of the citizenship department. Mr. Harry Hulin was in charge of the opening exercises and devotional period which included a song service of Easter hymns and prayer by Rev. E. W. Rowland. The Scripture lesson, fifth chapter of Romans, verses 5 to 25, was read by Miss Margaret Craig. Miss Dorothy Eggleton, 4th vice-president, ably presided over the remaining programme. Lloyd Rowland and Clarence West rendered two delightful saxophone duets, "Missouri Waltz," and "When I Grow Too Old to Dream," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. E. W. Rowland. The speaker of the evening was Mr. Don Williams, who delivered a splendid address on the question "Does Jesus Live In Us?" The speaker analyzed the lives of several Biblical characters whose lives were transformed by the indwelling of Jesus Christ, such men as Paul. In the present day there are those who share the most complete happiness available as their lives portray the indwelling of Christ. True happiness comes only to those who carry out the command of the Holy Scriptures. Success in a material sense is of little consequence yet it will automatically come to us if we place it in its proper place, ever pleasing God first. This was a most interesting address and greatly appreciated by all. Misses Jean and Olive Munro favoured the audience with a delightful duet, "Long, Long Ago." The gathering was then divided into two groups for a spelling geography test with Reginald Matheson and Lloyd Rowland as leaders, Lloyd Rowland's group winning by a close margin. The meeting was brought to a close with the Mizpah benediction.

PRESENTATION MADE PRIOR TO DEPARTURE

On Thursday afternoon, April 9th, the teacher and pupils of the fourth line school presented J. J. and Douglas Ackers with the following address and presentation prior to their departure to Stirling. The following address was read by Donald Drewry and the presentations made by Gordon and Edwin Richardson.

Harold, Ontario,
April 9th, 1936

Dear J. J. and Douglas,—

We, your schoolmates of the Fourth Line School, feel that we cannot let you leave without trying to express to you our regret. During the years we have been together you have endeared yourselves to us and we are very sorry to know that you must go. However, we are glad you will not be far away and we shall look forward to seeing you often. As a token of our friendship we ask you to accept these albums, hoping they will remind you of your old school chums in the years to come.

From your teacher and Schoolmates

Although taken by surprise, J. J. and Douglas expressed their thanks for the kind remembrances.

On Friday evening, March 20th, the friends and neighbours of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ackers gathered at their home on the Fourth Line and presented them with the following address and presentation:

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ackers,—

We have gathered here this evening before your departure from this neighbourhood to spend a social hour with you and to wish you happiness and success in your new home. Jack, we have always found you ready and willing to lend a helping hand whenever occasion demanded. You too, Mrs. Ackers, despite the fact that household tasks and the wants of a young family have left little time for leisure, still you have proven yourself a neighbour in the true sense of the word. We know where you are going your geniality and affability will in a short time win you many new friends, yet we hope you will keep a corner of your memory free for occasional thoughts of the friends you are leaving in this community. And so, as a wee token of our respect to you and your family, we ask you to accept this gift. Small though it is, it carries with it a host of good wishes.

Oh, its just the little homely things
The unobstrusive, friendly things,
The won't-you-let-me-help-you things,
That make our pathway light.
And it's just the jolly, joking things,
The never-mind-the-trouble things,
The laugh-with-me-it's-funny things,
That makes the world seem bright.
So here's to all the little things,
The done-and-then-forgotten things;
Those "Oh-it's-simply-nothing" things,
That make you both "Just Right".

Signed on behalf of your Rawdon friends — John Morrison, Carman Fitchett, John T. Scott and W. B. Ketcheson.

Mr. and Mrs. Ackers, although taken by surprise, thanked their friends for their thoughtfulness toward them and asked them all to come and see them in their new home.

BOWMANVILLE RESIDENTS PROTEST TEACHER'S DISMISSAL

A petition bearing 1,605 names demanding the reinstatement of J. H. Johnston as principal of the Public School at Bowmanville, was presented on Saturday to C. H. Dudley, School Board secretary. Circulated by forty volunteers, the petition is signed by a greater number of ratepayers than have ever voted at a municipal election at Bowmanville. On it appear the names of 1,313 ratepayers, 151 Public School students, and 151 former Public School students, now attending Bowmanville High School. A letter suggesting the resignation of the School Board accompanied the petition. It was signed by Dr. J. C. Bell, C. S. Hallman, A. M. Hardy and T. W. Cawker, protestive committee appointed at a protest meeting. Calling attention to the fact that the petition bore the names of the great majority of electors and ratepayers of Bowmanville, the letter asserts the School Board acted in direct antagonism to public feeling.

LADY KILLED IN MOTOR CRASH

Miss Marion Stinson, an employee of the Bell Telephone Company, of Toronto, was killed when the car she was driving struck a telephone pole and overturned three miles west of Wellington, Prince Edward County, on Friday. Miss Stinson's chest was crushed when she was pinned beneath the car, and she lived only a few moments. Miss Stinson was driving a rented car and was going to Wellington where she intended to pick up her mother and take her back to Toronto to live with her. The car failed to make a corner and when the brakes were applied jumped the ditch, struck the telephone pole and landed on its top. Apparently the door came open throwing Miss Stinson out, so that the car fell upon her. Coroner R. A. Thompson of Wellington, stated that it was unlikely an inquest would be held. Miss Stinson was a former employee of the Bell Telephone Co., in Wellington, some years ago. She was in the middle forties. Her mother, Mrs. Thomas Stinson, is an invalid.

Mother: "Bobby, be sure to come in at four o'clock and get your bath before you go to the Jones' for supper."

Bobby: "But I don't need a bath. They said it was going to be very informal."

FOXBORO Y.P.G. PRESENT PLAY

Large Attendance at Presentation of Three-Act Comedy "Forest Acres"

A large and enthusiastic audience were greatly pleased with the excellent performance of the Foxboro Dramatic Group in their presentation of "Forest Acres", a cleverly written comedy-drama written by Fannie Barnett Linky, possessing a wealth of riotous humour carried through the scenes of rural life and into the home of the wealthy Jeffrey Brixley, a New Yorker. It has drastic changes in setting which are not easy for amateurs to handle. It possesses also a rather unique plot which is never disclosed until the end of the final act. There is wide range for acting ability throughout the play which does not permit any poor acting and those in charge of casting the children made sure that all those asked to take part had more than the average amount of theatrical talent. Change from rural characters to Fifth Avenue type is a difficult feat, which was accomplished by the clever group without the slightest sign of weakness. The play was presented under the auspices of St. Andrew's Guild with a Committee of the local organization being responsible for the stage fittings which were complete in every detail. Rev. and Mrs. Hill were coworkers in the direction of this clever play, which was presented in a superb fashion. The cast of characters is as follows: Lemuel Crocket (a miserly farmer), Herbert Watt; Mrs. Crockett (his wife), Miss Verna Peacock; Elizabeth Crockett, (a daughter), Katherine Moore; Hepsibah Crockett (another daughter), Peggy Ketcheson; Hiram Crockett, (his son) Alex Thompson; Franklyn Arthurs (a business man), Rev. Mr. Hill; Miss Lucy Ruggles (a school teacher), Beatrice Gay; Evelyn Newcomb (a bashful maid), Mrs. Hill; Andy Hobbs (a country boy), Grant Longwell; Jeffrey Brixley (a New Yorker), Roy Bartlett; Mrs. Brixley (his wife), Mrs. E. Longwell; Constance Loring (their niece) Miss E. McInroy; Nora (the maid), Mrs. F. Reid.

At the conclusion of the program which included several readings by Rev. Mr. Hill, the cast were the guests of the local Society, at a luncheon served by the senior girls. This play has been presented in five places with the same success with which it was offered in Stirling, and will be offered again in the home church at Foxboro, by popular demand.

HOLD BANQUET

The Laymen of St. Paul's United Church were guests at a banquet in St. Paul's United Church, last evening. Over one hundred were present. Mr. Elmer Davis, of Kingston, was the special speaker of the evening.

KNOWN IN DISTRICT

For many days past, residents in both Canada and the United States have taken a very great interest in the delivery of Dr. D. E. Robertson from the Moose River Mine, in which he was a prisoner for so long a period, but from time to time it is learned that perhaps the most interested are those children whose afflictions have been expertly attended to by this noted physician and surgeon. Dr. Robertson is known far and wide for his successful work with children, and especially in the Toronto Sick Children's Hospital has his ability been shown.

In conversation with Rev. A. S. McConnell, Rector of St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling, and Trinity Church, Frankford, it was learned that Francis Lawrence, a youngster living in the latter village, has been under Dr. Robertson's care for some time. Since the latter part of December, Rev. Mr. McConnell has taken the young lad to Toronto at regular intervals for medical attention, and it was Dr. Robertson who performed the first operation on his foot and has since attended to it.

It will indeed be with keen delight that the youngsters who have benefited by Dr. Robertson's skilful attention will learn that he will be able to resume his duties once again.

Dr. Robertson is also well known to the members of the medical profession in Stirling.

GIVES LECTURE

Mr. Jos. Wilson, local Agricultural Representative, gave an illustrated lecture at a meeting of the Young People's Society, at Wallbridge, on Tuesday night. "Agriculture" was the subject chosen by the speaker for his address, which was listened to attentively by a large crowd. Mr. Arthur Gould had charge of the lantern.

TO HOLD MEETING

A meeting of the Central Softball league will be held in Ivanhoe on Friday evening, May 1st, at 8 p.m. for re-organization and other business of the League. All interested in the opening of the league for another season are requested to attend. Mr. Aubrey Rodgers is President and Mr. Lloyd McCauley Secretary-Treasurer of this organization.

JEWELRY BUSINESS SOLD

During the past week the jewelry and optical business of the late H. H. Hadley has been disposed of to Mr. B. W. Bishop, formerly of Trenton, who has taken immediate possession.

Mr. Bishop is a practical man, having learned his trade in the Old Land, and has had thirty-five years' experience in watch and clock making and repair work. His training in optical work was received in the city of Guelph, Ont., under G. D. Pringle, optician. For some ten years he was employed in Pittsburg and Scranton, Penn., following which he was employed in Ottawa and other centres, coming to Trenton some years ago. The News-Argus joins with the citizens of Stirling, in welcoming Mr. Bishop to our midst.

Entombed Men Freed

The climax to an eleven-day struggle on the part of a noble band of men engaged in the rescue work came last night when they reached the two entombed men, Dr. D. E. Robertson and Alfred Scadding, of Toronto, in the Moose River gold mine. Following is the Canadian Press account of the rescue:

Victors over 240 hours of hunger, exposure and dread in a cavern far below the earth's surface, Dr. D. Edwin Robertson and Alfred Scadding of Toronto came up the twisting trail from the Moose River Gold Mine's caved-in pit today. They were carried out on stretchers borne by Draegermen who for ten days had striven downward through rock and rubble to cleave a path to the men entombed when the sides of a shaft caved in last Easter Sunday night.

Dr. Robertson was brought out of the narrow shaft's black mouth at 11.44 p.m., Toronto time. Scadding followed 16 minutes later, on the stroke of midnight.

The doctor's first words were "Good boys, where are you from?" They told him they were from Stellarton and Goldenville.

Jack Simpson and Geo. Morell, the two men who had advanced to the face but five minutes before, were the first men to break through.

The body of Herman Magill was brought to the surface after Dr. Robertson and Scadding had been safely cared for.

The Draegermen issuing from the mouth of the Reynolds shaft made no reference to him at first, but reported that Dr. Robertson and Scadding kept their faces turned away from the spot where his body has been since he died.

As Scadding was brought to the surface at one o'clock Thursday morning, a great cheer went up from the spectators, newspapermen, mining officials and miners about the mouth of the Reynolds shaft.

Then, under the direction of the Salvation Army, the grim, weary miners sang "Praise God From Whom all Blessings Flow."

Jack Simpson, captain of the daredevil Stellarton crew, who has worked desperately with men from Goldenville, Porcupine, Ont.; Westville, Glace Bay and other mining districts throughout the province since the call went out early Monday morning, described the breaking into the underground vault.

Dr. Robertson, he said, crawled most of the way up the Reynolds shaft to the open air he has not been free to breathe for 11 days.

Car Stolen Last Night

Late last evening, after attending a banquet at St. Paul's United Church, Mr. H. C. Martin found that his car, an Oldsmobile sedan, which had been parked outside the Church, had been stolen. The authorities were at once notified and word sent to the police headquarters in towns in the district. Early this morning Constable Eggleton received word that the car had been recovered in Trenton. A car had been stolen from that town, the property of Frank Hamilton, of Brighton, a chevrolet sedan, and Constable Eggleton informed the Trenton police that the automobile for which they were searching was parked in Stirling. The latter motor had run out of gas and had been abandoned here.

Evidently some one has wanted cheap transportation from Trenton to Stirling and return, and due to the fact that the Chevrolet was a little short of petrol, the driver or drivers have taken the Martin car, after ascertaining that the gas supply was of sufficient proportions to guarantee a safe return to Trenton.

Fortunately no damage to either car is reported, other than the rear license being missing from the Martin automobile.

MRS. THOS. MATTHEWS

The funeral of the late Mrs. Thos. Matthews, whose death was chronicled in last week's issue, took place on Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. from her late residence to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. The service was conducted by Rev. J. A. Koffend, minister of the Church, assisted by Rev. J. D. P. Knox, Belleville.

Long before the hour of service every available seat was taken in the spacious church, by sorrowing relatives and friends, gathered to pay their last respects to one who was held in the highest esteem by all who knew her. Rev. Koffend spoke in glowing terms of the exemplary life and character of the deceased. During the service he sang "No Burdens Yonder". The members of L.O.B.A. No. 655, under whose auspices the service was held, attended in a body. The burial service of the Order was conducted at the graveside.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful and besides a pillow from the immediate family pieces were received from Mrs. Edgar Reid, Mrs. Jim Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Melville Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. H. Rollins, Mr. and Mrs. H. Sills and Miss Luella Matthews, Mrs. Bryson, Anne and Catherine, Toronto; Executive W.M.S., Toronto; L.O.B.A. No. 655, Stirling; Ladies' Aid and W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling; Social Club, Girls' Group and Ladies' Aid, all from Willowdale, Alta.; Mr. and Mrs. P. The pallbearers were Messrs H. Rollins, J. M. McGee, J. Whitehead, A. Hammond, Jonathan Thain, T. Reid.

Interment was made in Stirling cemetery.

CELEBRATED ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. D. Rodgers Celebrate Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary

Surrounded by a host of well-wishing friends and relatives, Mr. and Mrs. D. Rodgers, well-known couple of pioneer stock celebrated fifty years of happy wedded life together, at the Rawdon home of their daughter, Mrs. Wm. Drewry. Among the happiest guests present were Mrs. McKenzie, of Sidney Township, who acted as bridesmaid at the ceremony, which took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wannamaker, on the Frankford road, with Rev. Mr. Lambley performing the ceremony. The groomsman of fifty years ago, Mr. George Smith, of Foxboro, was also present to take part in the celebrations. Married quietly on the 20th of April fifty years ago, Mr. Rodgers stated "it was time to start the Spring's work as soon as the celebrations were over. After their marriage, the happy couple started their domestic relationships working together on the groom's farm in Murray Township, later taking over the positions of guardians in the Peterboro Children's home, from which place they resigned to retire. Married at an early age, they are still quite young to be holding such a celebration and superior mentally and physically to many people years their junior. Mr. Rodgers gave an example of his physical fitness when he played a lively game of tag with one of his nieces while the party were getting ready to take some pictures on the lawns. Dinner was served to about thirty-five guests at noon with the tables and dining room gaily decorated with various kinds of cut flowers, many of which had been sent to the honoured couple by friends in distant places. The happy smiling couple were the recipients of numerous gifts in silver and gold, and the pleasant event was a re-union for them with friends from Belleville, Peterboro, Frankford, Stockdale, Madoc and Foxboro.

ST. JOHN'S A. Y. P. A.

The A. Y. P. A. held their first meeting since Easter on Monday night. In the absence of the President the vice-President, Aubrey Rodgers took the chair. The meeting opened with a hymn and prayer led by Arthur Bateman. The minutes were read and approved. Some business was discussed and the invitation to Trenton accepted. The program was both novel and impromptu, and great fun for everyone. Competitive choruses between girls and boys caused much merriment. Miss Keitha Stapley played and sang popular numbers. An amazing effort by Frank Harding on his impromptu bottle Xylophone was one of the evening's highlights. Arthur Bateman, who was in great form sang one of his rousing cowboy songs followed by a little humour by Carl Mumby. The remainder of the program consisted of readings and songs by Jean Donnell, Keitha Stapley, Arthur Gould, Ned Faires, Fred Houchin and the male quartette. The contest took the form of an intelligence test and caused a great deal of laughter. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

FIRE AT SMITHFIELD

When Alfred Minaker's large general store and residence at Smithfield were completely destroyed by fire which was discovered about four o'clock on Monday morning, his wife and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Minaker had a narrow escape as they were led to safety from the smoke filled dwelling by Mr. Minaker. On the discovery of the blaze by the owner, the fire had gained great headway and no time was lost by Mr. Minaker in effecting the rescue of his wife and parents.

Cheese Factories Opening

One week from tomorrow, May the first, is normally the date set for the opening of the cheese factories in the district. Last year a number of factories were opened in April, but the amount of milk secured didn't warrant the earlier opening. In fact some of the factories got so little milk during the first few months of the season that the management seriously contemplated closing them. However, in midsummer, the federal government came to the rescue of the industry with the cheese bonus. This bonus of one cent and a half per pound to milk producers, who sent their milk to the cheese factories, was a big boost to the industry in Stirling district and the farmers are anxious that the government continues it this year. Many representatives have been made to the government through the Ontario Cheese Patrons' Association and by the private members from constituencies where dairying is carried out extensively, but so far the government has given no indication of its attitude. This industry is all-important to thousands of farmers and others throughout Central and Eastern Ontario, and it is hoped that the government will announce its decision in ample time, so that the cheese factories will ge started without any unnecessary handicap. The dairy farmer and the cheese manufacturers have been having a hard enough time to keep going during the past few years without adding to it.

Farm Work Campaign

The Hepburn Government has commenced a farm-labour campaign in which unemployed are urged to register with the nearest office of the Employment Service of Canada, and farmers to promptly make known their needs to this service. This is a splendid service which the Ontario government is giving to the unemployed and those on relief should lose little time in registering with the proper officials. Residents of this district will register with the Employment office in Belleville, or the local relief officer. At this time of year, when farmers are starting operations on the land, there should be little trouble in men prepared to work on a farm securing employment. Last year there was not the expected response from the young men for work on the farm, many of them turning down offers of jobs with wages of twenty dollars per month with board and washing. This year the Government has issued instructions to the relief officers throughout the province to refuse assistance to any man who turns down an offer to work on the farm at fair wages. In some sections of the province a shortage of single farm helpers is reported, but there are numbers of married men with families seeking work. Since there are not many farms equipped with accommodations for housing, a married man and family, the latter frequently find it hard to secure employment. In the plan adopted by the Government, the relief arrangements for the families of married men finding work on a farm rests with the municipalities.

Salaries To Rural Mail Carriers

From an exchange we recently read of a rural mail carrier in an Eastern Ontario Village who had given sixteen years of serivce and has been removed from the office because another applicant for the position offered to perform the duties at a much lower fee. This is plainly a case of a mail driver who has been efficient and painstaking in his work, losing his position to one who has underbid him and has no idea of a fair price for the work. This brings to mind the bill that has been introduced in the House of Commons providing that the tender system in connection with rural mail carriers shall be abolished and that a minimum salary be adopted. The Bowmanville Statesman, in commenting on the salaries paid for rural mail carriers, says in part: "The system of tender is a very precarious one for the tenderer and quite frequently for the parties letting the tender. In either case the general idea is to get as much as possible and give as little as possible. There are exceptions to this rule. Tendering breeds a spirit of rivalry that frequently ignores facts. This is notably true in connection with mail carrying. Many abuses could be swept away if the system of "fair wage" were to be applied to all branches of our public life. Sweat shop methods are not confined to such trades as the clothing business. The "Song of the Shirt" may properly be the dirge of many a wife whose husband works for a pittance because he took a job in competition with others at a price which is far from being a just remuneration for his services. With all our statistical efficiency it should be comparatively easy to determine what is a fair price for efficient service; and it is time that we quit living on our fellow men by having our work done for less than a decent wage. That principle holds good in all our lives; and there is nothing really clever in grinding down the pay. It is not very far from there to the place where we spend all we save and more in "relief".

Contrary to the practice of other years the Stirling merchants have decided against having Wednesday half-holidays during the month of May. At a time when the farmers are busily engaged in their spring's work and frequently have urgent calls for articles which may be purchased locally, we've always felt it was poor business on the part of the merchants to close their stores for a half day in the middle of the week. Tuesday and Thursday nights the stores will be open as in other years. Rural shoppers will please note the change.

While many of the larger industrial centres have at times been faced with strikes of various kinds, it remains for the town of Bowmanville to have a strike of school pupils. The cause of the trouble is the action of the Board of Education in dismissing the Principal of the Public School. In spite of a petition signed by hundreds of ratepayers requesting the resignation of the Board, that body has refused to do so and is sticking to its decision. The citizens have organized and have appealed to the Minister of Education to intervene, and it will probably be some days before a settlement is effected. With examination time fast approaching, the pupils will be losing much valuable instruction.

———x———x———x———

Times are looking up somewhat for the farmer. Evidence of this fact may be had in a number of auction sales held in this district within the last few weeks. For a number of years auction sales of farm stock have been few and prices offered have been small. But this spring there has been a distinct change in this respect. In several sales where the terms have been cash, there have been large crowds, the bidding brisk and prices much higher than for some years. In conversation with a district auctioneer recently we were informed that little trouble is experienced in getting a purchaser for farm stock or machinery if it is in fair condition. The farmers seem anxious to buy, and what is more important, have money to pay for what they buy.

———x———x———x———

Daylight saving comes into effect in numerous Ontario municipalities next Sunday, April 25th, and railways will change to their summer time schedules. This means that the annual confusion among the travelling public will commence owing to the fact that some centres do not go on daylight saving until a later date, while other centres such as Stirling continue on standard time. Much as the local business men would like to enjoy the extra hour of daylight in the evening to work in the garden, cut the lawn, or attend to the hundred and one other duties around his home, he is forced to stick to standard time due to the fact that the majority of his trade is with the farmers of the surrounding district. The farmer takes his time from the sun and daylight saving is not practicable for him. The neighbouring city of Belleville voted against having daylight saving this year, but several of the manufacturers will change to advanced time to keep in step with the manufacturing concerns in the larger centres. In Trenton a straw vote is being taken on the question through the press and the result will not be known for some weeks yet. Altogether it looks as though Stirling and district residents will suffer little inconvenience this summer from the change in time, with the exception of keeping in touch with their favourite radio programmes.

What Others Say

TELL THE INSPECTOR

(Trenton Courier-Advocate)

The other day we spent two dollars for a radio license so that we legally could let a lot of noise into the house. Radio in this or any other town, where there are so many electrical appliances working, might be a pleasure instead of a pain in the neck, if these appliances were properly grounded. A lot of the loose wires and electric bulbs used in street lighting in town might also be tightened up to nobody's harm, and to everybody's benefit.

"SUCKER" MACHINES!

(Renfrew Mercury)

Maclean's does a good service in publicizing the slot machine racket. Those machines which make millions for the promoters are in evidence in almost every town. The wonder is that people can be such simple suckers. Machines are frequently seized and broken up by the police, but in another week or so in the same place will be found the devices operating, and always doing business with the same suckers, and some new ones. A Toronto magistrate touched the spot the other week when he heavily fined a storekeeper who had a slot machine, and then added one month in gaol. That was the part which cured the merchant. The men "higher up" may pay the fines, but they won't go to gaol for a storekeeper who gets caught. The Attorney-General has warned municipalities that they are not to license gambling gadgets, and is urging town officials everywhere to see that these things are seized. In Renfrew last week Chief Greer wielded the sledge hammer on two of the "sucker" machines. And there will be more to follow.

TWEED TO HAVE NEW BRIDGE

It is confidently expected that work will commence on the new bridge over the Moira River, Tweed, within a few weeks. Already soundings are being taken to determine the points where the piers will rest. The work of erecting the bridge will provide employment for a number of idle workmen here during the summer months. — Tweed News.

POCKET TELEPHONES FOR BUDAPEST SUBSCRIBERS

The Hungarian postal department in Budapest is making provision for use of a telephone that may be carried in one's pocket. Wall plugs, connecting with the telephone system, are being installed in house entrances restaurants, at street corners, street car stops and other public places. The possessor of a pocket telephone will connect with the wall plug and tell central what number he wants. The number of calls will register automatically on the apparatus. The telephones will be given only to persons who have a reputation for paying the bills promptly. — Blue Bell.

CHEESE PATRONS' ASSOCIATION APPOINT REPRESENTATIVE

The Ontario Cheese Patrons' Association has engaged the services of Mr. T. W. Grieve, of Montreal, as their representative in the United Kingdom, and he is expected to sail for Great Britain about May 1st.

Mr. Grieve is an outstanding produce man with special qualifications in the manufacturing and marketing of cheese. He is a native of Wellington County, where his father operated a cheese and butter factory, and where he himself received his early training in the dairy business. He attended the local and high school of Listowel and later he took the dairy course at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. His further experience was as operator of a cheese factory at Hickson, then with the T. Eaton Co., Toronto, in their creamery department. Following this, he was plant manager for the City Dairy, Toronto, at the Palmero plant, and then operator of his father's factory for three years.

From 1915 to 1919 Mr. Grieve was with the Canadian army. After his discharge he was produce manager for Armour & Co. of Hamilton. With the introduction of Government grading for cheese, he was one of the first members of the grading staff. Later he was engaged by Lovell & Christmas as vice-president of their Canadian company, which position he held for twelve years.

Mr. Grieve has been president of the Montreal Produce Exchange; also of the Canadian Produce Exchange. During the past year he has operated a produce business of his own in Montreal.

We believe the Ontario Cheese Patrons' Association have been very fortunate in securing as their overseas representative a man of Mr. Grieve's outstanding qualifications.

NEWS OF INTEREST FOR BUSY FARMERS

Straw as an Absorbent

Straw when used as bedding for livestock will absorb from two to three times its weight of liquid, and if finely cut will soak up about three times as much liquid as when uncut. Further, the absorptive capacity of dry sawdust and fine shavings is from two to four times that of ordinary straw.

Early Tomato Production

The best prices for tomatoes are paid for early, ripe fruit, but the grower must not make the mistake of having the plants cost more than is reasonable.

The Dominion Horticulturist recommends early sowing coupled with the use of early maturing, good varieties. The sowing should be made just early enough to have stocky well grown plants in bloom and ready for planting out at the sign of settled weather.

Soils unduly rich in nitrogen tend to promote rank wood growth and a small amount of fruit. Low nitrogen, high phosphoris acid and a medium amount of potash are essential to good results.

Ample range is one of the essentials in developing vigorous thrifty chicks. The brooder house should be located so that the young chicks may run out on plots that are clean and free from parasites, which are almost certain to occur wherever older poultry have been. Chicks thrive best if they can run out in the sun whenever the weather permits.

The area of range should be extended as the chickens get their feathers. When the cockerel develops comb, the sexes should be segregated and given sufficient free range that they will not eat all the turf and make the field bare.

Breeding stock should have range during the early spring when hatching eggs are being laid. The pens need not be large but a run in the sunshine is believed to improve fertility.

The yearling hens that, on account of their high production and other desirable qualities of type and breeding, are selected for the mating pens for the following season, should be allowed free range as soon as their pullet year is completed.

Ontario's Market

The pamphlet entitled "The Ontario Agricultural Outlook for 1936" just issued by the Department, contains many suggestive paragraphs. Here are a few of special interest and value to Ontario farm readers.

"A brief survey of the extent and importance of Ontario Agriculture will be of interest. More than 39% of the population of the province live on 192,000 farms. In 1935 Ontario agricultural products were valued at over $300,000,000. The new wealth created through farm out-put and the increased buying power of this large farm group has an important bearing on the welfare and progress of trade and commerce, not only in Ontario, but throughout Canada.

Ontario farmers are favoured and receive a direct benefit from the home market. Our Province has a population of 3½ millions, which receives nearly 41 per cent. of the total income of Canada. It is estimated that 41 per cent of all Canadian sales of food products to consumers are made by Ontario stores. It is, consequently, important for Ontario producers to cater to the home demand, and to place upon the Ontario market the highest quality food-stuffs, which are always in keen demand.

Planting in the Woodlot

Most woodlots that are not pastured usually do not require planting as there is sufficient natural reproduction. The planted trees would be crowded out by the vigorous trees that had started from seed. It is much better to plant a few hundred trees well in locations where they have a better than equal chance to grow than thousands, that will be subjected to the keen competition of trees that have started naturally.

There are many woodlots where planting of valuable species may be done. There are corners that do not seed up quickly for various reasons. There may be thick sod that prevents the tree seeds germinating or it may be located on the north west side and all the seed is blown away by the prevailing west winds. Planting may be carried on advantageously in a woodlot that has been pastured. It will hasten the restocking and it is also an opportunity to increase the value of the woodlot by planting valuable species that are not growing naturally in the woodlot,

A woodlot is healthier if there is a windbreak of trees around the border. The windbreak may be deciduous trees with limbs to the ground, shrubs or evergreens. Evergreens are better than deciduous trees and shrubs as they retain their foliage during the winter and their upper limbs do not extend over, and shade the adjacent cultivated fields as deciduous trees do.

Increasing Number of Corn Borers Merits Attention

A very marked increase in the corn borer population this year has been reported. While the actual number of corn borers may not be very detrimental to the corn crop at present, the rate of increase noted last season will soon bring about a return of serious conditions if continued. It is, therefore, of the utmost importance that all control measures possible should be utilized in order that the number of borers which survive to make next season's population may be kept to a minimum. These control measures have been widely published and should be followed closely.

The growing of a corn crop under conditions of corn borer infestation will be influenced by two factors, namely, the choice of variety of strain and the time of planting. In tests conducted at the Dominion Experimental Station, Harrow, during the past six years, it has been found that varieties and strains of corn having a good sturdy stalk are the best able to withstand corn borer infestation. The time of planting has also been found to influence the number of borers present, since, when planting has been delayed until about June 1, a considerable reduction in the infestation has been observed. By further delaying the time of planting corn, the fact must also be remembered that strains of corn which are suitable for planting at the normal time may not be planted too late without increasing the hazard of failure to properly mature before frost. In order to delay planting after June 1, it would appear necessary to use an earlier-maturing strain under most conditions. From these observations it would appear very important to practice rigid control measures and to use good judgment in the matter of choice of strain to be used and the time at which it should be planted to the best advantage.

MADOC MINE RE-OPENED

Fifty-six years ago six men disagreed over business dealings while operating a slate mine one mile east of Madoc and disbanded their organization. Today, under new development, the same mine promises to give work to sixty men and revive an industry in Canada that will produce $300,000 worth of roofing slate, superior, it is claimed, to that from the United States. According to government information, there are no commercial slate deposits in Canada, and for years this country has been purchasing this valuable roofing material from Wales, Scotland and the States at an approximate cost of $22 per square. Efficient production machinery now on order from Wales, in England, will permit the new owners to lay down the product anywhere in Canada at $12 per square. Six men are now working on the property and with the arrival of the new machinery at least 60 men from the eastern townships will find employment at the quarry, as it is called. The slate in this particular location differs from deposits in the Old Country, as it is right on the surface, and extends in a ridge for 2,000 feet. A pit has McGowan has shingled his house, and Mr. Frank Ashley has demolished his old garage, and is erecting a new one on a different site which adds much to the appearance of our local store.

The special part of the programme was a debate, "Resolved that it is better to be born lucky than rich. Mr. Thomas Elliott and Mrs. W. Fitchett upheld the affirmative side, and Mr. George Sarles and Mrs. Clayton Wright maintained that riches were better than being born under a lucky star. Many arguments, serious and humorous, were advanced by all the debaters, but according to the judges,, Mrs. Turner, P. Carr and A. Wilson, it was decided that it is better to be born lucky than rich. Rev. Turner read and explained a portion of scripture and Mr. Clifford Elliott gave an appropriate reading. The Misses Marjorie Phillips and Marion Hammond contributed a song. The Country Doctor

A Novelization of the Twentieth Century-Fox Film, Starring the Dionne Quintuplets With Jean Hersholt, Dorothy Peterson, June Lang, Michael Whalen and Slim Summerville

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Dr. John Luke, country doctor in the little north woods settlement of Moosetown, receives an emergency call to the lumber mill when MIKE SCANLAN, lumberman, is crushed under a fallen log.

Mike has a close call, but the doctor and NURSE KENNEDY save him. With both legs in casts, Mike is obliged to stay behind when the last boat of the season departs, taking the crew of lumbermen south for the winter.

Dr. Luke and his efficient assistant, Nurse Kennedy, see the boat off. As it is about to sail, MacKENZIE, lumber company manager, appears. Mary, his daughter, is on the boat. MacKenzie forces her to return home.

ASA WYATT, father of seven, comes with an urgent call for Dr. Luke.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER III.

It was a boy at the Asa Wyatts'. The editor of the North Bay Weekly Tribune was less than astonished at news of the birth of another Wyatt heir when Asa called to have a notice inserted in the paper. It was the seventh autumn in a row that Wyatt had made just such a call.

Then winter closed in on Moosetown, and there set in the quiet, uneventful routine of the frozen days following one another. But there was always plenty for the country doctor to do. He called regularly at Mike Scanlan's boardinghouse, where Mike fretted as the shattered legs mended slowly and inkered with an amateur short-wave radio set he was gradually assembling. There were fewer accidents, now that logging was suspended, but an unusually severe winter brought plenty of sickness, and there were always — babies.

The cold deepened, and a series of blizzards climaxed in one that threatened to shut off Moosetown from the outside world completely, drifting the straggling roads to the point where even Dr. Luke's sleigh was an undependable vehicle.

It was then that diphtheria struck. Beginning with a single case in the large family of LaCroix, the half-farmer, half-trapper whose cabin stood isolated nine miles out in the heavy bush, it spread rapidly. Not only all LaCroix's large brood came down with it before the doctor's precautions could have effect, but then he learned with horror that the LaCroix children had attended a church supper to which half the children of the community had come. The parents had thought it was just croup, and neglected to call the doctor until it was too late. Three of the La Croix children died, and the other two barely pulled through.

But now from many isolated cabins, and from the fringes of Moosetown itself came red-faced frantic men with steaming horses or even dog-sleds, imploring Dr. Luke to "come quick."

* * *

In his own sleigh if roads permitted, or on the dog-sledges of the farmers or loggers, Dr. Luke went wearily for 18, 20 hours a day to the cabins.

Always he found there the same terrible story. A young child, or several of them, gasping on a tousled bed, lips blue, the little body shaking by agonizing coughs. The simple parents of the backwoods stood dumbly waiting for the doctor to come, helpless in the face of what they did not understand. Often the doctor would find a child in the last stages of diphtheria in the same bed with not-yet-affected brothers and sisters.

His supply of antitoxin, used unsparingly, grew smaller. Without the help of Father Bonel, Dr. Luke could never have stood the strain. It was Father Bonel, parish priest, who suggested that the little, bare church of Moosetown be converted temporarily into an isolation hospital.

There, where bright chromos of the saints looked down from above the tin lamps that marked the Stations of the Cross along the sides of the barren room, the children tossed and fretted under the visitation they could not understand. Some of the wooden pews had been shoved together to make beds. Wooden cots, as many as could be hastily gathered, stood in rows. Several mattresses lay on the bare floor. It had not even been possible to get enough beds. The whole church from chancel rail to door was pitifully crowded with the impromptu beds.

As cases began to appear in the town itself, Constable Jim Ogden's little daughter, Laura, was one of the first to show signs of the disease. Leaving hurried instructions as to the care of the other children, Dr. Luke himself took Laura to the hospital.

Outside the door of the church, in the snow stood a knot of anxious women whose children lay within. All too often, Nurse Kennedy would have to come and whisper to one of them tidings of which some instinct had forewarned her.

Entering the hospital with little Laura, Dr. Luke was surprised to see a new figure seated at the head of a cot, assisting the weary Nurse Kennedy. As soon as a place had been found for the constable's Laura, Dr. Luke stroke to the bedside where sat the new nurse. As he approached he heard the words, "..... and the way I do is just pretend. I just pretend I'm not here at all ..... that I'm in Montreal, just having the finest time in the world with all the toys and the other little girls there".

* * *

It was Mary MacKenzie. As he knelt to administer treatment to the suffering youngster, Dr. Luke asked in matter-of-fact tone but with iron in his voice: "When did you come in here?"

Mary was a little overawed by the stern voice. "Just this morning," she admitted. "Nurse — nurse said she needed a little help. I thought I would do what I could."

"Did you ask your father?" pursued the doctor relentlessly, never looking at her as he adjusted the hypodermic needle.

"Yes," breathed Mary, a little defiantly.

The doctor rose abruptly, and made a sign to Father Bonel, who understood only too well. He set down the armload of stovewood he was carrying and began to don his vestments.

Mary, seeing the movement, knew what it meant. She began to cry softly.

Dr. Luke made his way doggedly among the improvised beds, stopping to stroke a brow here, pat a hand, or give a word of reassurance. Suddenly, at sight of a familiar figure beckoning from the church vestibule, he quickened his pace and stepped into the vestibule, closing the door after him. It was Jerry, the Moosetown telegraph operator.

"Well, Jerry?" he asked anxiously.

"The wires ain't just broke, Doc. they're down, both the telephone and the telegraph lines! I don't know how far, probably miles! The blizzard's been gettin' worse!"

"When .....?" There was no need for further question. Worry clouded the doctor's face.

"I ain't goin' to lie to you, Doc. I don't know when. Mebbe days, and mebbe weeks. You kin guess as well as I kin. I can't even phone North Bay!"

The doctor, his face drawn, was thinking aloud. "Even if we got word out, nobody coud get in here for a week, anyway, I guess." Brightening a bit, he turned to Jerry with, "All right. Thank you. If anything at all turns up, let me know right away."

"I know, Doc. I will!" promised Jerry, and braced himself to return into the flying snow.

The door had scarcely slammed behind him when a white-faced Nurse Kennedy, frayed by sleepless days and nights, appeared in the vestibule.

"Wasn't that the telegraph operator?" she demanded. "What did he say?"

* * *

Dr. Luke took a quick grip on himself. "Looks better," he lied bravely. "Ought to be able to get a message through in a day or two, maybe tomorrow."

"Oh, I hope so! I hope so!" cried the nurse. Her voice was a prayer. "You know we have less than half a box of serum left?" The doctor nodded very slowly.

Suddenly the nurse's iron control began to waver. Half a step toward the doctor she took, and then:

"Why can't they have a hospital up here?" she cried wildly. "Why won't they listen to you? All these terrible accidents to the lumberjacks — I can stand that! But these children — I can't stand it! I can't stand their eyes! They keep looking at me, and their eyes say, 'Can't you help me? Can't you do something?' I can't do anything! I can't stop the pain! I can't help them to breathe? We have nothing to work with ....."

The doctor's quick voice was angry and icy all at once.

"Katherine!" he glared coldly at the nurse. Her struggle to regain control of herself was visible.

"Go back to the children!" said Dr. Luke sharply.

Nurse Kennedy turned obediently and went back into the church, her shoulders squaring as she advanced.

Beside the bed that was now empty sat Mary MacKenzie, weeping softly. Nurse Kennedy approached, and looked down at her with some of the doctor's own steely coldness.

"Stop that bawling!" she snapped. "If you can't control yourself what good can you do these children?" The ghost of a grim smile flickered over the doctor's face as he observed this little tableau. Then, wrapping a muffler and the fur collar about his throat he too stepped out into his waiting sleigh.

It was a short trip, but a bitterly cold battle against the drifts to get to Mike Scanlan's boarding-house. Wading through drifts above the tops of his Arctics, Dr. Luke entered the house and rushed to the room where Mike sat by a table, his legs still in casts. Mike was leaning forward sternly, earphones over his ears, toward a table where lay a jumble of radio parts and instruments.

"Any luck, Mike?" snapped the doctor, not even stopping to remove fur coat and scarf as he entered the room.

Mike shook his head. "If I only knew more about this thing," he complained desperately. "I only got it all together this morning. I don't even know if it's all here ....."

"You've GOT to get somebody, Mike!" breathed the doctor. "You've GOT to."

"CQ, CQ, CQ — any amateur, especially Montreal — come in, please! An emergency! CQ, CQ, CQ — calling any amateur ....." Mike's voice droned. Five minutes went by. Ten. Mike looked appealingly at Dr. Luke.

"Go on! Keep it up! You've got to get somebody!" Dr. Luke's voice was insistent. "Those children, up there at the church ....."

ADVICE TO PARENTS

Arrange the breakfast and lunch hour so that there is no rushing at home or at school.

Encourage punctuality and regularity in attendance, not permitting trifles to interfere.

See that the children are dressed simply, neatly, modestly and suitably in accordance with the weather.

Insist upon children under 14 having at least ten hours sleep.

Find out how much time should be devoted to home work, and see that it is done.

Provide a quiet place for home study, with good light and ventilation. Prevent interruption as far as possible.

Show an interest in the children's school work, athletics and other activities.

Do not criticize the teachers or the school within the children's hearing. Always hear both sides of every question and ask the teacher about it.

Instil in the children habits of obedience and respect for authority.

Picture the school as a happy, desirable place, rather than as one children should dread.

Keep in mind that the school offers unlimited opportunities to those who take advantage of them, parents as well as pupils.

Plan to meet other parents in the school. It will help you to understand your children better. Mothers should arouse the interest of fathers in the school activities and get their co-operation. If there is a parent-teacher association in your children's school, join it. If there is none, why not form one? Intelligent co-operation brings splendid results to all. — United Parents Associations of Greater New York Schools.

TWEED, FLINTON PRIESTS ARE GIVEN ADJOURNMENTS

Rev. Francis Whalen of Tweed and Rev. William J. Kinlin, of Flinton, Roman Catholic priests, were on Monday granted an adjournment until June 24 when they appeared before Judge O'Connell on criminal negligence charges. They also received an adjournment until June 24 on the charges of possessing liquor illegally. The charges follow an auto accident in Toronto on April 9th, when the car the priests were driving in struck and injured Robert Van Hunt, 17.

ST. ANDREW'S W. M. S.

(Intended for last week)

The Easter meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. met on Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McGee. The president, Mrs. Tompkins, conducted the meeting, which opened with the hymn "Simply Trusting Every Day", followed by prayer by Mrs. Jos. Reid. Minutes were read and approved, and the business discussed. Mrs. W. L. Anderson read the Scripture from the 20th Chapter of John, on the Resurrection, and Mrs. J. A. Koffend sang a solo which was greatly enjoyed. Scripture verses and a poem with the main thought "The Cross" were read by different members. The topic was given by Miss Gena Spry. She gave a splendid paper entitled "A Meditation on Holy Week." Mrs. J. M. Magee gave a full report of the Presbyterial that met in Trenton recently. After singing a hymn, the meeting closed by all repeating the Lord's Prayer.

HASTINGS DISCONTINUES RELIEF

Saturday night was the zero hour for direct relief in Hastings until the return of cold weather. The Relief Board, which has worked so harmoniously through the winter months, decided to disband until next fall. Prospects are that the only assistance that will be needed now will be required by two parties who are in ill-health, and their requirements can be looked after by the Council. The press was informed by a member of the Relief Board that for the first three months of this year relief bills amounted to $600. They expect to receive two-thirds of this from the government. Hastings taxpayers can be thankful that their relief burden is small compared to some of the nearby centres.

THIEVES SECURE $70 AT NORWOOD ELEVATOR

Provincial Constable Silvester is looking for the thieves who broke into the Norwood elevator on Thursday night and stole $70.00 from the safe. The elevator is situated near the C. P.R. station, and before forcing their entry into the building through a window they broke into the section tool house and stole two crowbars and an axe. However, they were not called upon to use the bars.

FREAK EGG

One of nature's freaks was brought to the Ontario Intelligencer office, at Belleville, recently, in the form of a giant hen's egg, inside of which was another perfectly formed smaller egg. The egg was laid by a Black Giant hen, the property of Wesley Gerow, 14 St. Paul St. The large outside egg had the usual hard shell and measured slightly over three and one-half inches in length. The white portion of the larger egg was intact, although accompanied by no yolk. Directly inside the white of the larger egg was another ordinary-sized egg, soft-shelled, but fully developed with white and yolk. — Ontario Intelligencer.

THE LAST STRAW

(Letter in Mail and Empire)

Sir:

The question being asked by many people throughout the rural districts of Ontario at the present time is: "Is the cheese bonus going to be continued this year?" And many people, like myself, are hoping against hope that the Government makes provision to do so. I cannot see any alternative, personally, for the Government, if they have any desire to keep the cheese industry alive in Canada today. We all know that prior to the bonus the industry was tottering to its own destruction. Now let the cheese industry go to pieces, as it surely will, and then perhaps our leading politicians, such as our friend, Mr. Hepburn, will surely put politics aside, when confronted with questions that mean life and death for one of the finest industries in our country today. Let us do without the bonus for two years, Mr. Hepburn, and see how much cheese we will be exporting from this country. I am just another of the many Conservatives, who gave Mr. Hepburn a vote in the last election and this is the way he is thanking us. My advice to Mr. Hepburn is to go slow and think, as he is most certainly riding to a swift and sudden fall.

BOB PATTERSON

THROUGH THE OFFICE WINDOW

BY The OFFICE OWL

Howdy folks!

———oOOOo———

Well, another Thursday has rolled around —

———oOOOo———

And, as usual, here we sit, pondering, wondering, thinking (if you could call it that), and gazing at the front of the Linotype, waiting for a spirit to move us on to greater things and fill us with another collection of miscellaneous foolishment or something, so that we can, in one outburst, fill this column with something or other.

———oOOOo———

We found ourselves doing the same thing last Thursday (which rolled around in a much similar manner to this one) but it seemed as if it just rolled right on past without stopping.

———oOOOo———

Well, we've been making excuses ever since in an effort to explain the absence of this mess last issue, and rather than have to think up a fresh explanation for another week's absence — here we go.

———oOOOo———

But we'd like to say this — Last Thursday was one of those days which seldom come to most of us — we couldn't get that one thought — the Moose River Mine tragedy out of our mind —

———oOOOo———

Being the unfortunate possessor of a thinking unit which can only travel in one direction at one time, we just couldn't get going.

———oOOOo———

However, this is a different Thursday altogether —

———oOOOo———

Today no one can be anything else but jubilant — the men who have been trapped in that mine for eleven days are above ground.

———oOOOo———

And although the whole story is climaxed with a degree of sorrow, one of the unfortunate victims having failed to survive the ordeal, there's a spirit of jubilation present everywhere today.

And we just have to feel grateful to an Unseen Power for the successful rescue — or to those splendid miners who risked everything they had to dig in a hole from which they might never emerge alive — or both — who can say —

———oOOOo———

Certainly we can't, but —

———oOOOo———

May the survivors speedily recover their normal health.

———oOOOo———

Well, well, well — let's see now, where were we at the last time we were talking to youse guys?

———oOOOo———

By the way — we've just got to take a minute or so off to say "Thanks" to all those, who when inquiring of our absence last week, told us how much they appreciated this dish of soup and looked for it each week —

———oOOOo———

That helps a lot — so now we suppose it's up to us to go after that bull of Ham Johnston's again.

———oOOOo———

Remember we said that Harold Martin had it, and that Stub Rollins was giving it hypadermicks, or something?

———oOOOo———

Well, it's gone again!

———oOOOo———

Yesterday morning Neil Bedell came steaming into this office, and started raising the dickens with us about it!

———oOOOo———

And just after we thought we had done so good in finding it!

———oOOOo———

Here it is — we expected something like this would happen —

———oOOOo———

A verse is creeping on!

———oOOOo———

We thought that once we found the thing
Our work would all be finished —
Our cares and troubles all had went!
Our worries had diminished!

———oOOOo———

But yesterday when Neil come in
His face was red and troubled —
And he said many nasty things—
Abuse from him just bubbled.

———oOOOo———

He says that if the animal
Ain't found by Saturday night,
He's goin' to get some legal help
To straighten things out right.

———oOOOo———

Neil claims them Tories had their day —
That's what makes him so mad—
He says they swiped most everything
Grit governments have had.

———oOOOo———

And even yet they're trying,
To get Provincial "pull",
And even worse than that 'b'gosh,
They've stolen Hepburn's bull!

———oOOOo———

There's simply nothing we can do,
It ain't our fault, says us
If they can't find that bull, why we Ain't going to start a fuss.

———oOOOo———

If Cranston took it, we don't care.
Perhaps Henry Wallace "snitched" it;
Or maybe Rollins gave it stuff
That sort of, well, bewitched it.

———oOOOo———

Don Campbell says he saw the beast it
Go gallopin' and prancin'
'Bout sixty seven miles per hour
On up the road past Anson!

———oOOOo———

So Neil and young Ham Johnson son
Have bought a piece of rope,
And, walking on off up the road—
(Their souls jammed full of hope)

———oOOOo———

They think that perhaps the pesky thing
Might stop along the way
At some real good Grit farmhouse
To "bum" a bite of hay.

———oOOOo———

They say that if they find it
At the home of any Tory
They're going to shoot the animal
And sell it's hide, b'gorry!

———oOOOo———

In the Spring a young man's fancy turns to .....

———oOOOo———

What's the rest of that speech?

———oOOOo———

We don't know either — we thought we did but —

———oOOOo———

Evidently they turn to things you'd never expect —

———oOOOo———

This is bad — we feel another one coming on —

———oOOOo———

Just the other day we saw
A funny thing,
And it sort of made us wonder,
If in Spring
Guys who, long past childhood days,
Oft should drift back to the ways
Of the youngster as he plays —
Joy to bring.

Yep, it sort of made us wonder,
When we seen
Lovibond and Stew. McGowan
Quite serene —
Workin' hard with all their might Tryin' hard to fly a kite
'Way up high and out of sight —
Ain't that keen?

———oOOOo———

There they were with paper kite,
And some rope,
For a gust of cooling breeze
Was their hope.
There they played in ecstacy
Hoping that the thing would be
Blown up higher than a tree!
Comfort Soap!

———oOOOo———

And for help they weren't acking,
All the men
Over at Bailey's garage would offer
Now and then
What they thought a good suggestion
Relative to the "flying" question.
While Harry with the kite was wrestlin'!
Settin' hen.

———oOOOo———

Pardon us if the last lines of the above verses don't have anything to do with the rest of the story, but we had to use 'em because, on account of them rhyming with the rest.

———oOOOo———

And furthermore, if you wish Mr. Lovibond to give you lessons on the fine art of flying a kite, just phone 46.

———oOOOo———

He's got a phone installed at his house to handle the rush calls now, and furthermore, he has a new radio installed in his car so that he can keep in contact with the outside world at any time.

———oOOOo———

The Office Owl claims the distinct, magnificent, unquestionable, and glorious honour of being the first to establish contact with Mr. Lovibond via his newly-installed telephone.

———oOOOo———

So don't forget — In case anything happens, just phone 46 — if Mr. Lovibond is in, he'll gladly answer it.

———oOOOo———

Office hours range from 3 a.m. to 1 p.m.

———oOOOo———

Oh, yes, there has been good skating at the local arena the past few evenings!

———oOOOo———

You don't believe it?

———oOOOo———

We don't blame you!

———oOOOo———

Nevertheless, it's the truth.

———oOOOo———

A large portion of the ice at the local arena is still present, in spirit, if not in body — and just for the fun of the thing, a bunch of the local lads have been taking advantage of it, and they say it was lots of fun.

———oOOOo———

A bit inclined to be dampish in places, but still navigable.

———oOOOo———

Something's wrong this week!

———oOOOo———

Here's another one —

———oOOOo———

Just to show us all that they
Can find their own amusement,
A bunch of lads on Saturday
'Most threw us in confusement!

———oOOOo———

Imagine our astonishment
When what should greet our eye,
But four young lads in bathing suits
Adorned, as they drove by.

———oOOOo———

And Oak Lake residents were shocked
Beyond imagination
And what they saw just filled 'em full
Of old-time consternation!

———oOOOo———

For in the Oak Lake swimmin' hole
Frank Butler and Bill Morton
On Saturday were paddlin' round',
'round,
Their bathing suits a-sportin'.

———oOOOo———

And with these lads Fred Elgie
Was swimming in the pond,
And, ten feet out, beyond the rest
Was Harry Lovibond!

———oOOOo———

So after they had had their bath,
And nice and cool did feel,
They drove back down to Stirling
In Harry's Oldsmobile.

———oOOOo———

They all rushed home and grabbed their pants —
(We shudder as we think) —
And straightway all prepared themselves
For skating at the rink!

———oOOOo———

You won't believe this little yarn,
That we have tried to fix,
But it's the truth — if you need proof
Just phone to forty-six!

Well, Stirling's contribution to the cause of bigger and better agriculture is home from O.A.C.

———oOOOo———

Mr. Arthur Gould, (we haven't yet ascertained what letters of degree we should place after the name) is home from the O.A.C. to rest up for the strenuous activities of the fall term, which will commence on or about Sept. 23.

———oOOOo———

Fred Mallory has his mind all made up that if anybody has early potatoes before he does, it'll be because Tommy Solmes' flower pots wasn't big enough to warrant sufficient growth.

———oOOOo———

Last Fall Mr. Solmes, aided by Mr. Mallory's good wife, collected what they thought was sufficient earth to set out foliages and other flowers so that they would receive a nice early start in the flower pots and boxes and be in fine shape to plant out-doors at Mr. Solmes' cottage as soon as the weather permitted.

———oOOOo———

Yes folks, they toiled for days last fall —
They thought that they would get
Their flowers planted early and Then later they could set

———oOOOo———

Them out in window boxes,
In flower cans and such.
They never figured Fred was deep
In thought, and figurin' much.

———oOOOo———

Well when the time was near at hand
To get their things together,
So that the flowers would be up
In time for warm Spring weather,

———oOOOo———

They found that Mr. Mallory
Had been a man of dreams —
He'd thought of a experiment.
'Twas carried to extremes!

———oOOOo———

For Fred had gathered all the cans
That once had held tomatoes,
And filled them all with earth and he Had planted his potatoes!

———oOOOo———

Yes Sir! The earth for flowers saved
Was used for other things.
But Fred don't care — his "spuds" are up —
And that, enjoyment brings.

———oOOOo———

Each morning Frederick takes 'em out
And sits 'em in the sun.
At night he takes 'em back again,
And then his work is done.

And when the ground is warm enough
Fred claims he's going to set 'em
Out in the garden near the house,
So nobody can get 'em.

———oOOOo———

And around the last few days in March
Fred says (and laughs b'gosh)
He'll have potatoes that have grown
To be the size of squash!

———oOOOo———

Talk about your cave-ins and mine disasters —

———oOOOo———

If the Council don't fix some of the yawning cavities and gulfs that have opened in some of the local sidewalks, somebody's horse is going to fall into one of them and be lost.

———oOOOo———

Or if there doesn't happen to be a horse on the sidewalk, in all probability there'll be a distress signal that two tax-payers and a baby carriage had fallen into the depths below.

———oOOOo———

Well, anyway, watch where you step for another week —

———oOOOo———

And —

———oOOOo———

We'll be seein' yuh!

Cheese Factories Opening

First Monday, May 3rd is the date set by many of the cheese factories of the district to begin the season's operations, and preparations are being hurried so that everything will be in readiness for the opening day. However, it is not likely that there will be a great number of patrons until the pasture is available for the herds. Last year the cheese industry in this district had quite a successful year in spite of the extreme drought which visited the district and hopes are that 1937 will see a most profitable one for the farmers.

On the other hand the local Instructor Mr Thos Cain, had the distinction of bringing his group to a high standing and it is hoped that he will be able to repeat again this year.

L.O.L. ARE HOSTS SOCIAL EVENING

Stirling Masonic Brethren Entertained — Rev. J. E. Beckel Special Speaker

Stirling L.O.L. No. 110 were hosts last evening at their lodge rooms when the Masonic brethren of the Village were royally entertained and a very fine programme presented.

A large number of brethren of both lodges were present and the event was one of the most interesting of the season. Perhaps in no other manner can the spirit of friendship and goodwill be as successfully made manifest as in gatherings of this kind, for as the members of the two fraternal organizations mingled together, there was at all times prevalent a feeling of fellowship and goodwill. This coupled with the fact that a number of the Masonic brethren were also members of the Orange organization could not but make the evening a most enjoyable one for all those present.

The feature of the evening, a very appropriate address by Rev. Jas. E. Beckel, was exceptionally well received. Although Mr. Beckel has not long been a resident of this district he has made many friends and it was with a marked degree of pleasure that those present learned he was to address the gathering. In his address which centred about the idea of "Brotherhood", Mr. Beckel divided his remarks into three headings, namely the Church, fraternal organizations, and service organizations.

"Being more closely connected with the church than any other organization," said the speaker, "I would naturally feel more at home on that subject". Mr. Beckel felt that the Christian church did more for the promotion of good-will than any other group. The finest group of men and women to be found anywhere were those found in the faithful service of the Church. Creed meant little difference, denominations was not the most important factor — it was the Christian Church as a whole that was the main help of mankind. In speaking of the fraternal organizations, the speaker outlined many of the noteworthy accomplishments of the Societies, which he felt, were closely related to the affairs of the Church. Many of the principles of the Orange and Masonic organizations were quite similar and the societies had much in common. Following along the same line, organizations had also been formed under the banner of "Service Clubs." These bodies had acted much along the same lines as both the Christian Church and the fraternal societies. The object of the latter was to bring happiness to the unfortunate, and great benefit had been derived from the service clubs, by mankind in all walks of like.

Although in this report it is impossible to give this address in detail, Mr. Beckel's remarks were most appropriate and his summary remarks, in which he stated that he felt that all three, the Church, the fraternal societies and the service clubs were all working, to a certain extent for the same purpose, were most fitting.

Dr. E. A. Carleton, District Deputy Grand Master of Prince Edward District No. 11, was chairman for the programme, which was supplied by the visiting Masons. Later in the evening, short speeches by members of both Societies, including Messrs H. Cook, J. S. Morton, Geo. Luery, G. B. Bedford, V. Richardson, H. Rollins, A. Gould, T. W. Solmes, and others were enjoyed.

The musical end of the programme as supplied by a recently-organized "old-time" band, and included banjo quartette numbers, violin selections, songs, etc. The members of this group were M. Bell, D. Scott, K. Stapley, R. Matheson, C. West, C. Baker, Bob Patterson and Bill Jones. The numbers offered by this group were well received and enjoyed by those present.

A delicious lunch, served by the members of the Orange Lodge was thoroughly enjoyed, as was the period of social intercourse which accompanied the serving of the tasty refreshments.

Many were the favourable remarks heard about the success of the evening, and everyone expressed the hope that evenings of this kind would not in future be a rarity. No better plan for the furthering of a spirit of co-operation and general good-will could be mentioned than gatherings such as that of last evening, when the brethren of the two organizations were given such a fine opportunity to meet on common ground.

TEACHERS TO BE RE-ENGAGED

Regular Monthly Meeting of Board of Education Held on Monday

The teaching staffs of the Stirling Public and High Schools, with the exception of Mr. R. G. Lawlor, who is retiring at the end of the present term, will be offered re-engagement for the coming school year. So decided the members of the Board of Education at the regular monthly meeting held in the High School on Monday Night. The members of the Board present were Messrs Walter Wright, Vice-Chairman; H. C. Martin, J. B. Belshaw, E. G. Bailey, Wm. Patterson, Chas. Linn, Ewart Bailey, J. S. Morton, Dr. H. H. Alger and Dr. C. F. Walt. Mr. J. B. Belshaw acted as chairman in the absence of Chairman E. Luery.

Mr. C. A. Wells, principal of the Public School, outlined to the Board some new equipment it had been found necessary to purchase. However, he assured the members that he was keeping within the amount specified for this purpose. He also stated that the school would hold "Open House" to the citizens on Friday, May 22nd. At 3 o'clock p.m. an Empire programme comprising several numbers by the students, and probably an address by some outside speaker, will be presented, following which the general public will be allowed to inspect the work of the pupils in Manual Training, Household Science, etc.

Referring to the attendance, which had been badly disrupted by the recent epidemic of measles, Mr. Wells said it was again back to normal.

Dr. H. H. Alger, M.O.H., reported that the village was now free of infectious diseases.

The all-important question of the re-engagement of the teachers for another year was introduced by Dr. Walt. Since Mr. Lawlor's resignation had created a vacancy in the High School staff, said, Dr. Walt, the teachers committee had discussed various plans, but felt they should have some instructions from the Board as to what salaries were to be paid. Then followed a lengthy discussion in which every member of the Board present had a part. It finally terminated in the teachers' committee being authorized to offer re-engagement to the High School staff as follows: Mr. H. M. Scollie, $1600, same as last year; Misses K. Mundy, B. Burch and A. Calow, $1500 each, a reduction of $100 over last year. The principal's position

SPECIAL COUNCIL MEETING

A special meeting of the Village Council was held in the Council Chambers last Friday night for further consideration of the Auditors' report. Messrs N. E. Eggleton and C. E. Macklin were present as a deputation from the local merchants and presented a petition signed by practically all the business men, requesting the Council to pass a by-law compelling all business places to close at 11.30 on Saturday nights. The discussion which followed proved to be a very lengthy one and ended with no decision being made. Councillor Cranston and Councillor Burkitt took the stand that the matter was one that should be settled among the merchants themselves, while Councillor Rollins said he felt the Council should accede to the merchants' wishes.

Permission was granted the Salvation Army from Tweed to hold a tag day in Stirling on May 9th.

Reeve West occupied the chair and was supported by Councillors D. Burkitt, Thos. Cranston and C. B. Rollins.

Dog Nuisance

While the season for the making of flower beds and the planting of shrubs is not very far advanced, one already hears complaints about dogs running at large and trespassing on private property, causing damage to lawns and shrubbery. Every year much is heard of the dog nuisance and the damage done by these roaming canines, but nothing is ever done about it. There is a by-law governing the control of dogs on the municipal statutes, but there might as well not be any, since no effort is made to enforce it. There are some dog owners in the village who keep their dogs at home, but there are apparently many others who have the very erroneous idea that once they buy a tag (and some don't even do that) their canine may roam anywhere it wishes. There is little incentive for a resident to spend both money and time in an effort to beautify his home surroundings with shrubs and flowers when dogs are allowed to run at large to destroy the fruits of his labours. It is to be hoped that some action is taken by the authorities to deal with this matter.

Worthy of Support

On May 5th, the Stirling Citizens' Band is holding an Amateur Night in the local theatre in an effort to raise funds with which to finance this organization. This type of entertainment is becoming quite common in other centres and we are glad that the children and adults of Stirling and district will be given an opportunity to display their talents before a home audience.

The members of the Band are sparing no efforts to make this event an outstanding success. Two classes will be provided, one for the children under fourteen, and one for the adults. Any who intend to take part in the program should get his or her entry in early, because time will only permit the presenting of a limited number of auditions on the evening's program. A committee of three competent outside judges has been appointed and eight cash prizes will be offered.

The Band is an organization that is doing a good work in Stirling and is deserving of the fullest support from the citizens. There are too many people ready to criticize the band, even though they are not aware of the trouble that its officers find in keeping things going. The money derived from this event will assist in financing the organization.

We trust that the citizens of Stirling and district will rally to the support of the Band and by their attendance on Tuesday night next show their appreciation of the efforts of this worthy organization.

Stirling Needs Merchants' Association

At a special meeting of the Village Council held last Friday night, a deputation of local merchants armed with a petition signed by practically every business man in Stirling, waited upon the town fathers, requesting them to pass a by-law that would compel the business men to close their places of business at 11.30 o'clock on Saturday nights. This deputation was the direct result of the efforts of some of the business men who have grown tired of keeping their shops open until midnight on Saturday, or long after, in order to serve their customers, and who would like to see a change made.

In rural communities such as Stirling, business is usually best on Saturday and the merchants are naturally anxious to do all the business they can, but they shouldn't be expected, or for that matter allowed, to continue to serve customers after the midnight hour. The shoppers themselves are partially to blame when they spend the early part of the evening visiting with their friends, or attending other functions and leave their shopping until the last thing. As the situation is at present, one merchant will not close before his neighbour for fear he might lose some business, and the other marchant keeps open because someone else keeps open. And so it goes, all down the line.

While some members of Council were in favour of acceding to the wishes of the merchants and passing a by-law compelling the business places to close at 11.30 p.m., others thought it was strictly a problem for the business men to decide among themselves. Consequently, no action was taken in the matter.

On different occasions in the past, we have suggested through these columns that the business men of Stirling should organize as an Association. If this were done they would be in a position to speak as a body, on matters affecting the business life of the municipality. The matter of early closing is just one of the many problems that crop up from time to time throughout the year for settlement. The Wednesday afternoon half-holiday is another, and one over which there appears to be a considerable difference of opinion at present. By meeting together and interchanging ideas, much could be done for the betterment of the community. If people living in the immediate vicinity of Stirling are patronizing other communities, there is some reason for it. A business men's association could investigate and steps taken to remedy the situation. There are many other problems such an organization could solve. No live town or village can afford to be without one.

According to information available this village had a Board of Trade some years ago but it was allowed to become passive. This might be re-organized at this time, or some similar organization formed. With the small town merchants being faced with strong competition from the mail order houses of the larger centres nothing that will aid in promoting a better community spirit or that tends to promote better business should be overlooked.

CURRENT COMMENT

Those who use the railways for transportation purposes will be able to travel at a reduced rate after June 1st, when a general reduction will be made in passenger fares. This action has been advocated in some quarters for a long time and railway officials are finally trying it in an effort to increase passenger traffic and regain it from competitive bus lines, and the private motor cars. The results of the experiment will be awaited with interest.

Acting under instructions from the Village Council the tax collector has been making a drive to collect the outstanding taxes owing the municipality. So far there has not been a very good response on the part of those in arrears, and sterner measures will probably have to be taken. There should be no misapprehension on the part of the delinquents because the members of Council are determined to clean up the arrears. If the taxes are not paid within a certain time limit, the collector has been instructed to enlist the aid of the bailiff in order to collect them. The members of council are elected to manage the affairs of the municipality like any other business corporation, and it is impossible to carry on without money. While it may be considered by some as a drastic step to take, there seems to be no other way out, and so long as everybody is treated alike, little fault can be found with it.

Several of the municipalities in this section have announced their tax rates for the current year, but the Stirling rate will not be struck for possibly a month yet. While the ratepayers are no doubt hoping for the same rate as last year, or, better still, a further reduction, it is quite apparent that there is liable to be a slight increase this year. Council has endeavoured to get along without expending any money, but what has been absolutely necessary, but there have been some unexpected demands on the public purse, such as the flood damage, and epidemics, that will have to be met out of the current year's revenue. Under the circumstances we wouldn't be surprised if there was a slight increase in the Stirling rate.

While announcement has been made by the Ontario Department of Highways that certain roads throughout the province will be permanently surfaced this coming summer, no word has been forthcoming of the Department's intentions in regard to Highway No. 14, from Marmora to Foxboro, which passes through this village. Last fall some drainage work was done on the stretch between Stirling and Foxboro and it was generally understood locally that this road would be surfaced this year. But whether or not this is so remains to be seen. This road carries a very heavy traffic and requires gangs of maintenance men on the job all the time, to keep it in any kind of shape. Even when it is at its best there is always the dust nuisance to contend with. Last year it was given a treatment to allay the dust, but it was late in the season when it was applied. Even now the dust is flying in clouds on this road and when traffic is heavy it is very disagreeable driving. The money spent on this road year after year in maintenance work, oiling, etc, would aid materially in giving it a permanent surface.

There used to be a belief widely held, if it is not still, that the farm boy, who had graduated from High School or university, was more likely to make good than the boy from town. It is interesting to see what is probably at the bottom of this belief. According to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics the census shows that only one country boy in five is at school between the ages of 15 and 19 whereas two or more of every five city boys at the same age are in school. In other words the proportion of boys who go to high school is less than half as great from the farms as from the towns. At university ages, say from 20 to 24, there is only one-third as large a percentage of the country boys who are still studying. This smaller selection from the farms is likely to include those who have been the best students in their earlier years at school, for parents will make a greater effort to give their brightest student a higher education. So it would not be surprising if the farm boys with a high school or university education would make a better average academic showing than the numerous groups from the towns. Of course, this is not to say that the rural child's intelligence averages higher than the town child's, but just that the boys from the farm who get a higher education are a much smaller section of the total.

PERTH'S GOOD WISHES

(Almonte Gazette)

"Goodbye and Good Luck", reads a highway sign outside a cemetery at one of the boundaries of Perth. While some people might think the farewell a little too cheerful in view of the location, it goes to show the deep interest Perth people feel in their fellow humans no matter what kind of a journey they may be embarked upon.

DISAPPOINTED

(Havelock Standard)

The young men employed on the staff of this great family journal tell us about the young man about town who expected a proposal or two by this time are beginning to think that this leap year talk is a fake, and that while some of the more ambitious chaps had sprouted moustaches in an endeavour to impress the gals with their manhood, they have become so disgusted with the lack of results, that they have shaved off the down on their upper lips. Why not try a goatee, boys, says we.

HASTINGS ROAD A DISGRACE

(Bancroft Times)

It is many years since the roads in North Hastings have been in as bad a condition as they are this spring, particularly so the Hastings road from Bannockburn to Bancroft, has been badly damaged and large expenditures for repairs will be necessary. In fact from what motorists tell us we believe that this is the worst stretch of road in Eastern Ontario. Can you imagine putting in twelve hours making the journey between here and Madoc, a distance of less than fifty miles? That was the experience of several motorists from this village last week, and to make matters, worse, had to abandon their motors and leave them by the roadside, getting home as best they could. Without a doubt this section of road eclipses anything in Ontario for being the "rockiest road to Dublin". Surely some action will be taken to improve what is termed the connecting link between the North and the South, just now the "bottomless pit." It is an absolute disgrace to those responsible for its maintenance, and the residents which it serves are deserving of more favourable consideration.

Quick action of the part of Engineer John G. Skelcher, of Belleville, saved a fast Canadian National Railway train from destruction on Sunday night when he saw the tire fly to pieces on the right driving wheel. The train was travelling at 50 miles an hour at the time and the mishap occurred just west of the station platform. The train quickly drew to a stop and only the baggage car left the rails. No one was injured and those in the back part of the train did not know what caused the delay. Another engine was obtained and 40 minutes later the train proceeded on its way. About 200 were on the train.

NEWS OF INTEREST FOR BUSY FARMERS

Plans for Cheese Storage

The drastic changes which the Ontario Cheese Factory Patrons' Association are planning for the handling of cheese in Eastern Ontario this season were outlined at a meeting held recently at Winchester. At the meeting of the Dundas County Patrons' Association, W. J. Stewart, Morewood, the chairman, outlined the proposed action, which was being taken under the provisions of the Natural Products Marketing Act.

All cheese produced in Ontario, east of Toronto, must now be sold through some recognized Board, and buyers have to have a license. Under an agreement with the railroads all cheese will be gathered once a week within a radius of 30 miles of Winchester, and will be delivered there to a cool storage, where it will be held until graded, after which it will be warehoused in Montreal, at a cost of 25 cents per cwt. The Winchester storage plant will receive 3½ cents per box, which will be absorbed by the buyer.

Buy Feeds on Guarantee

Do not find yourself with a "goldbrick" feed, money spent and no value in return. Oat feeds analysed in the laboratories of the Dominion Experimental Farms have had a range from 4 to 14 per cent. of protein and from 10 to 30 per cent. of fibre, meat meals of from 40 to 65 per cent. protein and phosphoric acid from 10 to 20 per cent. Therefore do not buy your feeds blindly but study the guaranteed analyses, as printed on bags or other containers so that you know of what value the feeds are for your specific purpose, and also as compared with other feeds of the same class.

Starters for the Chicks

The feed firms manufacturing chick starters and growing feeds which remove the guesswork in feeding. They embody in the feeds all that is required to grow and develop the chicks to a certain age. They have a line of feed for baby chicks through to the laying hens and also for fattening off the cockerels. This facilitates the work for the poultryman.

However, there are some who prefer to mix their own feeds, and as the O.A.C. cafeteria chick ration has been requested several times lately, we are giving it herewith, but advise that thoroughness in mixing the different ingredients is important. Mechanical mixers in the large feed plants do a better job than is possible with the shovel.

Following is a baby chick cafeteria ration:

Rolled wheat, 320 lbs.; wheat bran, 60 lbs.; Wheat germ, 100 lbs.; white hominy, 330 lbs.; ground yellow corn, 340 lbs.; rolled barley, 100 lbs.; rolled oat groats, 300 lbs.; ground oats, 100 lbs.; ground peas, 60 lbs.; soybean oil meal, 40 lbs.; powdered milk, 140 lbs.; meat meal, 80 lbs.; fish meal, 20 lbs.; cod liver meal, 10 lbs.; one pint cod-liver oil to each 100 lbs. mixture.

Help to Make Canada More Beautiful

The unlovely things and unattractive places in Canada that displease the eye are made by man. It is time he set out to undo some of the damage that has been done. There are primrose paths for all to tread who care to make them. An amazing amount of worry can be spaded under along those paths in a bright spring afternoon. Since Adam tilled the first garden many pastimes have come to claim their thousands, but have passed out of the picture while gardening has stood through the centuries. There must be something in it. Buy some flower seeds, plant some flowers or shrubs this spring. Help to make Canada more beautiful.

Don't Forget The Corn Borer this Spring

Speaking to a large gathering of farmers at the O.A.C. in January, the Provincial Entomolist reminded his hearers that the corn borer last year came back with a vengeance and increased on an average nearly threefold. This increase he attributed largely to the moist warm weather last June and July — the critical months for the insect. The increase, however, was much greater in counties not under the Act than those under it. In many counties there is now much fear that the borer will again increase this year. The entimologist says there is little doubt that it will do so if we get nice moist growing weather again in June and July. And meteorologists seem to think that we are entering upon a series of wetter seasons.

To guard against such increase and the damage it would bring to the corn industry it is necessary to remind growers that the Corn Borer Act will be enforced this year in all counties where it was enforced last year, and that the inspectors, owing to the serious situation, will be instructed to be stricter and firmer in seeing that it is complied with by all.

In counties where there is no Act the growers are urged to plow under all corn stubble carefully and to gather and burn or plow down any corn stalk or pieces of corn left unconsumed anywhere. This is because almost all the borers are in the stubble and other corn remnants until June and can be destroyed by burning or plowing these under, and not dragging them up again.

Planting the Woodlot

(By I. C. Marritt)

Planting is necessary if it is desired to increase the area in woodland.

Trees require light for growth. Many owners who have planted trees in shade have been disappointed because the trees have not done well. Different species differ in the shade that they will grow under. Some species such as Scotch pine, European larch, red oak and paper birch require full sunlight. White ash and red pine require plenty of light. White pine will grow in half shade. White spruce, hemlock, sugar maple and beech will grow in denser shade than other species. White and red pine, white spruce and sugar maple may be planted in the shade of poplar.

There will be natural reproduction starting in the woods and on this account the six foot spacing that is recommended in plantations is not necessary. The same is true in underplanting poplar and paper birch.

Spot planting is the best method to follow in woodlot planting. Remove the sod from a 1½-2 foot square and plant the tree in the centre of the spot. The sods should not be placed back around the planted trees as the grass competes with the tree for moisture. It is better to leave a slight depression in order that much needed moisture will not run off. Keep the roots of the trees moist until they are planted and the easiest and most sure method is to carry the trees in a pail of water. Labour may be reduced in an open woods and plantations by plowing shallow furrows. The trees are planted in the bottom of the furrow.

Residents of Ontario may secure trees free for planting in the woodlot. Application forms and descriptive literature may be obtained from the Forestry Branch, Parliament Buildings, Government tree nurseries or the county Agricultural Representative.

MOFFATT—PREST

A quiet wedding was solemnized at St. Mark's Church on Saturday evening last, April 25th, when Mr. Peter E. Moffatt, of Marmora, was united in marriage to Miss Florence E. Prest, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. H. Prest, of Bonarlaw. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon W. G. Swayne, Rector of St. Mark's. The bridesmaid was Miss Elsie Burridge, of Marmora and the best man was Mr. Thos. Moffatt, brother of the groom. The bride looked charming in a smart tailored navy blue suit, with plaid taffeta blouse and navy blue hat. After the ceremony she donned a grey tweed travelling coat. The happy couple left for a motor trip to Ottawa and other Eastern points. On their return they will live in Marmora Township.

AGED FRANKFORD RESIDENT PASSES

Frankford's oldest resident, Mr. James Jordan, passed away at the home of his son, Edward Jordan, 5th concession of Sidney, on Sunday afternoon. The deceased was ninety-six years of age and was in good health up until the time of his sudden death. He was born in Picton, the son of the late Edward Jordan and Anne Murphy.

He leaves to mourn his loss one daughter, Mrs. J. J. McNabb, of Trenton and one son, Edward, with whom he resided. The funeral was held on Tuesday morning at ten o'clock in St. Francis of Assisi Catholic Church, in Frankford. Solemn requiem high mass was sung by Rev. Fr. Farrell. Interment was made in Frankford Cemetery.

SUNSHINE MISSION BAND

The April monthly Mission Band meeting of St. Andrew's Church, at West Huntingdon, was held in the Church auditorium. The President, Miss Jean Thompson, presided and opened the meeting by singing the hymn "Come let us sing of a wonderful love", followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. Miss Lorna Wright read the Scripture lesson, taken from St. Matthew's gospel, the 28th chapter, verses 16-20. A reading pertaining to Easter was given by Miss Jean Thompson. The Mission Band Leader, Mrs. S. Donnan, told a story of a lost bulb. It was found, and with care and attention became an Easter Lily. Russell Sills read from the Study Book a chapter entitled "Homes in Japan, Children in far-away Formosa and Children and their customs in China." The hymn "Hear the Pennies dropping" and "Jesus Loves me this I know" were sung, and the meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

ST. PAUL'S Y. P. S.

St. Paul's Young People's Union held their regular meeting in the Church parlours on Monday evening, with Miss Mary Hulin, President, in charge of the devotional period and opening exercises. The meeting opened with a song service, followed by a responsive scripture reading and The Lord's Prayer in unison. The remaining portion of the evening was under the direction of Miss Dorothy Eggleton, 4th Vice-President. Mrs. Harold Detlor delighted the audience with a sacred solo "He careth for Thee", accompanied at the piano by Miss Mae Currie. The main feature of the evening was an address on "Radio", by Mr. Colin Fox, and to add interest to his splendid address, exhibited several diagrams and charts of the various types of hook-ups used. During his discussion, the speaker reviewed the history and progress of radio since its very beginning, in 1881, even before that, as early as 1831, when work was started by an inventor named Faraday. In 1881 Hertz expounded the theory that the magnetic waves were in complete accordance with the waves of light and heat, which is the foundation of our present day radio. In 1896 Marconi made his application for the first British patent for wireless telegraphy. With the aid of a series of diagrams, the speaker explained the functioning and principals of early receivers, tubes and crystals. The crystal set was used until recent years. Explaining in a clear manner the fast progress made in the industry up to its present stage, Mr. Fox closed his address by setting forth the value of radio for commercial purposes and its value to all fields of aeronautics. As a rapid means of communication for ships in distress, its value in times of climatic disturbances, floods, cyclones and earthquakes could never be estimated. An example of its usefulness in this respect was its use during the Moose River tragedy. Within its short life, radio has saved thousands of lives. This was a most interesting and educative address. The final number on this programme was a "Name" Contest, directed by Miss Dorothy Eggleton, white and khaki divisions gaining equal honours. The meeting was brought to a close with the Mizpah Benediction.

The Country Doctor

A Novelization of the Twentieth Century-Fox Film, Starring the Dionne Quintuplets With Jean Hersholt, Dorothy Peterson, June Lang, Michael Whalen and Slim Summerville

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DR. JOHN LUKE, country doctor in the little north woods settlement of Moosetown, receives an emergency call to the lumber mill when MIKE SCANLAN, lumberman, is crushed under a fallen log.

Mike has a close call, is obliged to stay behind when the mill crew leaves at the end of the season.

Storms isolate Moosetown, breaking telegraph and telephone connections. Then a diphtheria epidemic strikes the community. FATHER BONEL, parish priest, and Dr. Luke convert the church into an isolation hospital.

Mike Scanlan, who, since his injury has been tinkering with a radio set, tries to get a message through to Montreal, to have antitoxin sent by plane.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IV.

Minute followed long minute in the little room. There was no sound but Mike's droning voice, "CQ, CQ — any amateur, especially Montreal ....."

"Don't you hear anything?" pleaded Dr. Luke.

Mike made a gesture for silence. "CQ, CQ ....." he repeated, and listened more intently.

Then from his receivers came a voice, strained and faraway, but audible, barely audible. "CQ. Go ahead!" it said.

"I've got it! I've got it!" cried Mike wildly. The faraway voice droned a station number.

"Quick! Take it! It's Montreal!" whispered Mike.

Fumbling clumsily, nervously, his skillful hands all thumbs for once, Dr. Luke took Mike's place at the table. His voice trembled in the effort to speak clearly.

"Can you get a message to my brother, Dr. Paul Luke, at the Curzon Street Hospital? It's very serious — an emergency! Can you get hold of him and let me talk to him?"

"Yes, sir, I'll do it! I'll get him and try to call you back in 30 minutes!" The faraway voice was clearly that of a very young boy. So much depended on his understanding, acting. Sweat stood out on the doctor's forehead as he pronounced "Thank you very much." Then with a faint click the receiver went dead.

Dr. Luke subsided on the edge of the bed. Mike leaned back on the pillows. They looked at each other in silent dread, in awful helplessness. Was the receiver at the other end a responsible person? The voice sounded like that of a mere boy. Had he really understood? Would he do anything? Both Mike and the doctor felt their utter helplessness. There was nothing they could do, nothing even that they could say. Each kept his thoughts to himself.

Once Mike made a gesture toward the apparatus on the table, then he caught himself. "Better not monkey with it," he muttered. "It brought them in before. Maybe it will again. Honest, I don't know enough about it to try to change ....."

The doctor shook his head. Both were silent. Twenty minutes passed. Thirty. Thirty-five. An alarm clock on the bureau ticked disconcertingly. Then there was a faint buzzing on the instrument board.

* * *

Mike tensed toward the instruments, torn between the temptation to make adjustments so as to resolve the voice, and the chance that he might lose it entirely. Then it came clearer. A station call letter could be distinguished.

"Here he is, Doc! Talk to him!" quivered Mike.

The doctor again slid into position before the table.

"Hello, Paul?"

"What is it, John? Are you all right?" The voice was clear and distinct. Thank God! Thank God! both men murmured inaudibly deep inside themselves.

"I'm all right, but we're in a bad way, Paul." The doctor's voice was steadying now. "It's diphtheria — and we're snowed in. Wires down, blizzard raging. The serum's just about gone, and we've got to have more — right away. Got more than 30 children in an isolation ward in the church!"

"Can a car get through?" came Dr. Paul's voice.

"No, the roads are completely blocked. Go to the Trading Company. See Sir Basil Crawford. See him — the head man — himself. Tell him he's GOT to send a plane with a supply of serum — today!"

Then the doctor's voice rang with the simple sincerity and all the devotion of the lifetime he had given "his" children.

"You've GOT to get somebody, Mike," breathed the doctor. "You've GOT to! Those children up there in the hospital!"

"Tell him about the 30 children, Paul! You've got to help me. He's going to help me!"

"I understand, John," came the brother's voice. "I'll see Sir Basil immediately. I'll see that you get the serum. Goodbye. Steady it is, until we get there!"

The call resolved itself into a series of call-letters and signals, then faded away.

"I knew Paul would do it!" There was a choke in Dr. Luke's voice.

Mike wiped beads of sweat from his forehead. "Gee! Was that exciting," he whispered. "Just like a movie."

Dr. Luke appeared not to have heard him at all. There was an almost religious thankfulness in his voice as he said:

"Mike, it's a funny thing. As long as you had good legs, you were just a dumb lumberman. Along comes a spruce log — and the next thing you know your brain starts working. You build a radio, and ....." The doctor broke into an almost hysterical little chuckle, "it works!"

Then, as if he feared to trust himself to speak farther, he rose and almost abruptly strode out the door. His sleigh and the patient horse shivering in the icy blast of snow were waiting. Instantly the thought of the church-hospital and the children crowded out everything else. "Sorry, old fellow," said the doctor, gently, rubbing the horse's nose. "I guess this is just one of those nights. There'll be apples and a good bedding of hay for you later." The doctor was half-dozing under the blankets when the horse pulled up in front of the church door.

Nurse Kennedy met him in the vestibule. "This is the last of the serum," said she gravely, handing him a box. "Laura Ogden needs it badly."

The doctor had already shucked off his big fur overcoat. "Well, I don't know of anyone. I'd rather see have it than Jim Ogden's child," he said. A few minutes later he was wiping his hypodermic needle and putting it back in its worn leather case.

* * *

He made his rounds then, shaking his head sadly from time to time.

At intervals he would shuffle to the church door and turn sleepless eyes toward the skies. A figure came tramping toward him through the driving snow during one of these anxious vigils.

At first he could not make out who it was, then as the figure came closer, its bulk made it certain that it could be no one but MacKenzie. Gruffly, MacKenzie shot out a question: "Is Mary in there, Doc?"

"Yes, she is," replied Dr. Luke softly. "And it was a pretty gallant and generous thing, Mac."

"Send her home — at once!" came MacKenzie's peremptory command.

"But I need her, Mack," interposed the doctor mildly. "Didn't you tell her—"

"No!"

There was a pause. Then, "She's safe, you know," suggested the doctor.

MacKenzie spoke with cold deliberation. "Dr. Luke, you seem to forget that I'm capable of deciding for my own family —" then his voice rose to an angry pitch, "— just as you seem to have forgotten that I am the head of this community — not you!"

"Ridiculous!" snorted the doctor in return.

"And I warn you now," continued MacKenzie in a rising voice, "that when you begin to get the idea that you're a bigger man than the district manager for the trading company that you're getting on mighty dangerous ground!" His manner was menacing as he leaned forward and shouted the words.

Curtly, and with just a shade of contempt, the doctor replied simply "I'll tell Mary you want her." He turned on his heel and re-entered the church, leaving MacKenzie staring after him with dislike and hatred on his face.

Dr. Luke beckoned to Nurse Kennedy. "Tell Mary to go home," he said briefly. "Tell her we appreciate all she's done — but that we will not need her any longer."

Nurse Kennedy surveyed him cynically. She understood what had happened. "Do you blame her for wanting to get away.

Weary to the soul, Dr. Luke picked his way through the crowded church aisles, through the chancel rail and into the dingy vestry. He passed a tired hand over his eyes and relaxed in a chair, completely exhausted. In spite of himself he dozed into fitful sleep.

* * *

He was conscious of Nurse Kennedy standing beside the chair. "Didn't mean to wake you up, Doctor," she said, "but you needed those few hours of sleep and you WOULDN'T go to bed."

"Shouldn't have allowed it, Katherine," he reproached her, rising stiffly from the chair. "Looke here. You blew up a little bit this morning Katherine."

"I ought to be kicked," rejoined the nurse remorsefully.

"I just want to warn you," went on the doctor wearily, "that what we've been through is nothing to what we may have to go through now."

"No news at all?" asked the nurse.

"Oh, you can't blame 'em," he went on tonelessly. "We're just a little settlement on the edge of nowhere, and this weather and all — they're human, too. Only — I guess I've never learned to take things the way a doctor ought to take them. I know all these kids, and their mamas and daddies. They're my babies. I brought 'em into the world. And I have to see 'em strangle to death because — ?

His sudden anger died away. He cocked his head, listening intently. Then, excitedly,

"What's that? Hear that noise? By golly, that's it. A plane!"

The two leaped from the side door of the vestry into the chill air. High above, unseen in the waning blizzard, was the unmistakable drone of an airplane motor.

What's that? Hear that, Nurse?" cried Dr. Luke excitedly. High above, unseen in the waning blizzard, was the drone of an airplane motor.

CALL HOME on those Sundays away from Home!

Jim Howard looks forward to the week-ends. He likes to spend them at home in the bosom of his family. So, when a prolonged business trip found him at loose ends in a strange town that sunny Sunday morning, his cup of sorrow and discontent was overflowing — until he suddenly thought of Long Distance and the new Low Sunday Rates. "It will be almost as good as being with them" thought Jim as he briskly stepped to the telephone.

FINED FOR OPERATING SLOT MACHINE

Found guilty of keeping common gaming houses, two Cannifton garagemen, George Lywood and J. A. Carmichael, were fined $15.00 and costs each and had the pin machines seized, when the accused men appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C. on Monday. Both men pleaded ignorance of the fact they were breaking the law when they gave cash premiums to players who operated their machines. "I was informed by the distributors, that it was perfectly legitimate to give premiums, as long as cash prizes were not awarded to the winning players," stated Mr. Carmichael, while Mr. Lywood was equally as frank in his testimony. "The fact that these men operated slot machines and gave premiums, when the machines are for amusement only, coupled with their plea of guilty, settles the matter. I therefore ask for a fine and an order for the confiscation of the machines and their subsequent destruction," added Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C. His request was granted by the Bench. The machines must be held in custody for a period of fifty days, before they can be destroyed, it was pointed out by Magistrate Butler, however. Two Cannifton youths, Ross and Ralph Downey, were the Crown's witnesses, both testifying they has received premiums, upon attaining certain scores, while playing the two machines in question. The cases were sequels to the previous case, when the pin machine at Lywood's garage was broken open and the cash stolen two weeks ago. The cases were investigated and brought to trial by Provincial Constable L. C. Carr. When commenting on the cases after sentences had been meted out, Magistrate Butler said — "Most of these types of slot machines introduced into this country are gambling devices and this practice must be stopped even if we have to go to the full extent of the law," warned His Worship.

THERE COMES A TIME

"Praise God from Whom all Blessings Flow" — that grand old doxology hymn, was sung by the crowd of miners and others engaged in rescue work at Moose River Mines, as well as spectators, when the men were brought to the surface — and the hymn was sung with fervour, expressing heartfelt thanks that the Giver of All Good had helped and protected the rescuers in their perilous drive to liberate the imprisoned men. It is not strange that instinctively in time of stress the heart turns to God — it is only strange that man forgets so soon when fortune smiles and life flows on like a song.

DON'T QUIT

When things go wrong, as they sometimes will,
When the road you're trudging seems all uphill;
When funds are low and the debts are high,
And you want to smile, but you have to sigh;
When care is pressing you down a bit
Rest, if you must, but don't you quit.

Life is queer with its twists and turns
As every one of us sometimes learns.
And many a failure turns about
When he might have won if he stuck it out;
Don't give up though the pace seems slow —
You may succeed with another blow.

Often the struggler has given up
When he might have captured the victor's cup;
So stick to the fight when you're hardest hit —
It's when things seem worst that you mustn't quit.

BELLEVILLE MARKET

Price fluctuations in nearly all lines of produce marked one of the largest attended markets of the season on Saturday, with the possible exception of potatoes, maple syrup and vegetable staples, which however, in some instances showed a marked increase in these lines.

Potatoes are scarce in spite of predictions, declare wholesalers, marking a $1.90 and $2.00 sign on their registered bags. On the open market, however, prices for the registered seed ranged slightly lower than retailed in the city, averaging from $1.80 to $1.90. For the common table variety a price of from $1.30, $1.40 to $1.60 was being received for the 75-pound bag. Vegetables for the most part remained firm, with turnips, beets, carrots, parsnips at 30 cents the peck. Green onions, raddishes, lettuce were at five cents the bunch. Only forced rhubarb remained at 10 cents.

On the dairy market prices were uncertain as offerings displayed were noted. Butter again dropped slightly selling at the average price of 22, 23 to 25 cents the pound. Eggs remained about stationary due to the fact that the best are now being used for hatching purposes. The usual price ranged from 15 to 18 to 19 cents per dozen. Fowl were not too plentiful, with chickens being held at from 50 cents to 70 for the plump birds, and from $1.25 to $1.50 the pair. Syrup, with only a limited supply left found fewer buyers at from $1.60 to $1.75.

Plump carp, weighing from 20 to 30 pounds were offered at 50 cents. Mudcats, in spite of the cold weather and the difficulty in getting them, were cheaper, for the first time this season, at two pounds for 25c or 15c per pound. The supply was soon exhausted. Carp retailed at 5 cents each. Pike at 20c each.

Although a brisker trade in seeds and grains was evident in supply houses, little change in the market on the whole was evident, with the possible exception of potatoes. Only slightly lower prices were reported in the retail meat trade.

STIRLING NO EXCEPTION

Speaking of the rontinuous free publicity and community support given by local newspapers, Governor Francis of Missouri pays the following tribute: "Each year the local paper gives from $50 to $1000 in free lines to the community in which it is located. No other agent can or will do this. The editor, in proportion to his means, does more for his own town than any other ten men, and in all fairness he ought to be supported not because you like him or admire his writings, but because the local paper is the best investment a community can make. Today the editors of the local papers do the most for the least money of any people on earth."

IF SO, WHY NOT?

If water you freeze is frozen,
Is the maiden you squeeze, then squozen?
If a thing you break is broken,
Would a thing you take be token?

If the plural of child is children,
Would the plural of wild be wildren?
If a number of cows are cattle,
Would a number of bows be battle?

If a man who makes plays is a playwright,
Would a man who makes hay be a haywright?
If a person who spends is a spendthrift,
Would a person who lends be a lendthrift?

If the apple you bite is bitten,
Would the battle you fight be fitten?
And if a young cat is a kitten,
Then would a young rat be a ritten?

If a person who fails is a failure,
Would a person who quails be a quailure?
If drinking too much makes a drunkard,
Would thinking too much make a thunkard?

But why pile on the confusion?
Still, I'd like to ask in conclusion:
If a chap from New York's a New Yorker,
Would a chap who's from Cork be a Corker?

AIRPORT EXTENSION

Among the supplementary estimates totalling $60,000,000 brought down in the House recently by Minister of Finance Dunning was the item $430,000 for extension of buildings at the Trenton Airport.

WALK ON THE LEFT

The Ontario Department of Highways will take steps to keep as many pedestrians as possible out of mortuary parlors. About 100 signs will be erected in this district reading: "Walk to the Left; Face Traffic." The signs will be about a foot square and placed at intervals of three to four miles. Highway officials for years have been urging pedestrians to walk on the left side of the road. Within the next few days the highway department will replace and repaid many signs damaged by snow during the winter.

"Now boys," said the teacher, tell me the signs of the zodiac. You first, Thomas."

"Taurus, the Bull."

"Right! Now you, Harold, another one."

"Cancer, the Crab."

"Right again. And now it's your turn, Albert."

The boy looked puzzled, hesitated a moment, and then blurted out: "Mickey, the Mouse."

GREEN — BREMER

The wedding of Miss Virginia Faxton Bremer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Bremer of 64 Sagamore Road, Bronxville, to Dr. C. Stanley Green, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Chas. S. Green, of 437 Palisade Avenue, took place at 12 noon today at the Church of the Ascension in Mount Vernon. The pastor, the Rev. Melford L. Brown, officiated at the service, which was performed in the presence of members of the two families and followed by a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents for those who attended the ceremony. Decorating the church were snapdragons in pastel shades. Mr. Bremer gave his daughter in marriage. She was gowned in a tunic dress of navy blue chiffon taffeta and wore white orchids at the neckline, and a large straw hat of navy. Mrs. Edgar P. Small, of New York City, the bride's only attendant, was frocked in aquamarine crepe and wore a large black straw hat and black accessories. Her flowers were white gardenias. Mr. Small was best man for the bridegroom. The mother of the bride was dressed in a navy blue tucked chiffon and wore a hat to match and a corsage of violets. The bridegroom's mother wore a navy blue cape dress, a matching hat of straw and a corsage of gardenias. After a wedding trip to Washington, D.C., the couple will be at home after June 1 in Princeton, N.J., where Dr. Green is a practicing physician. Mrs. Green received her education at Brantwood Hall, in Bronxville, and Sarah Lawrence College. Dr. Green, who was graduated from Exeter Academy, Exeter, N.H., attended Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., and last June was graduated from the Kirksville College of Osteopathy, Kirksville, Mo.

Dr. Stanley Green is the grandson of the late Mr. David Tucker and Mrs. Eliza Tucker, of Sine. Mrs. Tucker, a most highly respected resident, still resides on the old homestead. At ninety-four years of age she is still hale and hearty.

The Rocky Mountains Call

Two of the most democratic societies in the world, whose membership includes a former king and queen, famous statesmen, and common folks, all on an equal footing, are the Sky-Line Trail Hikers and Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies, whose annual outings this year promise something new in the way of scenery and energetic healthy recreation.

The Trail Riders, whose five-day trip starts from the Banff Springs Hotel on July 31, will tour a section of the Park which was chosen by Major P. J. Jennings, superintendent of Banff National Park, for the interesting variety it offers. The centre of activities for the Sky-Line Trail Hikers, from August 7 to 10, will be Lake O'Hara, probably the most beautiful spot in the Rockies. In both cases there is splendid fishing in swift-running mountain streams, and unlimited opportunities for the camera enthusiast.

The Trail Ride actually begins about four miles from Banff, winds its way between Mount Edith and Mount Norquay, follows Fortymile Creek east of the Sawback Range, passes over Badger Pass, follows Johnston Creek down to the end of the spectacular canyon of the same name, and ends up near the highway where there is an ideal spot for the Pow Wow and Sing-Song that concludes every Trail Ride outing. It provides five care-free days with fine open Alpine meadows, high passes, good timber, and lakes and streams of great beauty.

Plans for the Sky-Line Trail Hike make provision for one central camp at Lake O'Hara. This will avoid changing camp every night as has been done in the past and will reduce the cost of the outing considerably. From Lake O'Hara the hikers will make forays of adventure over the Ross Lake trail to Lake Louise; through the Naroa Lake district; along spectacular Cataract Creek to the limpid beauty of Lake McArthur and along the McArthur creek trail; and southeast through the valleys of lofty Mounts Yukness, Hunabee, and Wenchemna.

THROUGH THE OFFICE WINDOW

BY The OFFICE OWL

Howdy folks!

———oOOOo———

That was a nice Spring we had, wasn't it?

———oOOOo———

Not being outside much on Monday, we missed it.

———oOOOo———

But we should be grateful for small mercies — it might be a lot worse —

———oOOOo———

We might have had just a half-day of sun this month instead of one whole day.

———oOOOo———

Well, it's funny, but things just ain't distributed right anyhow.

———oOOOo———

We occasionally hear some of the folks around town wishing they had a piece of land to work.

———oOOOo———

And now along comes Tommy Solmes grouching because he's already got too many pieces.

———oOOOo———

The local distributor of finer Insurance policies has added to his list of summer duties the tilling and planting, etc., of 175 acres back in Rawdon (out around Ernie Searles' Settlement).

———oOOOo———

Tommy has the right idea, just the same —

———oOOOo———

There ain't nothing small about him, when it comes to a thing of this kind.

———oOOOo———

According to reports, he has organized a group known as the Consolidated Crepehangers' Corporation —

———oOOOo———

Or the Seaside Sausage Sindicate —

———oOOOo———

Or the Brotherhood of Bigger and Better Buckwheat.

———oOOOo———

One report had it that it was to be called the Freer Fraternity of Philosophical Farmhands.

———oOOOo———

But we don't believe that.

———oOOOo———

Every detail of the organization procedure has received long and studious contemplation, and right down to the source of garments for the workers, it has been scientifically diagnosed.

———oOOOo———

Bill Anderson tendered on the overall supply for the men, but Bob Patterson beat him out.

———oOOOo———

It's funny how that happened, too, but it all goes to show that an inventive mind sometimes gets one farther along one's road, so to speak.

———oOOOo———

Not that Bill couldn't invent anything, if he tried, because we have seen labour-saving devices invented by Mr. Anderson that would make Edison or Marconi look like moth millers in your Chesterfield suite —

———oOOOo———

But Bob just got ahead of Bill on this one and gave the idea free of charge as a bait for the overalls and farm-garment order.

———oOOOo———

Before we go any farther, we suppose we might as well explain that invention of Bob's —

———oOOOo———

Well, in the first place, horses eat grain and hay.

———oOOOo———

There ain't any of either back at the newly-formed colony, so they couldn't figure on keeping a horse.

———oOOOo———

So Fred Mallory (he's to be the technical engineer) will be the one who is to guide the destinies of a real up-to-date tractor.

———oOOOo———

And even if a tractor does leave a little extra in the line of headlands, Tommy don't figure that'll matter much —

———oOOOo———

On account of there being 175 acres on the farm, they kind of figure they won't run short of land.

———oOOOo———

But, that's getting away from the invention —

———oOOOo———

You see the woodchucks are pretty thick back that way (being so close to Neil Bedell's) and the crazy things aren't afraid of a tractor, like they are of a horse.

But Fred couldn't be bothered stopping the machine every time he saw one, and there ain't room on the tractor for two people and a gun.

———oOOOo———

Well, Patterson, he went down to Ham Johnston's and got a couple of rubber-tired wheels off an old baby carriage that Ham didn't figure on having any further use for —

———oOOOo———

He took them up to his house and made a frame out of a racing sulky he found at the fair grounds.

———oOOOo———

He didn't just have the right kind of a bottom to put in it, but he fastened on the seat of an old cultivator.

———oOOOo———

He intends replacing that part of it with something that will revolve, so that as Fred drives majestically up the field, Mr. Solmes will be able to shoot from any angle.

———oOOOo———

Simple isn't it — but it isn't everybody that would be able to think up a contraption that would ride easy like that so as to not spoil the aim of the gunner.

———oOOOo———

Tom Montgomery has been appointed Minister of Marines and Fisheries.

———oOOOo———

They need something like that, too.

———oOOOo———

There's a quite a stream runs through the place and the last time Fred was gathering sap out at the sugar bush he fell off the gun-carriage, or whatever they were using to gather the sap with, and fell in the crick.

———oOOOo———

With Mr. Montgomery in charge of this end of the work, we have no doubt he will insist on proper docks and landing places being built along the waterway.

———oOOOo———

Although for the time being, he is just a minister without portfolio in the newly formed administration of this settlement, Ham Johnston will have to carry the duties of the Minister of Mines and Forests.

———oOOOo———

There's about 50 acres of bush and that's a lot of forest — if you're lost in it on a dark night.

———oOOOo———

Ham will be supposed to organize posses in a case like that.

———oOOOo———

The one thing we don't like about the organization is that they've appointed Bert Eggleton as Game Warden.

———oOOOo———

Bert, according to a recent interview, ain't just sure when the open season for rabbits and canaries is, and those other guys is likely to sorely deplete the forest reserves and game supply without Bert knowing where he's at.

———oOOOo———

That ain't Bert's fault either, it's just the fact that he hasn't had a chance to study up on this new duty.

———oOOOo———

They've got an apple tree out behind the driveshed, so they've appointed Charlie Dracup as the Overseas Representative.

———oOOOo———

Charley is supposed to flood the English markets with crab apples grown by the Consolidated Crepehangers' Corporation.

———oOOOo———

They just have one cow at present, (enough for domestic use) and she won't be milkin' 'til along in July sometime, so the cheesemaking proposition doesn't bother them much yet.

———oOOOo———

But seein' how Fred ain't got no horses to feed he'll likely have to do the milkin' when the time comes.

———oOOOo———

And it won't be at all surprisin to see Fred coming to town with a bucket of cream in one arm and his darning in the other.

———oOOOo———

Believe it or not, they've got things right down to a science.

———oOOOo———

They're going to keep a few hens.

You know we've been wondering why Ham Johnston hasn't been working very much at the selling end of his last invention, but now we find he's been working on a new one for Mr. Solmes.

———oOOOo———

He came in the other day with a model of this new contrivance.

———oOOOo———

It saves trap-nesting and grading and stamping and all that sort of thing, so far as the hens are concerned.

———oOOOo———

There's a little lever on the side of it, and whenever one of the hens feels the urge, she simply jumps on the lever (sort of a time clock arrangement)

———oOOOo———

Then she climbs up to the top of the outfit, deposits the egg and gets down.

———oOOOo———

The egg rolls into the proper section, (according to its weight) and there you have it —

———oOOOo———

Stamped by the time-clock and graded and everything, to avoid confusion.

———oOOOo———

As well as that, it's a check-up on the hen —

———oOOOo———

If she ain't punching the clock she's not living up to expectations — and out she goes.

———oOOOo———

Tom Cranston (formerly the producer of the Golden Dollar Strain up at his farm) is in full charge of this department, as well as supervision of the Livestock Branch.

———oOOOo———

Councillor Rollins (due to his varied experience as a stock-raiser) has volunteered his services and will come in handy if the fellows back at the farm decide to raise any sheep —

———oOOOo———

They'll have to be clipped in the Spring.

———oOOOo———

So far as we know, that's all the arrangements that have been made so far —

———oOOOo———

But before anything else turns up —

———oOOOo———

We'll be seein' yuh!

BANQUET HELD

A very successful men and boys banquet was held in the school room of St. Paul's United Church on Wednesday evening, last week. Over 100 were present and in this group the Carmel appointment was well represented.

The tables were beautifully spread by the ladies of the W.A., and after partaking of a bountiful repast, Dr. Walt rose and in a splendid address proposed a toast to His Majesty King Edward VIII. This was responded to by all standing at attention and singing the National Anthem. This was followed by a male quartette singing "Drink to me only with Thine Eyes".

The next toast was made to our Guests in a splendid speech by Mr. C. R. Bastedo. Seated at the head table were the honoured guests, Mr. W. S. Martin, James Donnan and Oakley Vandervoort, all men who had served the church for many years and they have all passed the 80 mark in the journey of life. The reply was made by W. S. Martin, and he made a profound impression by his inspiring words.

Rev. E. W. Rowland was then called upon to speak for the Church, and introduce the speaker of the evening, Mr. Elmer Davis, of Kingston. In his masterly address Mr. Davis traced the history of the Church publications from the days of Ryerson to the present and urged that the Church Book Room and its Sunday School and Church periodicals suffered nothing by comparison with the publications of other houses across the Line, and he pleaded that we be loyal to our own Church publications.

A feature of the programme was the singing of a spiritual "I'll study War no More" by the boys of Don Williams' Class. Mr. C. Linn in a few well-chosen remarks, thanked the guest speaker for being present and giving such an informative address. Mr. Wm. Fitchett then humorously thanked the ladies for the noble part they played in making the gathering a success.

Mr. John Thompson acted as Master of Ceremonies in a most capable manner. Sometime in the not-too-distant future it is hoped that another meeting of this kind will be held, and it was suggested that in the meantime the mothers and daughters of St. Paul's Church have a get-together.
